Berlin Predicts Fuehrer's Reply Will Be Severe

BERLIN, April 22—An authoritative editorial service predicted today that Chancellor Hitler would reject sharply President Roosevelt's peace appeal as a "crude attempt" to establish in advance a war guilt thesis.

"This much can already be said without anticipating Chancellor Hitler's speech next weekend: mediation from overseas, which in the opinion of many represents a crude attempt to establish a war guilt thesis a priori, will be rejected most sharply on the part of Germany," said the thrice-weekly commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, which is known to have close foreign office connections.

"It may also be asserted that the Fuehrer, just like Premier Mussolini, will remind the western powers that peace must not be treated like a dead organism but as a living task of finding just solutions from case to case."

The United States president asked for at least 10 years of peace and inquired whether the German and Italian statesmen would give non-aggression assurances to 31 nations.

SECOND WILSON

Dienst Aus Deutschland said "President Roosevelt, in the eyes of the German people and its leader, is a second Woodrow Wilson," and that "from every point of view he appears unfit to play the role of honest broker concerning European affairs."

The official German news agency continued reports today of alleged anti-German demonstrations and what it called Polish violence against German citizens, especially in the industrial region of Polish upper Silesia.

The agency reported that at Antonienhuette groups of uniformed members of Polish legionnaires sang anti-German songs in the streets and stoned houses of Germans, and that numerous Germans were attacked. Similar incidents were said to have occurred in the suburbs of Watowice.

FRANCE WILL SPEED WORK ON NAVY BASE

Mers-el-Kebir On Algerian Coast Opposite Spain, Of Strategic Value

PARIS, April 22.—The French government today ordered work accelerated on a new naval base at Mers-El-Kebir, on the Algerian coast opposite Spain, in a fresh step in its broad effort to strengthen France's foreign and domestic position.

In another action, following a series of decrees approved yesterday, it ordered an increase in small fighting ships and auxiliary vessels for the navy.

The point chosen for the new naval base, a few miles west of Oran, is of particular strategic value since warships could operate from there in the narrow western section of the Mediterranean which is bounded by the Spanish and Spanish Moroccan coasts.

Publication of yesterday's decrees disclosed a large part of new military credits authorized were allotted to the air force. The air ministry was authorized to spend an additional $101,640,000.

JUDGE JACKSON TO INVESTIGATE WATER PROJECT

Arising out of alleged irregularities, affairs of the Eastern Irrigation District at Brooks will be investigated by Judge Jackson of Lethbridge, according to Premier William Aberhart.

In making his announcement, the Premier said:

"His Honor Judge Jackson of Lethbridge has agreed to act as a commissioner to conduct an inquiry pursuant to the provisions of the Public Inquiries Act regarding alleged irregularities in the conduct of affairs of the Eastern Irrigation District. G. M. Blackstock, K.C., of Medicine Hat, will act as counsel for the commissioner. !

"It is understood that Mr. McLaws of Bassano will appear on behalf of the former board of trustees of the district. The hearings will take place at Brooks at an early date."

Guards Leave

LONDON, April 22. — The First Battalion of the Welsh Guards Regiment, numbering 600 officers and men, entrained for Southampton today to embark in the troopship Dorsetshire for Gibraltar.

SUDETEN GROUP NEARS HOME IN PEACE BLOCK

GRANDE PRAIRIE, April 22—The first contingent of Sudeten German families who are being placed on farms in what is known as the Gundy Ranch property just inside the B. C. block, passed through here Friday. The new colonists were on board special colonist cars which brought them directly from Montreal.

Already eighteen houses have been built and equipped under the supervision of F. B. McConnell, of the C.P.R. Colonization, to receive the new settlers. A big crew of men is now at work constructing more houses, barns and other buildings for a second group of 50 families which is expected to arrive in about two weeks. The first houses were of logs, but lumber, which is more economical and permits of faster construction, will be used for the remainder.

Tractors are waiting to break the land and spring work will get under way at once.

34 Indians Fight Prairie Fire On Sarcee Reserve

CALGARY, April 22 — Thirty-four Indians were fighting a prairie and bush fire on the Sarcee reserve, five miles southwest, after an unestimated acreage of valuable pasture land had been destroyed.

Dr. T. F. Murray, agent, said the men he had mustered comprised the total quota of able-bodied braves on the reserve.

Road Ban Lifted

Lifting of restrictions on bus and truck traffic on highways in the Grande Prairie, High Prairie and Peace River districts, and between Athabasca and Smith, was announced Saturday by the provincial department of public works. Trucks moving between Smith and High Prairie will be restricted to a five-ton load limit.

United After 10 Years

Ten years' separation while the father established himself in Canada were ended happily but tearfully when Frank Kuhn's wife and three sons arrived in Edmonton Thursday afternoon from Jugoslavia. Mr. Kuhn came here 10 years ago and has developed a fine farm in the Good Hope district, near Fort Saskatchewan. On Thursday his family arrived here on the Canadian Pacific train. In the picture Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn and two of their sons are shown. They are of German nationality.

GOOD SEASON IS PREDICTED IN NORTHLAND

Ten Parties Already On Location In Wray Lake District

Despite the drum-rattling and goose-stepping and bomb-throwing in Europe the Yellowknife gold mining district, particularly in the Wray Lake area, is going to have a busy summer according to Ken Razzell, Canadian Airways agent who arrived in the city Friday for a brief holiday.

Numbers of prospecting parties have been on location all winter and already dozens of parties have made their way out to the points where they intend to do their searching this summer, while mining companies have begun work on the development of known properties.

OPTIMISM

A spirit of optimism has taken hold of the residents of the district, replacing the gloomy outlook held earlier this year, he reports.

"We have already ten parties on location in the Wray Lake area, about 150 miles north of Yellowknife, and there are many more booked to go in after break-up. We are going to operate regular weekly service into that area from Yellowknife this summer," Mr. Razzell stated.

"At the present time Alf Caywood is working full time taking parties out to various camps and lakes so that they will be ready to go when break-up melts the snow so they can get at the rocks. The coming summer will prove to be better than last from present indications," he said.

Razzell came out with Rudy Heuss, on the last flight of the season. Although there will be no more flights from Edmonton Canadian Airways will make two more flights for mail pick-ups from Prince Albert, Razzell reported.

SISTER ATTACKS TOT WITH AXE: ARM IS SEVERED

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

GRANDE PRAIRIE, April 22—Roy Harbuck, three-year-old son of J. Harbuck of Valleyview, had his right arm severed almost completely by an axe in the hands of his ten-year-old sister.

The accident occurred on Monday and the child was rushed eighty miles by car over poor roads to the hospital here for treatment, in care of District Nurse Stewart and Constable W. Dick. As the ferry was not yet in, it was necessary to cross the Smoky river in a rowboat.

Latest reports are that the child is making satisfactory progress towards recovery. It was necessary to complete amputation of the arm between the wrist and the elbow.

The girl is under examination for mental instability.

Sound Money Ideas Must Be Discarded McGeer Tells Club

Canadians Must Think in Terms of Monetary Reform if Canada to Carry on As Nation M.P. Says

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 22.—Canadians must think in terms of monetary reform and discard ideas of "sound finance" if Canada is to carry on as a nation and assume its responsibilities in the international picture, G. G. McGeer said in an address here last night.

Addressing the annual banquet of the St. Thomas and Elgin Motor Club, the Liberal member of parliament for Vancouver-Burrard declared: "There is work to be done today in financing our opportunities and taking a rightful place in defence of democracy and freedom that cannot be done with ox-cart ideas of orthodox finance."

What Canada needs is leaders with vision instead of "fastidiously frugal bachelors who spend their time writing memoirs, instead of looking forward along unbroken trails of opportunity," said Mr. McGeer.

He remarked upon the "terrible guesses of those orthodox financiers and classical economists" who forecast Japan would go bankrupt in her war with China and Italy after her conquests of Ethiopia and Albania, and noted that Germany had been guilty of "that most heinous office of repudiation."

"We have a right to ask ourselves why can't we have a medium of exchange to suit our peaceful desires, the same as the dictators?" said Mr. McGeer. "Down at Ottawa we are getting reckless—spending $65,000,000 to protect $25,000,000,000 wealth. We are ruining our finance minis-

Details of Federal Work Projects Are Made Public Today

By THOMAS WAYLING

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 22.—The Honorable T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines, made public today the details of the development and conservation program of work-creating projects which would be carried out all over the Dominion this year under the different votes for his department in the special supplementary estimates.

The program embraces continued assistance to the development of mining through improving transportation facilities into mining areas and additional geological survey work; assistance in the improvement of tourist highways; construction of permanent highways and of other works in the National parks; also forest and fur conservation undertakings.

In regard to the provision made for the improvement of transportation facilities into mining areas the provision made in this year's estimates is $1,250,000. In accordance with the policy adopted under the similar appropriations in the previous three fiscal years, the Dominion will pay two-thirds of the cost of construction of projects recommended by the provinces. Allotments under this vote are by provinces as follows:

British Columbia, $240,000; Alberta, $50,000; Saskatchewan, $130,000; Manitoba, $210,000; Ontario, $245,000; Quebec, $245,000; Nova Scotia, $25,000; Yukon and Northwest Territories, $85,000.

In addition to the program of mining roads the Department this year is carrying on a programme of geological and topographical work in all provinces and will have 55 parties in the field as follows: Northwest Territories, 6; Yukon, 2; British Columbia, 10; Alberta, 7; Saskatchewan, 3; Manitoba, 5; Ontario, 5; Quebec, 11; New Brunswick, 3; Nova Scotia, 3.

TOURIST HIGHWAYS

There has been provided for the development of tourist highways a sum of $3,750,000, to be expended mainly on roads leading to National Parks, and the Trans-Canada highway.

The allotments of funds by provinces are as follows: British Columbia, $340,000; Alberta, $275,000; Saskatchewan, $375,000; Manitoba, $475,000; Ontario, $950,000; Quebec, $750,000; New Brunswick, $245,000; Nova Scotia, $250,000; Prince Edward Island, $60,000.

In addition to the above, the Dominion will provide $315,000 for the Big Bend Highway in British

Revival of Great War Triple Entente Is Aim Of Russian Diplomats

LONDON, April 22. — Europe's diplomats, working a seven-day week as rival London-Paris and Rome-Berlin coalitions pushed efforts to gain new allies, started another full week-end today. Diplomatic activity continued in almost every European capital despite a relaxation of tension while Chancellor Hitler's speech next Friday, answering President Roosevelt's request for a 10-year peace pledge, was awaited.

Moscow was the centre of discussion, with Great Britain reliably reported to have accepted as "a basis for negotiations" a proposal by Russia for a revival of the Great War triple military alliance of Britain, France and Russia.

In Venice, Italian and Yugoslavian foreign ministers were engaged in consultations which informed sources said were aimed at lining up the potentially powerful little Balkan state with Rome-Berlin axis.

GIVEN IMPETUS

In Moscow the conversations concerning Russian co-operation in the Anglo-French sponsored anti-aggression bloc were given impetus by the arrival of the Soviet ambassador, Ivan Maisky, from London.

Establishment of a triple entente, such as Russia proposed, was believed to involve a guarantee to the Soviet against any Japanese attack.

DIPLOMATS ACTIVE

Diplomats also were active in Rumania and Poland, since the agreement of these countries to accept some form of Russian military aid was necessary for the effective inclusion of Russia in the Anglo-French front.

Rumania was reported to have declared already she would not stand in the way of Russia's cooperation.

Discussions continued in Turkey, although the co-operation of that

Questionnaire Replies Say Confident Neutrality To Be Respected

BERLIN, April 22—A list of negative answers began to arrive at the German foreign office today from countries which Chancellor Hitler had asked whether they considered themselves menaced by Germany.

Hitler is expected to use the replies prominently in his reply Friday to President Roosevelt's peace message which asked the Fuehrer and Premier Mussolini if they were willing to give assurances that their

COMPENSATION PROPOSED FOR RAILWAY JOBS

Employees Displaced By Co-Operation Would Get Allowances

OTTAWA, April 22.—Compensation for jobs abolished through railway co-operation is being advanced by the government in a bill introduced in the senate yesterday.

It was generally interpreted the measure was aimed at modifying opposition by railway workers to increased co-operation between the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways because of feared loss of jobs.

The bill would compel the railways to pay such displaced employees substantial compensation based on length of service. They would receive for a period determined by length of their employment 60 per cent of their average monthly pay for their last year's work. Or they might choose to accept a lump-sum settlement also based on length of service.

For instance, a man who had been employed by one of the railways between one and two years would receive this 60 per cent adjustment allowance for six months. For a man with two to three years service the period of payment would be 12 months; three to five years, 18 months; five to 10 years, 36 months; 10 to 15 years, 48 months; 15 years and over, 60 months.

The schedule of lump-sum separation allowance is as follows: one to two years' service, three months' pay; two to three years, six months' pay; three to five years, nine months' pay; five years and over, 12 months' pay.

The bill includes detailed provisions for recall to railway employment and for compensation for workers for moving expenses if they were transferred to other districts.

CLYDE WHIPS MOTHERWELL FOR CUP, 4-0

GLASGOW, April 22—Clyde whipped Motherwell 4-0 before nearly 100,000 spectators at Hampden Park today to win the Scottish football cup for the first time in the club's history. After leading 1-0 at halftime against the run of the play, the Shawfield Park eleven dominated play in the second period.

In contrast to the rain that dampened enthusiasm at last week's big match the weather today was cool and sunny when the teams lined up.

Clyde—Goal, Brown; backs, Kirk, Hickie; halfbacks, Beateon, Falloon and Weir; forwards, Robertson, Wallace, Martin, Noble, Gillies.

Motherwell—Goal, Murray; backs, Wales, Ellis; halfbacks, McKenzie, Blair, Telfer; forwards, Ogilvie, Bremner, Mathie, Stevenson, McCulloch.

CANADA URGED TO BAN ENTRY OF JAPANESE

Young Liberals Want Gentleman's Agreement With Nippon Terminated

By THOMAS WAYLING

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 22.—A resolution that Canada's gentleman's agreement with Japan permitting 150 Japanese to enter Canada yearly be terminated, was passed today at the fourth national Twentieth Century Liberal convention being held in Ottawa. It was held also that the order-in-council permitting Japanese to bring in wives be rescinded.

Milton Owen, president of the Vancouver Club, brought in a resolution regarding "provision of adequate defence in Canada against aggression."

There was a great deal of controversy and suggested amendment over this resolution, which also stated: "We oppose the conscription of men in time of war unless the wealth of the country be conscripted first."

ADEQUATE DEFENCES

The Vancouver club wants adequate defences in Canada against aggression, and supports the doctrine of consultation of parliament by the government before participation, if war is declared.

In affirming their willingness to fight in defence of democracy, Hugues Lapointe, from Quebec, son of the minister of justice, stated.

"We are in favor of conscription of men for Canadian defence

80 CENT WHEAT PRICE WILL BE URGED MONDAY

By THOMAS WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 22 — Western premiers and cabinet ministers, conferring with their technical advisers decided today to urge on the government the restoration of the Canadian wheat board and an 80 cents guaranteed minimum.

They will make their recommendations when they meet the government on Monday. It is also believed they will have some additional recommendations to make with respect to the acreage guarantee.

The wheat issue now looms up as the most important of the session. Western Liberals are urging the western case on the government but the C.C.F. and Social Crediters are prepared to go even further. They are prepared to hold up prorogation to get more generous terms for the west.

The eastern members are beginning to get annoyed and if the westerners are too insistent they may arouse an antagonism which may create an East-West controversy of major proportions.

JOBLESS PLAN MARCH DURING ROYALTY VISIT

By THOMAS WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 22.—A demonstration of 2,000 unemployed led by Harold Mason who organized the Vancouver strike is being plotted for the King's visit.

Mason's plan is to organize 2,000 Ottawa unemployed and when the King and Queen arrives to unveil the national monument they will launch a disturbance.

The unemployed leader arrived in Ottawa some time ago and has been quietly gathering the unemployed under his wing.

He tried to turn the plaza round the memorial into a forum and the police have already arrested two of his soap box orators.

Mason is living in a furnished apartment which he claims is being paid for by two member of parliament, whose names however he does not divulge.

Sabotage

side the Great Lakes Power Company power canal. Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Ontario Provincial Police also were notified.

NEAR POWER PLANT

The shed is only 1,000 yards from the Great Lakes power plant. Chief of Police Harbottle said it would be possible for several charges of the explosive to be made up, tossed into the power canal and sent floating into the plant to put it out of commission.

Mayor Jack McMeeken appealed to all citizens to act as policemen and report to authorities any suspicious happenings. "This discovery should serve as a warning to every citizen to be on guard against sabotage," he said.

SERIOUS BLOW

"Crippling of our ship canal and destruction of the international bridge would be a serious blow to the empire in time of war. And anything which halts operations at such industries as the steel plant, the paper mill and the chromium plant would hamper the empire in its defences."

The bridge linking Sault Ste. Marie with its namesake city in Michigan is only 500 feet from where the dynamite was found. Almost the same distance away is the ship canal through which flows lake traffic from Lake Superior to eastern ports. Millions of bushels of western wheat yearly pass through the waterway. "A charge or two might easily put it out of operation," said Chief Harbottle.

SPECIAL WATCHMEN

Special watchmen also are on guard at power plants in several other Ontario centres, among them Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission stations along the Niagara river and at Leaside, Toronto suburb. Great War veterans guarded the Chats Falls power plant on the Ottawa river, 25 miles west of Ottawa. Officials termed the measures "precautionary".

Workable Housing Plan Alberta Need Edmonton Girl Says

By THOMAS WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 22.—"Alberta needs a workable housing scheme," says Miss Laurette Carrigan, of Edmonton, who is here attending the Fourth National Twentieth Century Liberal convention.

Miss Carrigan is president of the Twentieth Century club in Edmonton. Along with her is Mrs. Kenneth Montgomery, vice-president of the organization.

"There is no housing plan in Alberta," says Miss Carrigan, "and we would like to see such a plan brought into force. The Dominion government has offered Alberta the same plan as any other province but under present circumstances it has been turned down. The mortgage companies are not willing to extend credit to the prospective buyers."

This is one of the questions which will be discussed by Alberta members when the discussion hour is opened today.

WOMAN'S SERVICE CORPS

Among other questions, Mrs. Montgomery would like to see a Woman's Service corps established in every city in the Dominion.

"This type of club would not be affiliated with any particular political organization but would include members of all types of women's organizations. In case of war the women would then be trained to do the various jobs formerly undertaken by the young men, such as truck driving. In times of peace it would be equally as valuable in striving to unify the women of Canada, especially in the West."

"We are certainly going to mention that we would like to see the highway between Edmonton and Jasper Park completed and maintained in first class condition to encourage tourists, who make the Banff-Jasper drive from Banff, to continue on straight through to Edmonton. This would boost the Edmonton tourist trade. We would like to see tourist accommodation at the town of Jasper greatly improved. If it is a good week-end, and people go to Jasper, they know that when they get there they will not be able to find proper accommodation.

"The town of Jasper should be brought up to the standard of Banff."

"Regarding the wheat question," said Miss Carrigan, "as long as they take in the far western farmers when fixing the price of wheat most of us will be satisfied. This shall be our main argument in regard to this particular question."

Columbia. It is expected that this sum will complete this year the gap now existing in the Trans Canada Highway through the mountains and open all-Canadian motor travel from Vancouver to east of Port Arthur, Ontario.

SURFACING HIGHWAY

Other funds amounting to $190,000 have been provided to continue the program started three years ago in co-operation with the province of hard surfacing the main tourist highway from Kingsgate to Kootenay Park in British Columbia. When this road is completed there will be available to visitors to the National Parks a circle tour commencing either at Kingsgate in British Columbia or Waterton Lakes Park in Alberta and taking in Banff, Yoho, Kootenay and Revelstoke Parks.

The sum of $880,000 has been provided for roads and other improvements within the boundaries of National Parks across Canada.

Of this amount, $262,000 has been set aside for works in Banff and Jasper Parks, in Alberta, including continuing the hard surfacing of the road from the east boundary of Banff Park to Lake Louise. In Waterton Lakes $100,000 will be spent on hard surfacing the road from the International Boundary through the Park to connect with the highway leading to Calgary.

In Manitoba, $35,500 is to be spent in Riding Mountain Park to hard surface the roads in the townsite and for improvements to the golf course.

There will be spent in Cape Breton Highlands Park in Nova Scotia, $514,000; $400,000 of which will be used in the reconstruction and improvement of the Cabot Trail and the balance in other improvements including completion of the 18-hole golf course.

A further National Parks appropriation is $335,000 for the Banff-Jasper Highway. It is expected that this sum will complete the road and that at the end of this year it will be possible to travel over this scenic highway connecting Banff and Jasper.

The department will continue its fur conservation activities started last year, $100,000 having been provided for this purpose. The work will be carried on under development schemes in the northern parts of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta; also in the Northwest Territories.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

Additional funds of $476,000 have been provided for the Indian Affairs Branch principally for the construction of residential and day schools in most of the provinces.

In carrying out the Dominion's program of forest conservation work, the sum of $200,000 has been provided to continue the program commenced last year at the forest experiment stations and in National Parks.

This sum will be spent as follows:

Kananaskis Station, Alberta, $15,000; Jasper Park, $15,000; Banff Park, $10,000.

Prince Albert Park, Saskatchewan, $30,000; Riding Mountain Park, Manitoba, $60,000.

Petawawa Station, Ontario, $40,000; Valcartier Station, Quebec, $10,000; Acadia Station, New Brunswick, $20,000.

The work will include, besides silvicultural work, the construction of roads and trails, telephone lines, lookout towers and cabins.

The above forestry program, Mr. Crerar emphasized, is not part of the $1,000,000 forestry program announced a few days ago by the Hon. Mr. Rogers, Minister of Labor, as an expansion of the Youth Training Plan.

APPORTION FUNDS

Mr. Crerar stated that it is proposed to apportion $400,000 of Youth Training Funds approximately as follows:

Nova Scotia, Cape Breton National Park, $53,500.

New Brunswick, Acadia Station, $31,000; Quebec, Valcartier Station, $13,500.

Ontario, Petawawa Station, $73,000.

Manitoba, Riding Mountain Park, $12,500.

Saskatchewan, Prince Albert Park, $28,500.

Alberta, Kananaskis Station, $30,000; Jasper Park, $54,500; Banff Park, $54,000; Waterton Park, $12,500; Elk Island Park, $12,500.

British Columbia, Yoho Park, $12,500; Revelstoke Park, $12,500.

The above program contemplates, Mr. Crerar states, a comprehensive scheme of development and conservation works to be carried out both by the Dominion alone and in co-operation with the provinces. It will not only provide work to many thousands of men but when completed will have important economic benefits for the Dominion in promoting tourist traffic and the development of national resources.

Russia

nation controlling the passage between the Black Sea and Mediterranean, was taken for granted in London. Passage through the Dardanelles and Bosphorus would be necessary to British and French fleets if effective assistance were to be given to Rumania.

Russia Disposed To Include Far East

MOSCOW, April 22—Soviet circles emphasized last night Russia was disposed to include the far east, where she faces Japan, as well as Europe in any commitments for a new alignment of the great powers.

As foreign commissar Maxim Litvinoff submitted counter-proposals in reply to British suggestions of Russian support for the Anglo - French coalition, reports came from London he had suggested resurrection of the Great War triple entente — Russia, Britain, France.

But this time, it was said, Russia wanted the entente to set its face against Japan—its Great War ally —as well as against Germany and Italy.

These reports could not be confirmed here, but they would not be inconsistent with the Soviet attitude of "genuine collective security."

The governments of Britain, France and the United States may be thinking primarily of what Germany's next move will be, but in Moscow it is remembered that Poland and Rumania still are between Hitler and the Soviet border while the Red army actually had to fight the Japanese (at Changkufeng) on Russia's far eastern border last summer.

Ice Breaks Up

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., April 22—Approximately five days behind last year's break-up, the ice moved out of the North Saskatchewan river here Friday. Earliest date on which the ice moved out from this point is April 4, 1878.

Rats settled in America from both the Atlantic and Pacific shores.

but not overseas." He said the Quebec association will have to withdraw from the association if this resolution is not amended. "We will fight for Canada but not for other countries. We will back the Liberal party to the limit for the defence of Canada but we are not fighting for other countries," he said.

Alan Chambers, of Vancouver, urged a compromise, a reasonable amendment that could unite the convention. He suggested the words—"to defend democracy".

"That's the same thing," cried Quebec members.

"There you are, that's uncompromising," said Mr. Chambers.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

Milton Owen moved the resolution go to a special committee as Mr. Lapointe denied the Quebec attitude was uncompromising.

The convention finally voted to send it to a committee of chairman H. W. Sutherland, Mr. Chambers and Mr. Lapointe. On the vote Mr. Lapointe yelled "No" at the top of his voice.

A resolution to bring selected refugees into Canada was approved this morning by a small majority.

Fairclough of Victoria, B.C., made an attempt to combat this resolution telling the convention of the Doukhobors situation in the west. "They work for next to nothing," he said. "Their standards of living are lower than ours and it is not fair to let any more come in to take Canadian jobs and do Canadians, who have been settled here for a century, out of employment."

armies would not attack or invade 31 countries.

Foreign Minister Eljas Erko, of Finland, replied Finland did not consider her neutrality threatened by Germany.

The Swiss government informed Germany it believed its neutrality would be respected by its neighbors, "Who, including Germany, have expressly guaranteed it." Switzerland added it was determined to fight any aggressor.

The Netherlands told Germany it did not consider itself menaced by the Reich.

Lithuania was reported to have referred the German government to a Lithuanian-German treaty of March 22 in which Germany pledged herself not to resort to force or support force against Lithuania.

The German minister was reported to have asked the question of Premier Hubert Perlot of Belgium. It was reported the Belgian reply would refer to guarantees given by Great Britain, France and Germany to maintain Belgium's neutrality.

OFFICIALS PLEASED

German officials obviously were pleased with the results and it was clear that no answers were expected which would support the thesis that Germany had designs on any neighbors.

Officials yesterday ridiculed reports from abroad that the German foreign office had sought to refute Mr. Roosevelt by asking small countries directly whether they were afraid of the Reich. Today officials declined to say exactly how many replies were received but they no longer attempted to hide the fact the questions had been asked and answered.

Rumania Says Can't Feel Safe

LONDON, April 22.—The Rumanian government, asked by Berlin whether it felt threatened by Germany, was reported reliably today to have replied that "Rumania does not see how anyone could feel secure in Europe at the present time."

Rumania's first move after replying to the German questionnaire was to pass along her answer to the British foreign office, it was said.

Until word of the Rumanian reply was received here it was not believed Germany had addressed her note to any of Britain's new eastern European allies—Poland, Greece and Rumania.

General Executed

BARCELONA, April 22.—A firing squad today executed the Republican General, Jose Aranguren, commander of the Civil Guards of Barcelona, who was charged with ordering the Guards to remain loyal to the Republican government early in the civil war.

BALDWIN SEES DANGER FROM MIND OF MASS

Warns Of Extinction Of Spiritual Freedom Through Slackness

TORONTO, April 25—Earl Baldwin last night sounded an earnest warning against the "terrible danger" of the mass mind. He saw it was forerunner of extinction of spiritual freedom and possible "democratic totalitarianism."

Those who believed in democracies, who dreamed of what democracies might become in the elevation of humanity, had to "work as they had never worked before to keep the idea before their people and make them realize that their ideals contain the hope of the nations."

The former British Prime Minister was delivering the second of three lectures in the University of Toronto's convocation hall, under a lectureship set up in honor of Sir Robert Falconer, president of that university from 1907 to 1932.

DEEP-ROOTED GROWTH

He analyzed strength and weakness of democracy, stressing its slow-deep-rooted growth in the British make-up. Despite his criticism of the totalitarian states, he saw no reason why they could not co-exist with the western democracies. If there were danger of war, it would not come from the democracies.

"If, however, in the war of ideas our democracies allow their domestic policy to be invaded by and overcome by the ideas of Bolshevism, Nazism or Fascism, if they lose their birthright, then indeed, the whole course of western civilization will be changed and I for one shall see little hope for mankind," he said.

"It is not enough to shout for personal freedom, if by personal freedom you mean nothing more than the liberty to do what you like. What is at stake is freedom of the spirit and that has never been won without discipline and sacrifice."

BEST PROGRESS

Faced with the "hatred" of the totalitarian states, it was never so necessary for those who believed in democracy to prove to the world the best progress was compatible with freedom and that freedom could lead a people farther and better than regimentation.

He held there was no more difficult system to maintain and develop than democracy. If a democracy was to be healthy and survive, it had to have the service of every man and woman in the body politic.

"So long as a representative system exists, and it is difficult to see what could take its place with the large populations concerned, the first obvious responsibility resting on the people is their choice of representative. There is no democratic country that has not fallen short in these matters.

"Yet if you have not clean, honest administration, then you have a rotten patch on your body politic and you don't know how far the rot may spread. Democracies cannot afford rotten spots."

MASS MIND

The thought of danger of some form of democratic totalitarianism seemed less fantastic when the danger of the mass mind was recognized.

"Are we more callous than our fathers or is the daily food of sensation and horror served up to us by the sensational papers numbing our sense of feeling and our capacity for realization? But it is a mass numbing and few escape it."

ter's health because we are spending so much for defence when we have $1,623,000,000 in savings accounts in Canada."

On a basis of relative population, relative value of accumulated wealth, net income, national and external debt, Canada should be spending $700,000,000 on defence, not $63,000,000.

Canada also was neglecting opportunities to develop highways and northern playgrounds with more than 50,000,000 customers in the United States waiting to come in and pay for it. "We can't find money to put material and idle labor to work," he said.

"This is Canada's crisis of opportunity. With the United States we can make this North American continent a new and more powerful citadel of Christian democracy than the British Isles has ever seen."

Mr. McGeer forecast the Dominion is "coming to the end of an old order, into the dawn of a new era when men will cease to worship the god of money and put it away as something to be accumulated, but rather establish a government that will maintain and issue a medium of exchange to assure orderly progress for the benefit of Canada as a whole."

GRAIN TRADING BILL TO KEEP CONTROL CLAUSE

OTTAWA, April 22 — Senator Raoul Dandurand, government leader, made clear to the senate banking and commerce committee Friday the government is anxious to retain in its bill regulating trading in grain futures the clause which would give the board of grain commissioners power to revoke or vary any by-law or rule of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange considered injurious to the public interest.

A statement to that effect came from Senator Dandurand during the committee's second session yesterday as Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, and Senator J. T. Haig (Con. Manitoba) attacked that particular provision of the bill. Senator A. D. McRae (Con. British Columbia) endorsed it.

The committee decided, at Senator Dandurand's suggestion, to leave determination of the clause until next Tuesday when Isaac Pitblado, counsel for the grain exchange, will appear again before the committee. At the first session Friday, Mr. Pitblado vigorously opposed that clause as going beyond mere supervision, which was the professed purpose of the act.

CRANG MOVE ON NURSING LACKS VOTE

Member Suggests New Policy For Hospital Applications Here

Proposal placed before the Edmonton Hospital Board by Miss Margaret Crang to the effect that "the board approves of the principle of admission to the nurses' training school of girls irrespective of race, or color, providing they meet with the cultural, educational and physical requirements" was not voted on as a motion at the meeting of the board Friday evening.

It was decided that the policy of the hospital was already settled in that the recent application of a colored girl had been dealt with and that the applicant had been refused admission only because of physical disabilities.

PNEUMONIA CASES

Dealing with other business, the board was informed that the increase in the cost of drugs used in the treatment of pneumonia to date this year totalled $1,091 more than the figure for the corresponding period in 1938, the increase being due to the greater prevalence of the disease this year.

Report of Miss Margaret Fraser, R.N., superintendent of nurses, stated that the graduation exercises of the hospital will be held on April 28 in McDougall United church, when Donald Cameron, librarian of the University of Alberta, will address the graduates.

Appointment of Dr. E. Hitchin to the associate staff of the hospital was ratified.

The board approved the policy submitted by Graduate Nurses, Association that nurses work not more than eight hours special duty in a hospital.

CAPACITY TAXED

During the past month the hospitals capacity has been taxed to the limit with an average of 501 patients. There were 915 admissions and 923 discharges with a total of 12,400 patient days or a daily average of 400 patients.

Operations performed were 424, of which 54 were emergencies and 154 major. In the maternity department there were 122 confinements and 124 births. There was one maternal mortality.

In the isolation hospital there was one death from scarlet fever and 58 cases of the disease as well as one suspect. There were two infantile paralysis cases.

S. Dickson, who was appointed to take the place of Ald. E. Brown, who resigned from the board recently, was welcomed to the body by Chairman V. A. Porter.

TWO WINNERS FOR ORATORY COMPETITION

A. R. MacKay, Mary Scullion Get Awards In League Contest

Two timely, well-prepared and well-delivered speeches captured top honors in the annual junior and senior public speaking competitions of the Federation of Community Leagues, held at the McKay avenue school Friday evening. Seven contestants spoke during the evening.

The Army and Navy shield and first place in the senior division went to A. R. McKay of the Calder Community League, who spoke on "Citizenship—Yours and Mine." Tracing the persecution of the Jews from early times in an interesting talk entitled "Still Wandering," Mary Scullion of the Westmount League won the Kline tropy and first place honors in the junior section.

LEAGUE MEDALS

Canadian Legion gold medals were awarded to William Rachuk of McCauley, who placed second in the junior section, and J. W. Alridge of McCauley, chairman of the Federation of Community Leagues' sports committee. Rachuk spoke on "The Theatre of Athens," while Mr Alridge spoke on "Sports—Physically and Financially."

Tracing the trend of citizenship from the early tribal period, Mr. MacKay stated that the citizens of the various countries, and especially in Canada, had failed to accept their responsibilities. He placed the onus of the blame for conditions as they are today squarely on the citizens because of their lack of interest in the government of the country. "Conditions can only be improved if people learn to take an interest in the political life of the country," he said.

PLEADS FOR SPORT

Pleading for an increased interest in sport on the part of the Community Leagues, Mr. Alridge declared that sport provided an excellent opportunity for a business career for the youth of today. He said that it was easier for youth of simple means to climb to the top of the sports profession than any other.

Stating that there were three main causes for the persecution of the Jews, religious, economic, and political, 19-year-old Mary Scullion, winner of the recent Separate High Schools' oratorical contest, gave one of the most interesting and well-prepared speeches of the evening to take first place in the junior division.

A contributing factor to the persecution of the Jews was that they professed a different religion from other people. This she said was the main cause of their early persecution. Markedly different cultural and national characteristics was another cause, she said, while one of the main reasons for the present day suffering of the Jews was the fact that they had taken over control of many public services from banking and financing to the entertainment world.

TALKS ON THEATRE

Wm. Raschuk gave an interesting talk on "The Theatre of Athens", during which he described a typical day spent at one of the theatres during the height of Athens' glory.

The judges, R. S. Sheppard, assistant superintendent of schools, Rev. R. K. Cameron and Miss L. Parnell were unanimous in their decision on the choice of winners.

Others taking part in the junior section and their topics were: Eileen Barnes of Westmount, "The Little Knight Errant"; Carol Norquay of Westmount, "How Tom Sawyer Got His Fence Whitewashed"; Wesley Kitchen of Calder, "The Ward System". There were only the two contestants in the senior division.

Entertainment during the evening was provided by Kathleen Hawker, Robert Dunsworth, Ian Patterson, Bill Hunter, Kenneth Butterworth, Gwen Sinclair, Jean Smith, Marian Mail, Gerald Palmer, Mary Collins and Evans Meaden.

BARRYMORE TO PLAY IN CITY ON APRIL 25, 26

Ethel Barrymore, peeress of the American stage, will visit Edmonton next week to highlight the city's dramatic season with a two-day engagement at the Empire theatre in "Whiteoaks," which will be presented April 25 and 26.

"Whiteoaks" is the dramatization of Mazo de la Roche's famed Canadian family characters which appeared in the "Jalna Books." The play ran for 965 performances at the Playhouse, London, Eng., and Miss Barrymore is touring Canada with the vehicle following a successful season in New York.

Published in 1929, "Whiteoaks of Jalna" was the best seller of the year. Victor Payne-Jennings, who produced the play both in London and New York, has retained virtually all the New York cast, including Harry Ellerbe, Robert Shayne, Wyrley Birch, Reynolds Denniston, Lenore Chippendale, Audrey Ridgewell, Martha Hodge and Joseph Rolder for the tour.

Garbage By-Law Being Enforced Dr. Little Says

Special enforcement of the garbage bylaw is being made by the city health department, Dr. G. M. Little, city medical officer of health told a meeting of the health board Friday.

In February and March, he said, 812 sanitary inspections were made and 395 notices issued regarding garbage cans. Now that frost is out of the ground, the officials will see that stakes are driven to hold garbage cans firm.

The health officer said he would try to have a copy of the garbage bylaw mailed with tax notices, a suggestion made by Acting Mayor D. A. Grout.

INTEREST GROWS FOR FARM WEEK AT OLDS SCHOOL

Widespread interest was reported by Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture, on Saturday, in the farm and home week, to be held at the Olds School of Agriculture from June 26 to 30 inclusive.

Preparations are being made to develop an interesting program, said the minister. Tuesday, June 27, will be Percheron day; Wednesday, June 28, Shorthorn day; Thursday, June 29, Ayrshire day, and Friday, June 30, will be devoted to sheep and swine.

In addition to the problems concerning the special breeds of livestock, general questions concerning the livestock industry will also be discussed, while interesting programs pertaining to field crops, horticulture and other subjects will be offered each day.

There will be lectures and demonstrations every day for the women and insofar as possible, the women's program will be devoted to those topics which are of particular interest to the homemakers of the province.

The residence at the school will be kept open and board and room will be provided. In the evenings interesting programs of a recreational character will be provided, according to the minister.

WORKER GROUP HOLDS INITIAL BANQUET HERE

Donald Cameron Is Main Speaker—Robert McCreath Presides

More than 80 guests attended the first annual banquet of the Edmonton branch of the Workers' Educational Association held Friday evening at the Royal George Hotel. Robert McCreath, president, was master of ceremonies.

Donald Cameron, University of Alberta, extension department, was the main speaker and outlined the co-operative movement and the part it played in Denmark and Sweden in the making of these countries leaders in a world social order accomplishing great reforms.

He stated that the Workers' Educational Association was the straightest influence in moulding thought and action in the social reform prevailing in these countries.

Tutors during the winter class season, Watson Thomson, extension department, University of Alberta, Miss M. Simpson, Prof. H. E. Smith and H. D. Ainlay reported briefly on the progress of their work. They all reported a successful season.

More than 120 students were enrolled in the different classes in Edmonton during the first year of the active working of the Association here, stated President McCreath in making his report. He considered the attendance and general interest a forerunner to great success next year, and predicted that the activities of the association would become a vital influence in this district in moulding public opinion.

Communty singing and a reading by Miss E. Eustace were enjoyed by the guests.

Burglars Steal Many Explosives

Thieves who broke into Hoyt's Hardware, Lethbridge, some time Thursday night or early Friday, stole 50 pounds of dynamite and 1,000 detonators, Superintendent R. E. Mercer of the R.C.M.P. in Edmonton, said Saturday.

Police said they believe the dynamite theft may be linked with dynamite thefts in eastern Canada, although it is possible the explosive may have been taken by safe-blowers who boil dynamite to obtain nitro-glycerine, with which they blow off safe doors.

Fish Peddling Health Menace Officer States

Danger in buying fish from door-to-door peddlers was noted by Dr. G. M. Little, city medical officer of health, at a meeting of the health board on Friday.

Dr. Little said that one family had bought fish said to be whitefish. It had turned out to be another variety and was wormy. There was difficulty in identifying the vendors.

Camrose Farmer Suicide Victim

CAMROSE, April 22.—Body of William Jaisser, bachelor, aged about 40, was found dead in his farm shack eight miles northeast of Camrose Friday at 6:30 p.m. by a friend who went to visit him. The death was reported to be suicide. He was shot with a .22 repeating rifle in the forehead just over the right eye, and it was believed Jaisser haw suicided due to worry over conditions in Germany. Sgt. Broadway, of the Camrose R.C.M.P. detachment, and Coroner Dr. P. F. Smith are in charge of the case.

"I don't know of any motto better than 'Time tears on'."—Grover Whalen.

CITY GIRL IS DISMISSED ON THEFT CHARGE

Evidence of Det. William Smith, city police, called by R. Fred Jackson, defense counsel, was an important factor in gaining a dismissal of a theft charge preferred against Florence Sproule, youthful Edmonton girl.

Miss Sproule was charged with stealing $47 from John Hojeska, New Serepta district resident, as they drank together in a local rooming house.

Hojeska stated the girl took his purse containing the money and when taxed with the theft had stated the amount in the purse was only $20. This she offered to refund, he testified, but he refused to accept that amount. When he refused to accept the $20 the girl left his room.

The accused testified she was with the accused in a room and that he had given her his purse to send for cigarettes. She returned the purse and later left the room.

She told the court that Hojeska was very drunk and became sick. Corroberative evidence that Hojeska was under the influence of liquor was given by Det. Smith.

MEMBERSHIP IN SOCIETY GIVEN VARSITY GROUP

Through the courtesy of the Alberta Wheat Pool, members of the graduating class in agriculture from the University of Alberta have been presented with cards entitling them to one year's membership in the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists, it was announced Saturday.

The presentation was made at a recent banquet held by the Northern Alberta Local of the Society, held at the Corona hotel.

The presentation was made by J. R. Sweeney, deputy minister of agriculture, who welcomed the 20 graduates to the Society. S. Goddard, a member of the graduating class, expressed appreciation of the recipients to the Wheat Pool for the action in making the initial membership available to students.

Dr. W. C. Broadfoot, president of the Northern Alberta Local, was in charge of the proceedings.

The King's Grandfather "Shoots" the Chaudiere

Having fulfilled an important purpose of his visit to Canada in 1860—the cornerstone of the new House of Parliament in Ottawa "well and truly laid"—H.R.H. Albert Edward, first Prince of Wales to visit Canada, turned to lighter things. Fêtes, entertainments and receptions were climaxed with a descent of the Chaudiere Falls on the Ottawa River.

The Royal party, some twenty people, embarked upon a crib, part of a large lumber raft, which floated down slides or inclined planes adjoining the Falls to the smooth water below. The whole slide was divided into sections, some much steeper than others, by "floating aprons" of timber to break the speed. The trip was found "very exciting".

The year 1847, thirteen years prior to this historic visit, witnessed the birth of the Canada Life, the first Canadian life insurance company. In 92 years of progress, the Company has grown to be one of the strongest of co-operative organizations, and now distributes an average of approximately five hundred thousand dollars each week to those it serves.

The Agreement Ratified

The Senate gave final approval to the bill ratifying the trade agreement with the United States, without a division. That is rather surprising. Still more surprising is the ground taken by Senator Meighen for not arraying his opposition Senators against the bill. The treaty will not, he said, help to develop trade between Canada and the United States, but it should be approved because it helped to bring about better trade relations between Great Britain and the United States by making possible the conclusion of the parallel agreement between those countries.

Not very many weeks ago Dr. Manion told the House of Commons it was all bosh to claim the agreement had contributed anything to better relations between Britain and the United States. And he and his followers voted against it, though apparently without much relish for being put on the record.

The Opposition leaders in the two houses thus diametrically opposed each other, both in the action they took and in the reasons they gave. Their only common ground was that neither believed the easing of the tariff barriers would promote trade between the two countries; and on that point they are shown to be wrong. The agreement went into effect at the first of the year and Canadian exports to the United States have gone up sharply since it went into operation.

Spring Conditions

Spring conditions in the west appear to be generally more favorable than they have been for some years, and as favorable as they have been in what are known for purposes of distinction as "normal" years. A heavy snow-fall during the winter made up for the lack of subsoil moisture that was complained of last fall over a large part of Saskatchewan and a smaller area in this province. Cool weather and frequent showers have prevented the soil drying excessively during the thawing season. In some districts in central Alberta, as well as in other parts of the prairie region, the land is yet too wet to work and seeding may be somewhat delayed locally on that account. Over the west generally the prospect is that crops will get away to a fine start, and a good deal of seeding has been already done.

On the other side of the account, grasshopper infestation is said to extend over a wider area than last year, but to be less intense in sections which last summer were badly affected. Protective measures in this and the other provinces are in readiness to combat this threat, and generous rainfall in the early growing season would also help to curb the pest.

The daily weather reports seem to indicate that farming operations in the maritimes are no farther advanced than in the west, while in Ontario spring work is not yet at the pitch. Of themselves, and by comparison, spring conditions in the west give ground for hope that the season will be a favorable one here. There is no factor at present known to give cause for apprehension in either of the prairie provinces.

Don't Do It!

In a Calgary court room this week was enacted the sequel to a joy-ride that ended in a tragedy. A resident of that city was convicted of manslaughter, sentenced to one year in prison and forbidden to drive for two years, because he was the driver of a car which struck down and killed a city milkman on a street in the early hours of February 3rd.

Evidence showed that the car was occupied by a party of men who had spent the evening in a drinking bout. The driver, it was said, had imbibed less freely than his companions, but had taken "several drinks", with the results stated. He had never been charged with breaking the law before. He has an invalid wife and a three-year-old son. The man who was killed also left a family.

Coming at the opening of another motoring season the conclusion of the affair provides a warning that is surely terrible enough to arouse interest on the part of all who drive cars—and unfortunately seems to be needed by a minority of drivers in every community. Mr. Justice Ewing in passing sentence drew attention to the fact that "cases of this kind are becoming more prevalent." They are, as everyone knows who reads the newspapers. That should not be, and would not be if all motorists realized the responsibility which rests upon anyone who drives a high-powered vehicle along the streets and highways.

A point to remember is that the most serious part of the punishment to a normally constituted driver is not the jail sentence, but the memory of what his folly cost his victim and the victim's family—and the stigma that will remain long after the sentence has been served.

Drinking and driving should not be mixed.

Dodging the Issue

Premier Mussolini is not sure "whether any reply will be sent to the well-known message" from President Roosevelt. But, in a speech at Rome, he pled not guilty to the implied assumption that he and his Berlin partner might be planning an armed attack on one or more of the thirty countries listed in Mr. Roosevelt's inquiry. The policy of the axis powers, he protested, is "inspired by the criterions of peace and collaboration." But if these criterions are the ones established by the course of recent history it is a policy of imposing the "peace" of death upon other nations by "collaboration" between the two conspirators.

As proof that his intentions must be peaceful the Premier pointed to the vast preparations being made, with his august approval, to hold a world's fair at Rome three years hence. This expense, he suggested, would not be undertaken if there were plans afoot to start a war in Europe. This of course is nothing better than quibbling, the less impressive because it comes from a man who has not been given to beating about the bush when plain talk would serve his ends. Verbal side-stepping is not the "assurance" President Roosevelt asked for, and the heavy-footed Il Duce excites suspicion rather than conviction when he resorts to it.

But one thing Signor Mussolini did not do. He did not bang the door with a characteristic "No", nor did he say anything that would have to be recalled if he later on decides to say "Yes"—or if Hitler decides to say it for him. He did not even abuse the President, as his newspapers have been doing. The farthest he went was to call the President's proposal "absurd"; a convenient word expressing nothing but recognition that Mr. Roosevelt has put him on the "spot" and that he doesn't know what to do about it.

Brantford's member of parliament is up in arms, and properly so, because a moving picture film portrays the life of Dr. Graham Bell without showing that he lived in Brantford while he developed the instrument that made him famous. All he did there, according to the records, was to invent the telephone. Even a biographical producer ought to touch fact once in a while.

An Artist Is Recognized

Probably the news caused no particular excitement in these eventful times, but it is pleasant to hear that Monsieur Paul (Red) Tasse, of the Chateau Laurier barber shop, Ottawa, has been chosen to accompany King George on his trip across Canada.

The Royal tour will enable Mr. Tasse to extend on a national scale a reputation already firmly established among the statesmen of Canada. He knows them all, has shaved them all, and whispered confidentially into their ears at that critical, receptive moment when any man, steaming under a hot wet towel, is in the humor to listen.

Quite likely M. Tasse is one of the most influential men in the country, if we only knew it. To see him whispering advice to Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Bennett talking in deepest confidence with M. Tasse, was one of the most interesting sights of Ottawa until the Chateau's barber shop lost its most lucrative customer early this year.

But M. Tasse is a marvel of discretion. No statesman has ever learned from him another statesman's secrets. You can lie back in his chair and tell the full story of your life, as men tell it to barbers in a moment of steaming confidence, and be sure that it would go no further.

Now the genius of M. Tasse as a barber is being given supreme recognition, but we fancy he has been chosen to shave King George not alone for his technical skill. We like to think it is a recognition also of his character, his integrity and of his charm. There is no more delightful way to start the day, as any Canadian statesman will tell you, than to listen to M. Tasse discuss the world in a large way while he strops his razor thoughtfully and appraises your beard with a skilled, unerring eye.

Charming M. Tasse is blond, jolly, and utterly French-Canadian. The King, under his care, will get off to a good start every morning.—

Diligence in Authorship

James Joyce's anouncement that he will soon publish his sequel to "Ulysses," on which he has worked for the last 17 years, has revived discussions on the subject of painstaking authorship. The Manchester Guardian has delved into literary history for notable examples. Milton, it is recalled, planned "Paradise Lost" when he was 22, brooded over it until he was 50, then spent seven years of blindness on its composition. Gray devoted eight years to his brief "Elegy in a Country Churchyard." "The Divine Comedy" occupied Dante from his 35th year until his death at 66. Goethe wrote his first draft of "Faust" at 20 and finished the last at 80. Virgil devoted eight years to his "Georgics" and over 11 to the "Eneid." Among the novelists, Cervantes gave five years to writing "Don Quixote" and Le Sage took 11 to write "Gil Blas." But the palm probably goes to Flaubert, who spent six years on "Madame Bovary" and 26 on polishing and repolishing "The Temptation of St. Anthony."

In the foregoing list there is no mention of the greatest literary man the English-speaking world has produced. The reason is not far to seek. For Shakespeare did not customarily work for months over passages in his plays. He averaged about two plays a year during two decades or more. When we consider the length and sustained quality of each, it can readily be seen that genius knows no fixed laws of composition.

A Dante may require more than three decades for his "Divine Comedy," and a Flaubert over a quarter century for one novel, but words poured like Niagara from Voltaire and Anatole France, the two greatest stylists the French have produced. Four of Thackeray's greatest novels, all long, appeared within eight years. Dickens completed five of his best and most voluminous works in five years. All of which seems to indicate that while for ordinary mortals diligence and constant revison are esential, the genius may defy the rules and still gain immortality.—

Threes

It is impossible to read without alarm and misgiving accounts of the new army drill, of which a demonstration has been given by some luckless fellows from the 2nd Battalion, Grenadier Guards. Everybody knows, of course, that a modern army must move with the times, and the people of England are by now inured to the idea of infantry who don't march and cavalry who don't ride bowling smartly about the place in a lot of strongboxes on wheels. That is progress. Britain must keep abreast of it, even if this means (as it now does) putting her defenders into a uniform which makes them look like rather effeminate divers who have left their helmets at home.

But Thursday's demonstration produced two innovations which strike at the very roots of our proudest military traditions and which appear to have little justification of the grounds of expediency. "Threes" have superseded "fours." After next month no Englishman will ever again be called upon (except, perhaps, when reconstructing on the tattoo-ground the quaint conventions of the past) to form fours. This graceful and soldierly evolution is to vanish from the drillbook. No longer will the raw recruit thrill to the sergeant's martial (though faintly Chinese) ejaculation of "Wan Wan-tu!" No longer, seemingly, will it matter a rap whether he is an odd or an even number. All he does is to fall in, a member of one of three sections in one of three platoons in one of three companies, the whole body arranged in three rows. It no longer emulates the chorus of a musical comedy, whose members pop engagingly out from behind each other on the slightest provocation; the model now is the chorus of an oratorio, which has a staid, static pattern and the minimum of fun. Moreover—and this is a point which has been arousing grave suspicions in clubland—on falling in a man gauges his distance from his neighbor by (of all things) raising and extending his arm with the fist clenched.

As if this was not enough, the new regulations are extremely unsatisfactory in the matter of fixing and unfixing bayonets. Even since any decent regiment can remember, both these operations have been conducted with eyes studiously averted, in the one case from the rifle to which the bayonet is being fixed, in the other from the scabbard to which it is being returned. This practice was in every way desirable. It was dignified. It maintained vigilance, which will now be relaxed all along the line while we peer downwards, exposing ourselves to a surprise attack. And it infused a pleasing element of uncertainty into the dull routine of the parade-ground, for there was always a chance that someone would stick his bayonet into himself instead of into his scabbard. All this has now been quite unnecessarily changed. It is true that three is a lucky number and that the British Army—if its detractors are right—will need all the luck it can get. But few will feel happy about the transition from fours to threes. Even our foes will have less glory to gain from a victory in the field. The dusky warrior whom Kipling apostrophized—

> An' 'ere's to you, Fuzzy-Wuzzy, with your
> 'ayrick 'ead of 'air—
> You big black boundin' beggar—for you > broke a British square!

—would hardly have got the same kudos for breaking a triangle.—London Times.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

IN DEFENCE OF MUSSOLINI

Now that King Emmanuel of Italy has accepted the crown of Albania as a consequence of the Good Friday war, I'm beginning to wonder if the war wasn't Albania's fault after all. Albania provoked Italy to attack her. She provoked Italy by being small; by having an army of only 1,600 men and a navy of four motor boats and a personnel of 40. How could a great nation that has conquered the hillmen of Ethiopia with armies and aerial fleets; that with the aid of Germany and the British non-intervention pact, in two and a half years brought the betrayed Spanish Loyalists to surrender, be content with peace while a little nation by its weakness enraged her.

France refused to be intimidated by sound and fury; even Britain after letting Italian aircraft and submarines sink British ships and kill British sailors that dared to take food to the Spanish Loyalists, began to show a little of its old-time spirit. Germany had scored its recent triumphs. What right had Albania to rest in peace under the protection of Italy's friendship pact and the Anglo-Italian treaty. It must be made to pay the penalty for being small.

After all, Mussolini did it in the nice way. After bombing the towns, bombarding the coast and landing armies in Albania, he issued a communique stating:

> "The landing of Italian troops in Durazzo conforms with the letter and spirit of the 1927 Italo-Albanian friendship pact as well as with the deep Italian sympathy for the Albanian people."

And he chose the most significant day of the year for his tragedy of betrayal; his crucifixion of helpless trust.

TO ABOLISH RADIO NOISES

Major Edwin H. Armstrong, Columbia University professor of electrical engineering, and inventor of a large number of radio devices, gave a demonstration before the Radio Club of America a couple of weeks ago in abolishing static. He showed that it is unnecessary to have high-power stations. He used two transmitting stations in his demonstration; his own private demonstrating station of 20,000 watts at Alpine, N.J., twelve miles away from the demonstration room, and a similar 600-watt station some miles away.

The 600 watt station was instructed to reduce its power to one watt—scarcely as much as is required to light the bulb of a pocket flashlight. Music and other sounds came in crystal clear. The 20,000 watt station reduced its power to six watts—barely sufficient to operate its equipment. All buzzing and static was blotted out, yet the reception was so good in the large theatre of the University that the assembled engineers could hear the trickle of water being poured from a jug into a glass at the sending station.

Major Armstrong invented the superheterodyne—a marvel of reception in its day. He is now well on the way to perfect static-free reception.

THERE'S MONEY IN CIGARETTES

This is a digest of an enquiry into the cigarette manufacturing companies of United States, made as part of a general enquiry by the Works Progress Administration into a large number of listed corporations. Remembering how much cheaper are cigarettes in United States than in Canada, it's comforting to know that six cigarette manufacturing concerns made $83,000,000 profit on cigarettes in 1937. This averages 8.9 per cent of sales.

Dividends paid out totalled $81,000,000. The return on invested capital was 16.8 per cent. After this, to reach for a cigarette will seem like an act of charity.

BIRTHDAY GIFT FOR NEVILLE

The secret about Prime Minister Chamberlain's umbrella is out. A woman disclosed it. Viscountess Elibank addressed a woman's rural institute rally at Peebles in Scotland a couple of weeks ago. A fortnight before she had tea at 10 Downing Street, and the tea with Mrs. Chamberlain got into her address. She said "Mrs. Chamberlain told me the umbrella was fourteen years old and had been re-covered four times. She had given it to him as a birthday present and he had taken it with him on all his missions in Europe."

Better give Neville a gun for his next birthday, Mrs. Chamberlain.

STRANDED

Returning after dark from the Gulf Stream, in a friend's thirty-foot boat, we suddenly ran aground. For a little while the prospect of spending the night there seemed real. Then we remembered that the tide was rising, and we should get off, as we did.

Everybody gets stranded some time or other, by persisting too long in the wrong course. Fortunate are they who are aground in a rising tide; who are moving with the great constructive and progressive courses of the time; and who have sought accord with the currents of the Divine will.

Alas, for the stubborn, the selfish, the reactionary, who are caught on the shoals by a receding tide. Voyage with the will of God, and you may have set-backs, but you will never become stranded.

Great Pilot of our lives, help us keep the ship of our soul in the broad stream of Thy purpose, living only for Thy kingdom. Amen.

All for Canada

Editor, Bulletin: Will you kindly allow me space in your letter column to express my opinion on matters affecting myself and other citizens. It is announced that the city intends to hard surface from 66 street to 64 street on Fort road at a cost of $16,000. This hard surfacing is needed owing to dust conditions caused by clay and sand being hauled over it to build the Canada Packers' road bed and what fell from the trucks just would not mix with the gravel. But what a price to pay for it—$16,000 for two blocks, or $10,400 per mile. I don't believe in hurting anyone, but I do believe in justice. We heard how Hitler has built up a confidence in the youngsters of Germany, over the air on Wednesday night, all for the state and the state is for all in Germany. We don't want Hitler here; we want Canada, so ruling that all might live. There is nearly all we need except coffee and tea to be found in Canada. McMurray tar sands are only 300 miles away.

We only have 11,000,000 people here. Our national income is staggering for so small a population, yet we have to pay $8,000 for hard surfacing one block. People, there must be something wrong somewhere, and we hope the day is not far distant when a leader will come forward in Canada—a Canadian who says "Canada for all and all for Canada," that we may live and enjoy life abundantly in this wonderful country. The tar sands are ours—let us use them and pay union wages for handing and all other products we need.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Canadian politicians have not changed much with the passage of years; at least some of them have not. Eighty odd years ago, after the fury of the annexationist movement had died out, business having improved and many merchants proving that their politics was their balance sheet, there was a revival of the always slumbering orange and green issue in Upper Canada. The clergy reserves settlement was in its final stage, and the supporters of Bishop Strachan were making their last stand to get the best they could out of the moneys to be received, aided by Roman Catholic support, but opposed by the ultra Protestant.

Lord Elgin never concealed his contempt for the politicians, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic, who appealed to religious prejudice. He could not, of course, voice such contempt officially, but in his private letters to Lord Grey he was outspoken. I quote from a letter dated May 22, 1851:

"There is a certain class of politicians here whose only object is to make political capital out of religious disputes. They are joined by others who are only desirous of mischief and the two together profess to be very indignant with the local government for having referred the matter to England at all. These gentry will during the election try to make capital out of the fact that an imperial act will prevent Canada dealing with the reserves at one stroke, yet these same men in another breath assert that the ministry is under the heel of the Church of Rome and that the Bishop of Quebec is the true administrator of the government."

"My life is really very homelike and my private life is really very publiclike."—Lady Astor.

"Germans of all classes realize they have raised world-wide indignation against them by the Jewish persecution."—Sir Philip Gibbs.

Another German Voice

Editor, Bulletin: Noticing in the newspapers and in daily life more and more spread between nation and nations, I am writing as a German-Canadian, born in the Ukraine, in my own and many friends' names, especially those who came from the Ukraine, or from U.S.S.R., the "Red Paradise," and who saw and felt all the "blessings" of it. We will and should join unanimously to protect our young Canada with all, but "all" our powers, from people, especially those who came in sheep's clothing, but inwardly are ravening wolves. For this reason they are often afraid to sign their own names and show their color and if they have to, they forge their names to Trotzky, Joffe, Litvinoff, Reuter and many others.

As Germans or Ukrainians with our overseas experience, we nationalized and became British subjects, not to be dictated to or ruled but to rule in a real democratic state in a democratic way. It is our duty to see that our beloved King George VI., whose bread we eat and respect, shall not go where the Russian Czar went in Eksterinburg.

"No, sir," replied the boy. "I've seen no giraffe, but I saw a long-necked piebald pony chewing the tops of the trees back there a bit!"

"What about this 'ere universal disarmyment, Bill?"

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

Although the current musical season is not yet finished, those in charge of making plans for next year are already busily engaged and in some instances these have matured. For instance, the Women's Musical club has completed its list of soloists in the Celebrity Series and as has been the case in past years, a glittering array of stars will be heard. The 1938-1939 season of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra is not yet over, but already the soloists who will appear on the 1939-1940 programs have been selected. Thus at this long distance, admirers of this great orchestra are enabled to look forward with pleasurable anticipation to the many delights in store. A glance at the list of soloists reveals leaders in the various fields to be represented. In all 25 soloists have been engaged to appear with the orchestra.

Fritz Kreisler is one of the artists engaged to play with the orchestra, with which he has not been heard as soloist since March of 1922, when he played Mozart's Fourth violin concerto in D Major, with Willem Mengelberg conducting. Seven other violinists will appear with the orchestra during the season, namely, Mishel Piastro, the orchestra's concert master; John Corigliano, who shares the first desk with Mr. Piastro; Yehudi Menuhin; Erika Morini; Robert Virovai; Zino Francescatti and Anatol Kaminsky.

Fourteen pianists will appear, namely, Vladimir Horowitz, who is Arturo Toscanini's son-in-law; Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, the famous Florentine composer; Myra Hess, English pianist; Ernest Hutchison; Simon Barer; Robert Casadesus; Ania Dorfman; Walter Gieseking; Sergei Rachmainoff and Rudolf Serkin and in two-piano works Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson and Josef and Rosina Lhevinne. The two cello soloists who will appear are Joseph Schuster, solo cello of the orchestra, and Emmanuel Feuermann. Sigurd M. Rascher, saxophonist, who is professor at the Royal Danish Conservatory in Copenhagen, also will be heard with the orchestra.

John Barbirolli will fulfill his third full season as regular conductor of the orchestra. Georges Enesco will conduct two concerts and Albert Stoessel will conduct on Easter Sunday, March 24.

England is undergoing a rapid change in regard to dance favorites. Scarcely does one become accustomed to one dance when a new one supplants it. Last fall the Lambeth Walk swept the British Isles and penetrated to the continent and over to this side, being highly successful here. Then with the announcement of the visit to this country of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth a new dance entitled the Chestnut Tree appeared. Founded on an old song and with a picture of King George visiting a camp at which the dance was done, this has become widely popular and is just catching on hereabouts. But from England comes word that another favorite is out, entitled Park Parade. A lady by the name of Adele England has devised the steps to go with all three of these numbers.

Encouraging reports are heard of the playing of the junior symphony orchestra sponsored by the National Institute of Music and conducted by Ray Le Roy Olson. The large ensemble of very young players is heard over CFRN and from all accounts is acquitting itself with infinite credit.

The summer season for musicians is approaching and soon dance bands for the various resorts will be formed and many players will leave the city for other parts. While definite information is lacking on the activities of most of the boys, it is reported that Joe De Courcy and his orchestra which has played at the Jasper Park Lodge for the last two seasons, will return there again this year. It is reported that some Edmonton men will furnish the music at Harrison Hot Springs for the summer. These and many other spots will be busy for the next several months.

Information from Winnipeg is that Tom Gardner, for many years resident here and one of this city's leading violinists and conductors, will locate in that city. As a member of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra and leader in several theatres, and conductor of several CBC programs originating here, Mr. Gardner won for himself a splendid reputation, and his many friends here will wish him well in Winnipeg.

Music lovers here will hear with pleasure of the success achieved by a former city vocalist and teacher who has won high laurels in Medicine Hat. Mrs. H. H. Matthews, formerly Fiona Scott, now a resident of the "Hat," recently took part in the pre-anniversary service of St. John's church in that city, and the clerk of the session, in writing her following her participation in the service, states that in both solo and choir work she merited warm praise. "Everybody appreciates good singing," he writes. "Congratulatory messages have been heard on all sides together with the wish that you will shortly be with us again. Please be assured that we are all delighted with your very gracious and inspiring assistance." Mrs. Matthews is a daughter of Mrs. B. H. Scott, of 9442 100th avenue, this city.

STUDEBAKER SALES SOAR NEAR HIGH MARK IN MARCH

WALKERVILLE, Ont., April 22.—Sales of Studebaker passenger cars and trucks soared to near record heights during March, according to a report released today by M. S. Brooks, president of the Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Ltd.

"Factory shipments during March just concluded," stated Mr. Brooks, "were better than any other March in the past seven years. Perhaps another way of appreciating how our business has spurted is to state that March sales exceeded the combined totals for the preceding November, December, January and February.

"While the sudden popularity of the new Studebaker Champion—our entry into the lowest price field—had quite a lot to do with our sales increase, nevertheless our Commander and President passenger car lines and our trucks also contributed heavily. Volume shipments of the new Studebaker Champion did not commence until well past the middle of the month, and even now we have succeeded in sampling only about 75 per cent of our dealers.

"Prospects for the immediate future are of a most promising nature. We enter April with 522 per cent more orders on hand than as of a year ago today, and there is every likelihood," concluded Mr. Brooks, "that we will enjoy the best April sales in more than a decade."

PAPER OPPOSES ANY CHANGE IN ROYALTY PLANS

LONDON, April 22—Condemning "defeatist apprehension", the Daily Mail (Independent) today strongly opposed any change in the royal plans to use the battle cruiser Repulse on the voyage to Canada.

"The suggestion is being made in certain quarters," it observed, "that the King should not travel to Canada in the H.M.S. Repulse. Such a proposal takes no account of the facts, and it is most uncomplimentary to His Majesty.

"The King and Queen, on this auspicious visit to the oldest of our great dominions, should travel in one of His Majesty's ships. For the sovereigns of this country above all else are sailors, and it would be an humiliating spectacle for the royal navy to see His Majesty sail down the wide waters of the St. Lawrence in any other but one of his own men-o'-war."

Your Health – By Dr. Frank McCoy

Hydrochloric acid is normally secreted by the healthy stomach and is a very necessary aid to digestion. However in some cases, there is an increase in the amount of acid thrown out, and patients with this symptom are told they have gastric hyperacidity.

The person who is manufacturing this strong acid in too large a quantity will experience various symptoms which are troublesome, such as a burning sensation, or a gnawing feeling, or heartburn, or a feeling of being hungry, or the belching of a sour-tasting fluid.

He usually finds out for himself that the taking of food or the drinking of a liquid will bring temporary relief.

In patients with this tendency, emotional strain or nervous tension will make the symptoms markedly worse. This explains why the adoption of a soothing regimen will so often produce considerable improvement.

Hyperacidity of the stomach is one of the few disorders in which the appetite is good—in fact, it is usually heightened in such a way as to make the patient believe he is hungry a short time after eating.

The symptoms are most likely to appear when the stomach is empty, at which time, the excess of acid is irritating the stomach wall. If the patient misses a meal, the resultant gnawing will cause discomfort and it is sometimes hard to convince the patient that his distress is due to stomach irritation rather than to any real need for food, arising from true hunger.

In the average case it will be found that too much stomach acid is caused by using more food at one time than the stomach can take care of readily, or by using bad mixtures of food.

Digestion is chiefly a chemical process, being carried on by the chemical action of the digestive juice. One of the most important digestive secretions is hydrochloric acid, and the stomach is encouraged to secrete this acid in large quantities by meals which are highly seasoned, or by the use of too much food of the kind which stimulates acid secretion such as meat, and by other dietetic errors.

When you eat too much food at one meal, or use too many food mixtures, the only way the stomach can meet the situation is by secreting more of the gastric juice than would ordinarily be required. Thus the habit is formed of secreting more gastric juice than would be necessary if you ate more wisely. As the digestive juice, which is strongly acid, is thrown into the stomach, it will cause irritation which is relieved by taking more food which serves to soak up the acid present.

A simple remedy which will bring temporary relief is the use of baking soda in warm water, as the soda neutralizes the acid. However, this method can not be relied upon to effect a permanent cure. In helping the patient overcome the tendency to gastric hyperacidity, the best plan is to use a plain water fast for a few days. The patient drinks water freely, taking it as often as a glass every half hour while awake. One daily enema is also taken. After the fast, less acid will usually be secreted.

When a careful diet is then adopted it is generally possible to remain completely free from the symptoms due to "too much acid."

ROCKY MOUNTAIN DIVISION MEETING DATES RELEASED

The board of the Rocky Mountain House school division has announced the following dates for subdivision meetings:

Subdivision 1, Saturday, June 17, in the Legion hall at Rocky Mountain House; subdivision 2, Monday, June 19, in Caroline hall; subdivision 3, Saturday, June 24, in Dickson school; subdivision 4, Wednesday, June 21, in Leslieville hall; subdivision 5, Thursday, June 22, in Eckville hall.

All meetings will start at 2 p.m.

Guy Fitch was elected president of the newly-formed Centreville Horse club, while Les Johnson was named secretary and L. Erickson, B. Begstrom and Walter Milne were named as directors.

The Centreville Agricultural society recently determined to purchase a pure bred Belgian stallion owned by Blakely Bros. of Red Deer. The society will hold its next meeting May 6.

Jack McBride has purchased a pure bred Aberdeen Angus bull from the C.P.R. farm.

PONOKA

Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer; A. J. Hooke, M.L.A., and member of the Social Credit board, and Mrs. Edith Rogers, M.L.A., will be the speakers at the official opening of the provincial government treasury branch in Ponoka on Wednesday.

Unanimous resolutions urging continuance of the wheat board and on conscription of all wealth in the event of war were passed at a recent meeting of the Ponoka C.C.F. organization. Miss Margaret Archibald and E. J. Garland were the guest speakers.

The following officers were elected to head the organization in 1939: President, I. D. Taylor; vice-president, Chas. Johnson; directors, D. Nelson, Chas. Kay, Wallace Archibald, A. Molson of Rimbey, C. Iverson of Leedale, J. A. Barwick of Willesden, and F. W. Plank of Iola.

FORESTBURG

At the annual meeting of the Forestburg board of trade Hans Farvolden was elected president and A. E. Gardiner vice-president, for the ensuing year. John McLeod was named secretary-treasurer.

It was decided to hold Forestburg's annual sports on Wednesday, June 7. W. R. Bowen was elected president of the sports committee, with Messrs. Willing and Gosnell as secretary and assistant secretary respectively.

A public meeting has been called for Monday, April 24, to make arrangements for sending the children of this and neighboring districts to Edmonton for the Royal visit on June 2.

WETASKIWIN

A number of local men are busy this week demolishing the old city hall which was built in 1904 and which since that time has served as council chamber, police court, police station and fire hall. Supervisor is Mr. Miller. Tenders will be called for construction of the new civic centre and the work will commence immediately.

Pending the erection of the new building the old creamery is being used as a temporary fire hall. It is contemplated that an up-to-date electric siren will replace the old bell which has been used for years to sound the fire alarm.

DIDSBURY

At a joint meeting of the councils of Olds and Didsbury, and the municipalities of Mountain View and Westerdale, architects were chosen for the building of two new hospitals. The architects will be Rule, Wynne and Rule, of Edmonton.

Plans were submitted for a building to cost in the neighborhood of $22,000. It will be 37x112 feet, and will have accommodation for 20 beds on one floor.

An application is being made to the Dominion government for a loan under the Municipal Assistance act.

LLOYDMINSTER

Last rites for Richard Roebuck, farmer in the Big Gully district near Lloydminster since 1912 and well known school worker, were held in Lloydminster earlier in the week. Rev. Canon J. F. Haynes officiated.

R. L. Shaw, of Lloydminster, announced recently that a location has been chosen half a mile south of the Lloydminster Royalites new oil producer for a well to be known as Shaw's Petroleum. Contracts have already been let to dig the cellar and equipment will be moved in next week.

Heavy Traffic, Gravel Shortage Damage Highway

Heavy traffic and shortage of gravel caused considerable damage to highway 13 during the winter and spring, and in order to hasten repairs, the department of public works has two extra maintainers in operation.

A few farmers have started work on the land, but faced with the possibility of wheat bringing less than the cost of production, many have lost that "early bird" ambition of past years.

HARDISTY

An entertaining meeting was held by the St. Paul United church Young People's society recently in Hardisty during which Rev. I. N. Hughson gave a talk on the value of going the "extra mile." An amateur contest by members of the organization concluded the evening's entertainment.

About 40 guests were present at the social held recently by the Masonic organization in Hardisty.

INNISFAIL

Funeral services for Chris. Moffatt, farmer and stock raiser in the Knee Hill district for the past 40 years, were held Friday from the United church at Innisfail. He was active in school and municipal affairs. He is survived by his wife, six sons and two daughters.

BYEMOOR

Ira McLean, who is being transferred to Turner Valley by the Crown Lumber Co., was guest of honor at a dinner held by business men in Byemoor recently. V. Lawrence of Delia will take over the position recently vacated by Mr. McLean.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

AGED PIONEER DIES FOLLOWING HEART ATTACK

Mrs. Frances May, 77, died of a heart attack in her sleep Monday night. She is survived by two daughters in Saskatchewan, a daughter and son in Vancouver, a daughter, Mrs. W. Duncan, and a son, Charles, here. Rev. R. K. Peck conducted the funeral service, with interment taking place at Stauffer.

A chimney fire at Frank Allwood's residence gave the fire brigade its first run of 1939 recently. Slight damage was done to the outside of the roof.

H. Girard, of Hardindell district, had two bones in his shoulder cracked when a railway tie he was loading onto a truck, slipped and fell against him. He was brought to the doctor and is doing nicely.

Rosemary Chisholm, 13, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen T. Chisholm, narrowly escaped drowning when she walked out on rotten ice on the North Saskatchewan river while playing with friends near the river. When Rosemary fell in, Arnold Spoor, 17, plunged in and managed to grab her and carry her to shore.

INNISFAIL

Last Sunday marked the dedication of the new Nazarene church in the Aberdeen district, five miles east of Innisfail, when Rev. Swarth of Edmonton, Rev. McDonald of the Northern Bible College of Red Deer and Rev. Vincent were the guest speakers. Rev. Cheeseman is the minister in charge and this week special evangelistic services are being held.

Movie Industry Joins University California in Cinematography School

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

HOLLYWOOD, April 22.—The movie industry joined with the University of Southern California today to establish America's first graduate school of cinematography where students can learn to make talkies, then step directly into Hollywood jobs.

The school, which will produce actual feature length movies on its own sound stages, will open in June, 1940, and will accept for two years of practical picture study, graduates of any American university able to pass its entrance examinations.

Upon completing the course, students virtually will be guaranteed positions in such studios as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 20th Century-Fox, and others. The Association of Motion Picture Producers now is working out the details with Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, president of the university.

All participants in the arrangement credited Sol Lesser, president of Principal Productions, with starting the project and even with financing the opening of the school. Lesser, who has made a fortune specializing in the pictures featuring juveniles, said he had been thinking of the scheme for years.

"The picture business is the only large industry in the country which has no machinery for the development of its own brain power," he said. "The big industries, like chemicals and autos and electrical equipment, all have arrangements with engineer schools, whereby their graduates find jobs and gradually work their way up.

"In the movie business, we have to raid some other line of endeavor for our manpower."

BAWLF

Farmers are busy on the land in the Bawlf district. Field work is fairly general throughout the area.

L. M. Bergum and family left for Meeting Creek where they have purchased a C.P.R. farm. The farm was recently vacated by the Anton Olson family.

Rev. and Mrs. R. N. T. Braa and family left recently for Wetaskiwin where they plan to take up residence.

NORTH BATTLEFORD

A group of 87 Sudeten Germans, members of a party of 25 families who will establish themselves on farm land in the St. Walburg district, arrived in North Battleford via the C.N.R. Thursday in two special coaches. They were welcomed by the board of trade and provided with refreshments. They left for St. Walburg Friday morning.

Britain's Home Defence Forces Are Formidable

LONDON, April 22.—The Earl of Munster, undersecretary of state for war, intimated last night the "formidable" expansion of British anti-aircraft strength "laid the foundation" for an expeditionary force on the continent in event of war.

Speaking for Leslie Hore-Belisha, war secretary, at the opening of a new anti-aircraft brigade drill hall, the Earl declared:

"We could not have gone first to battle abroad with our own citadel left unguarded. Anti-aircraft divisions of the territorial army have now reached a formidable size, nor have we finished our progress of anti-aircraft expansion."

Anti-aircraft units, he said, recruited 25,000 men from April 1 to 15.

CLEANLINESS IS SAFEGUARD CITY HEALTH

Disposal Of Garbage Most Important, Dr. G. M. Little Declares

Proper disposal of garbage and refuse is essential to health of the community, as well as being desirable for the general appearance of the city, it was stated by Dr. G. M. Little, city medical officer of health.

Dr. Little gave unstinted support to the present clean-up, paint-up and plant-up campaign, stating that the city health department was co-operating in every way in making suggestions for better cleanliness and sanitation.

"If citizens do not take precautions with disposal of their garbage, they will have no right to complain of flies which will certainly result from neglect," Dr. Little said.

"Improperly disposed of rubbish is a health hazard that simply cannot be permitted and it is bad in some parts of the city.

"We ask everyone to observe garbage bylaw, which is to keep a covered metal garbage can at the rear of their premises, held securely so that it cannot be upset by dogs. We believe that no person will refuse to observe this regulation.

"Our department at present is inspecting garbage cans and we intend to see that the city is kept as clean as possible."

Concentrate Fleet

LONDON, April 22.—The Admiralty announced Friday the home fleet would be concentrated April 28 at the Portland naval base, midway between Portsmouth and Plymouth. The admiralty said the visit to Portland was just an annual "routine call of a few days."

Semi-Lustre Satin Enamel on new unpainted walls—If you wish to give your walls a pleasing, satiny sheen, follow this method. First coat: Wall Primer and Sealer. Let dry overnight. Suggestions for HOME·REMODELING

THE addition of a porch, the heightening of the attic windows and removing the jutting roof beyond the entrance porch make an old fashioned house into an improved home of good appearance.

Gunnery Practice

BRUSSELS, April 22.—The Belgian general staff Friday ordered gunnery practice at Forts Battice and Tancre-Mont near the German border, with heavy guns to be fired over a 24-hour period ending tonight. Officers said the whole defence system was being tested.

Homes Flooded

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., April 22.—Recurrent floods of Quebec's springtime left 50 families of this industrial city temporarily homeless last night. The rain-swollen Yamaska river swirled through the lower part of St. Hyacinthe, almost 50 miles east of Montreal, and flooded 250 houses.

NINE BURNED TO DEATH WHEN PLANES COLLIDE

PARIS, April 22.—Nine persons were burned to death today when two French bombers collided above the military airport at Tours, bringing to three the number of serious accidents to French aviation within 24 hours.

The crew of five of a third bomber were killed when the plane crashed during night manoeuvres over the Beauvais airport, 45 miles north of Paris.

An undetermined number of persons also were reported burned to death when a French tri-motored plane caught fire in the air over northern Morocco yesterday. First reports from Oran, Algeria, did not say whether it was a military plane or a commercial plane.

Two multi-seater bombers collided over Saint Symphorien airbase near Tours as they were preparing to land. They burst into flames and crashed, burning to death the nine members of the two crews.

SILK STOCKINGS HOLD ATTENTION UPPER HOUSE

OTTAWA, April 22.—Silk stockings and their wearability held attention of the Senate for a large part of Friday's brief session during which Canada's leadership in silk stocking exports was cited as proof of quality of the Canadian product.

The hosiery question came up as the government leader, Senator Raoul Dandurand, moved third reading of a bill amending the Trade and Industry Commission Act to permit setting of standards for certain commodities for which grades have not been established.

Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, questioned constitutionality of the bill but recognized its object could not be attained by a series of provincial statutes. He took occasion then to read a statement from the textile manufacturers replying to charges made when the measure was before the Commons that the silk stocking industry was a "racket" and quality was being deliberately kept down to maintain repeat sales.

Four Fined $25 For Kidnapping Of Toronto Man

TORONTO, April 22.—Convicted of kidnapping Daniel Keller, four men, William Hagerty, William Gordon, Edgar Johnston and Bertie Curtis were each fined $25 and costs when they appeared in court Friday. During hearing of the case Keller said he considered the men his friends and hoped they still were.

Keller testified he was forced to accompany the men in the car April 4 after he had entered the machine at Johnston's request. When he asked to get out after they had been driving for a short time, Keller quoted Johnston as saying: "You know what Hitler does to the Jews—that's what we are going to do with you."

The accused denied saying anything about Hitler or Jews.

British Columbia Population Higher

VICTORIA, April 22.—British Columbia government statisticians Friday said they estimate the province's population in 1938 was 761,000 persons, an increase of 10,000 over 1937 and a gain of 70,000 since the last dominion census in 1931.

Natural increase last year was 3,113 persons, the statisticians said. The rest of the increase is believed due to continued migration of prairie residents to the coast.

Lakes All Aboard!

FOIT STATLEY, April 22—Five days later than last year, Lake Ontario navigation at this port opened with the arrival of the tankers Royalite and Iocolite with gasoline.

Repainting old surfaces—If the wall is finished in oil paint which is in good condition, wash well with soap and water before applying Flat-Tone. If in doubt, use equal parts of Wall Primer and Sealer and Flat-Tone as a first coat. Apply the second coat as it comes from the container.

Case Of Edmonton Chinese Adjourned

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 22.—After a continued hearing in police court here Friday afternoon on a charge of assault on Wong Dick, the case against Jim Sue, an Edmonton Chinese, was adjourned to Tuesday for the evidence of Chinese witnesses. At that time, it is hoped that interpreters acceptable to both parties will have been obtained. Hearing of similar charges against five other Edmonton Chinese will follow.

Flat-Tone on new unpainted walls—First take care of the natural porosity of the walls by applying a first coat of Wall Primer and Sealer. Let dry overnight. Then use Flat-Tone in the desired color as it comes from the container.

Flying Activity At Camp Borden

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., April 22.—After a lapse of two years, airplanes again are flying daily at this government training camp 50 miles northwest of Toronto. Chief activity is a special course for instructors from civil flying clubs to enable them to train Royal Canadian Air Force recruits. Instructors are here from Winnipeg, Vancouver and Edmonton, among other places.

A.C.T. Incorporated

OTTAWA, April 22—Bills passed by the commons banking and commerce committee Friday included one to incorporate the Associated Canadian Travellers with headquarters in Calgary.

BIGGEST DRIVE BEAUTIFY CITY IS UNDER WAY

Junior Chamber Of Commerce Wants Edmonton Smart for Royal Visit

Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce Royal Beautification Campaign committee is launching one of the most concerted drives in the city's history to make Edmonton sparkle with immaculate cleanliness and beauty of garden scenery.

The incentive for this special campaign is the coming visit of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth, the young businessmen's group desiring to have the city presentable both for the royal visitors and the thousands of Alberta citizens who will be in the city on June 2.

Honorary chairman of the committee is Walter P. Wilson, manager of the Capitol theatre, who has campaigned for many years to "make Edmonton the rose city." Chairman of the committee is Geoffrey T. Harris of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

COMMITTEE

Other members of the committee are H. Stewart Douglas, treasurer; A. H. Dickson, W. J. Mackay, O. E. Purin and R. C. Sheldon, all members of the Junior Chamber, a group of 80 young businessmen under presidency of Joel K. Smith.

This organization, which takes an active interest in civic advancement, has come from a limited membership of 30 in May 1938 to its present strength. It co-operates in national projects with the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce.

CAMPAIGN AIM

The particular aim of the campaign is, this year of all years, to smarten up for the Royal visit. To do this we must clean-up, fix-up and paint-up now.

Objectives:

1. To create community pride in a clean-up, fix-up paint-up and plant-up campaign from now until June 1.

To create healthful, sanitary and dignified conditions in this city.

3. To stimulate business.

4. To prepare Edmonton for royalty.

The city of Edmonton, in the various departments, city engineers, city health and city fire, have heartily endorsed the Royal Beautification Campaign. Likewise have the service clubs, Optimist, Lions, Gyro, Rotary, Kiwanis, Cosmo's and Kinsmen given us their support.

What is the best type of finish for a plastered wall?—An oil-base paint, in glossy, or semi-gloss or dull (flat) finish. Choice is governed by the wear the wall gets, personal preference and decorative effect.

Unsuitable Fertilizer Is Wasted

BY DONALD GRAY
Bulletin Landscape Consultant

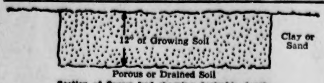
There are short cuts in gardening where money can be saved, but never save money by cheating your plants of their food.

It isn't necessary to spend a lot of cash for fertilizers and topsoil if you follow some simple rules, it is poor economy to try to grow plants of any kind in unproductive land.

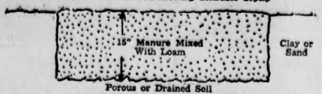
Before planting anything investigate your soil and find out what the soil where plant roots must feed. This humas will also supply the necessary air.

If the soil is acid, sometimes growing a moss on the surface, it can be sweetened by getting peat moss or manure down into the subsoil admitting air.

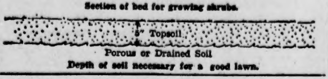
Some plants like delphiniums, need an alkaline soil, then add lime. Add aluminum sulphate to plants like rhododendrons which need an acid condition.



Section of flower bed showing desirable depth.



Section of bed for growing shrubs.



Depth of soil necessary for a good lawn.

soil needs for the kind of plants you want to grow.

Most plants like a neutral or slightly acid soil. Certain types of plants like rhododendron, murel, and azaleas must have acid soil. Buy litmus paper at your drug store, wet some soil, and if the blue litmus paper turns deep red the soil is very acid. If it stays blue it is alkaline.

Most surface soil will grow plants if it has grown a crop of weeds or grass. It contains humas which makes it "topsoil."

The mechanical condition of a flower bed has more to do with growing healthy plants than soil with all the necessary food ingredients. Be sure that the ground around the roots is well drained. If the soil is clay break it up with a little maure. If the soil is sand and the water drains away to quickly add cattle manure to help hold the moisture. Get humas into

If the soil needs analyzing send a sample of it to your provincial agricultural experiment station. They will tell you what chemical fertilizers to use.

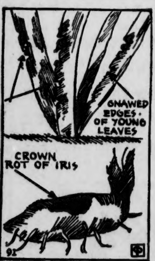
There are many named varieties of commercial fertilizers for sale and available at your garden supply store. Use them only after you have determined for yourself what your soil lacks. It is worse than useless, it is throwing money away, to add a fertilizer high in nitrogen when actually your soil needs phosphate.

One of the most economical ways to make good soil for growing vegetables, flowers, and shrubs, even a lawn, is to mix sandy or clay topsoil with ashes or agricultural slag. Then grow a green crop such as winter rye or soy beans and turn this green manure under the surface of the ground before planting. It beats all other fertilizers. Next is cattle manure which is not always available to the amateur gardener.

Today's Garden-Graph

When transplanting iris, check them carefully for signs of the work of the iris borer, or any indication of crown rot.

Fig. 1 of this Garden-Graph shows the frayed, gnawed edges of the iris foliage which is the work of the iris borer. These small borers will be found on the inside of the foliage and can be crushed when located, or better still, remove and burn the foliage infested with them.



GNAWED EDGES OF YOUNG LEAVES
CROWN ROT OF IRIS

Iris enemies.

The most dangerous disease of iris is rot. Usually the first indication of this is falling of the foliage. Fig. 2 of the Garden-Graph shows the rotted section which should be cut out, back to the clean, solid flesh, then disinfected with potassium permanganate. All tools used in caring for irises should also be disinfected. When the rhizomes are badly infected they should be destroyed by burning.

The chief causes of rot are overcrowding, lack of sun and drainage, or being planted too deeply.

A sponge stipple effect—At any paint store you can select the stipple effect you wish. The Flat-Tone color specified as the background is brushed on. Then the stipple colors are mixed. With an open textured sponge (which has been½ washed out in water and is quite damp), the wall is patterned by tapping the sponge directly on to the background color. The entire wall is covered in this manner.

Conflict Within Old Parties May Aid New Move

REGINA, April 22—Inner conflict within the old parties may aid the Herridge movement for uniting progressive political groups in Canada, Tim Buck, leader and general secretary of the Communist party of Canada, said here last night.

Buck said he had learned a few minutes after his arrival here that his projected Sunday night meeting at the Trianon dance hall had been cancelled, but that plans were being made for an open air meeting in a park instead.

How to secure an actual texture in painted walls—For this type of texture use wall paint heavy body over a first coat of wall primer and sealer. Apply wall paint heavy body tinted to the desired shade with first quality oil colors, with a regular four-inch wall brush, laying the paint on in short strokes using a full brush, and more or less "trowel" it on so it will be "full of brush marks." Allow the paint to 'set' for a few minutes before texturing or stippling as per instructions on package.

To finish the woodwork in enamel—The secret of beautiful, smooth, tile-like enamel finishing is a surface that has been sandpapered smooth, covered with enamel undercoater and finished with satin enamel or high gloss enamel—a method requiring more effort, but worth it.

BIKE RIDING IS POPULAR SPORT FOR SPRINGTIME

Springtime! It means gardening for some folk, plowing and seeding for farmers, new car models appearing on the streets—and for just plain "kids," springtime means that the time has come for bicycle jaunts.

And it isn't only youngsters who find bicycles both useful and enjoyable. Scores of middle aged men are seen riding bicycles on Edmonton streets every day. They provide an economical and fairly fast mode of transportation, as well as a very exhilarating way of taking one's "daily dozen."

The various bicycle clubs around the city are beginning to start their regular spring and summer activities after the winter layoff and are planning bicycle jaunts during days when members are free from work. The Silver Hawks, Olympics and Edmonton Clubs are all swinging into action.

Motorists may find bicycles on the street a nuisance at times, and bike riders should realize that traffic laws were made to be obeyed by them as well as by owners of cars.

All unpainted plaster and composition board walls must first receive one coat of wall primer and sealer before applying any finishes.

Soft Coal Prices Zoom As Supplies In U.S. Diminish

NEW YORK, April 22—Diminishing supplies pushed soft coal to higher price levels today to the benefit of foreign mines as James F. Dewey, federal labor department conciliator, tried to bring deadlocked operators of the eight-state Appalachian area and representatives of United Mine Workers of America to an agreement on a new contract.

Dewey said no progress had been made. In Washington President Roosevelt expressed belief he had power to call the disputants together if no settlement was reached. He made it clear he was not certain at the moment how extensive his authority was. For the second time, Mayor Laguardia asked the president to intervene.

Our Old Country Letter — By J. E. Norcross

J. E. Norcross

LONDON,—(By Mail)—Again, as has happened so frequently in modern times, archaeological research has attested the literal truth of Old Testament narrative. The tomb of the Shishak of Chronicles has been discovered at Sanilhagga in the Nile delta, the ancient Tanis from which, it is believed, the Israelites started on their exodus to the Promised Land.

In Chronicles 2, XII, it is related that in the fifth year of Rehoboam, King of Judah, Shishak, King of Egypt, "came up against Jerusalem . . . with twelve hundred chariots, and three score thousand horsemen . . . and . . . took the fenced cities which pertained to Judah . . . and took away the treasures of the House of the Lord, and the treasure of the king's house; he took all; he carried away also the shields of gold which Solomon had made."

A few days ago King Farouk of Egypt raised the lid of a silver sarcophagus and gazed on the mummy of Shishak, his ancient predecessor, exposed to view for the first time in 2,800 years.

The discovery of the tomb is no less important than the discovery of that of Tut-Ankh-Amen seventeen years ago. It is not likely, however, to attract the same attention. The world today is pre-occupied with the assaults of a modern Shishak on neighboring peoples to trouble itself overmuch about the explorations in the Delta of Professor Montet, of Strasbourg University.

"We do not feel that we should be justified in supplying them at present."

That is Lancashire's patriotic answer to an offer from Germany of a big contract for cotton piece goods suitable for balloon cloth and airplane fabrics.

Attractive terms were offered on the Manchester Royal Exchange but no manufacturer could be found who was willing to fill the order. And of all the major British exporting industries none has suffered more severely from depression during recent years than cotton manufacturing.

Lancashire got the worst of it when the Ottawa pact was made between Great Britain and India. The cotton industry has been fighting for better terms ever since and meanwhile has seen its exports to the sub-continent dwindle and dwindle.

At long last a fair deal has been secured by the conclusion of a new Anglo-Indian agreement which links cotton goods exports with imports of Indian raw cotton on a sliding scale. It is expected that reduced duties will increase the annual total of exports to 500,000,000 yards from the 267,000,000 yards to which it has fallen.

At the outset of a war Great Britain might be badly smashed by air raids; indeed precautionary measures are being taken on the basis that hundreds of thousands of casualities may have to be dealt with in London and the big cities during the first days and weeks.

But sea-power is still the master force and, despite all post-war developments of the offensive, British supremacy at sea has not been in the least menaced. And, so long as the fleet remains in being, Britain, no matter what her people may suffer, will continue to be unconquerable.

All this was demonstrated by Mr. Geoffrey Shakespeare, parliamentary and financial secretary to the admiralty, when he introduced the naval estimates in the house of commons.

The fleet, he said, was so strong that it could confidently accept a direct challenge in battle by any combination of foes.

Any future submarine menace would not be so effective as in the last war, he continued. We were now ready to institute a convoy organization on any route. More than 2,000 anti-submarine guns were ready and about 1,000 merchant ships had been "stiffened" to take defensive armament. Nine thousand officers of the merchant navy had already taken courses in convoy protection and gunnery.

Armament and equipment for a large number of ships to be taken over for anti-submarine work were in stock. Our methods of detecting, hunting and killing submarines were more advanced than any in the world.

Mr. Shakespeare went into details of the naval program, indicating the increases in the several classes now building or to be laid down in the immediate future, aggregating 200 vessels and 870,000 tons in the dockyards this year.

It was, in short, a very comforting story that Mr. Shakespeare had to tell and even Mr. Winston Churchill, stern critic of all the departments of defence, gave general approval to the work of the admiralty—and Mr. Churchill, it is hardly necessary to say, is an expert on naval affairs. It was under him as First Lord of the Admiralty that the fleet was prepared for 1914 and was found ready for action to the last rope-end.

In view of the pressure on the government from more than one quarter to institute compulsory service in one form or another, outright conscription, conscription of the unemployed, or compulsory training of all young men, the council has cause to emphasize its point of view. There is no indication, however, that the government favors compulsion of any kind. It has refused to consider even a compulsory national register.

This is the one point on which the British ministry and the French government differ. France thinks Great Britain should impose conscription outright in order to pull her full weight in the event of a European war. Mr. Chamberlain and his colleagues believe they can get all the men needed for the present and immediate future on the voluntary system.

Incidentally, it may be remarked that the only member of the present government who was a member of the Asquith government when war broke out, Sir John Simon, resigned when Mr. Lloyd George declared for conscription.

Everything may be changed, however, should the guns begin to speak or even seem to be about to do so. When the emergency arises the country will take whatever measures appear to be necessary with almost complete unanimity. Conscription and billeting are hateful to the British people but that will make no difference. In point of fact, the nation is already setting its teeth, not without a certain feeling of relief because, never having felt sure of Herr Hitler, it now knows the worst.

Princess Elizabeth is no longer a little girl. She will be thirteen years of age on April 21 and already changes have been made in the routine of her life in line with the definite policy laid down when the probability was recognized that she might one day succeed to the throne.

She has emerged from the nursery and now has her own sitting-room, apart from the other rooms of the suite in Buckingham palace which she shares with her sister. According to a writer in a leading newspaper, the King and Queen, who took care that she was not spoiled or petted as a child, are now seeing to it that she is given confidence in herself and opportunities to take the initiative.

In short, the Princess is being taught to stand on her own feet—in contrast to the bringing-up of her great ancestress, Queen Victoria,, who, until she was eighteen was never allowed to descend a staircase without some one holding her hand and, until her accession, was not allowed even a bedroom of her own, sleeping always in her mother's room.

It is stated that Princess Elizabeth is to come out when she is 16. She will thereafter be present at state banquets, undertake important public engagements attended by her own ladies-in-waiting and unaccompanied by any other member of the Royal Family, and be addressed as "Your Royal Highness" instead of as "Princess."

She will also have her own tradesmen, her own accounts, and her own income.

She is already a hostess in her own right, entertaining young friends, specially invited by herself, at small lunch and tea parties.

Ships At Suez

PORT SAID, April 22—The 5,200-ton British cruiser Penelope and the 1,335-ton destroyer Greyhound arrived here at the northern entrance to the Suez Canal Friday. A British cruiser and five destroyers arrived a week ago at Alexandria on the opposite side of the Nile delta.

Main Reindeer Herd Moved To Fawning Grounds

OTTAWA, April 22—Following a successful winter on their inland range, Canada's main reindeer herd, now numbering about 3,500, has been moved to the fawning grounds on Richards Island, a short distance off the Arctic coast, according to reports received from the reindeer station in the Mackenzie delta area.

The smaller herd of about 900 deer, separated from the main herd last December and established in the Anderson river area under native management, has been brought to the mouth of the Anderson river for fawning and summer grazing, the reports said.

ROVER CREWS TO CONTRIBUTE 1ST AID PATROL

St. John's Ambulance To Be Assisted By Scouting Body

City Rover Crews have been called upon lately by the Royal Visit committee to contribute first aid patrols for service during Their Majesties procession through Edmonton. Those Rovers selected to service will assist other specially chosen first aid bodies including the ambulance division of the local militia and the regular St. John's Ambulance Brigade.

Once again it is the privilege of the Scout organization to profer a helping hand to civic authorities and it will be a particularly well-trained unit that leaves its Rover dens and takes this important part of the procession structure for it will include a number of newly-trained first aid men.

During March and April the Sixth Rover Crew sponsored a first aid course open to all local Rovers which, under the supervision of doctors and other first aid specialists, taught the fundamentals of life-saving, bandaging and repairing of broken limbs.

Last week those attending the course were tested and successfully qualified for the senior St. John's ambulance certificate recognized as a high tribute to first aid ability. Those obtaining the certificates were: Stanley Long, Mr. Tebbs, Mr. Walton, Mr. Leitch, C. Rice, G. McConnell, A. Woodland, W. Rylance, C. Hancastle, S. Cooper, P. Fowler and D. Lazerle.

During the last few months Red Deer has swung into the Scouting limelight with its outstanding achievement of keeping two full troops flying the Scout colors, and recently a father and sons' banquet to which all Red Deer scouts and their parents were invited was held in the Elks hall and to it rallied over two hundred Scouting supporters from the district. Mayor E. S. Hogg presided over the meeting and commended the Red Deer scout leaders highly for the fine work they are accomplishing.

W. S. Backman, provincial secretary of the Boy Scouts Association brought greetings from the provincial council while James Arnot, Rev. D. Smith, Rev. J. H. Low and J. Welsh, all prominent Red Deer citizens, spoke in praise of their local Scout organization. Highlight of the evening was Mr. Arnot's speech in which he pointed out that expenses involved in maintaining Scouting were quite high they became insignificant when compared with the cost of maintaining prisons and reformatories and it has been clearly demonstrated by juvenile court records that boys who pass through a period of Scout training are never found associated with the criminally maladjusted.

The Sixth Holy Trinity Cub Pack held their annual concert Tuesday and a program put on by members of the pack drew applause from an audience of between 100 and 150 boys and their parents. Two playlets, "A Wolf Cub's Dream" and "Tracking the Gang" were presented as well as several interesting cubbing displays.

Mr. Duke, cubmaster, and his assistants supervised while nearly every member of the pack took some part in the various numbers. Special credit goes to P. Greenwood and J. Thomson who arranged the makeup and the Cub mothers whose encouragement and help did much to make the show a success. Scout H. Grouard gave the intermission a Scottish twist playing a bagpipe solo.

Delton Baptist Scouts Invested

Delton Baptist 28th troop held an investiture at their last weekly meeting with H. Holloway, district commissioner, officiating as the special guest of the evening. Mr. Holloway conducted the ceremony which officially ushered Scoutmaster M. Hilman and assistant R. Thompson into Scout circles as full fledged leaders.

The newly organized Delton troop is rapidly advancing its Scouting program and the formal investiture of several new recruits was also carried out. Five local Scouts received Royal Visit King Scout certificates awarded for their Boy King Scout tests during the present campaign which headquarters are sponsoring to get as many holders of this coveted badge as possible before the advent of the Royal visit.

Pierre Madore and Leon Roy of the 27th troop and R. Grout and K. and B. Lawrence of the second troop will soon be presented with their badges.

Edmonton High School Students Are Bulletin Correspondents

WESTMOUNT

By Bert Nightingale

Returning to the campus after the Easter break-up, we found that most of the students had enjoyed a more than welcome holiday with various diversions being put into practice. For instance, Ralph Loder spent his days selling advertising space for the Year Book; Don Arnett and Craig Moon journeyed to Winnipeg for the conference of the Hi-Y club; Nolan Henderson made Calgary his place of relaxation; Elaine Calver did likewise. Most of the students, however, remained in Edmonton, enjoying the Alberta sunshine.

Keith Huff, editor of the Year Book, has started definitely on that project, having had material submitted Tuesday by the reporters. It is expected that the volume will be published about the middle of May.

McDOUGALL COMMERCIAL

By Dorothy Robb

With the holidays over and school well under way again, the last lap of the school year is still to be run. Those unfortunates who wrote exams before the holidays were presented with their results during the week, and there was very little said on the matter.

The bowling cup is to reside at Victoria this year, for Vic's "Alley Cats" proved to be a little too much for Commercials' "Happy Gang" in the final games played during the holidays. The cup and various other prizes were presented to the winners at the annual bowling banquet and dance last Friday.

Next Friday another Lit, probably the last one of the term, will be put on in the form of a mock broadcast, and during the program the athletic awards will be presented to those on winning teams or students who have won points for the school.

ST. JOSEPH'S

By Rene Boileau

During the Easter holidays the boys of our school were hosts at a dance in St. Mary's auditorium, but they have returned to the halls of St. Joe's to resume their studies.

Plans for the year play, "Youth Comes Tripping," were discussed at the executive meeting on Tuesday. This hilarious comedy which is under the direction of Laurier Picard, promises to be one of the best plays ever produced by the school. Tickets for this are being printed; the dates for the presentations being set as May 18, 19 and 20.

It was decided to purchase two cups immediately, one to be put into use as a reward for the school's best "ping-pong" player each year. The other will probably be given to the class showing the best dramatic talent in a proposed drama festival.

STRATHCONA COLLEGIATE

By Mary Barbara Mason

With furrowed brow and hastened step the Editor-in-chief Sam Leiberman of the Strathcona year book ponders over the last minute details as the book is being prepared for the printers. Advertising manager Ernest Towne, his work over, is resting on his laurels.

Cover design, inspired by the Greek statue, Raden, the Thinker, was executed by Bob McDermid in maroon and gold. The three school colors, maroon, gold and green in which the book is printed in its entirety gives it the name "The Tricolor."

VICTORIA

By Gordon Brown

Plans for three parties were made by the V.H.S. Students' Union Wednesday. The academic party will be held May 5, the graduation banquet and dance, May 19, and the Dramatics Club reward on May 26.

School artists are to be busy in the next few weeks, designing the special crests to be awarded the outstanding boy and girl of each grade.

Tennis at Vic got away to an early start Tuesday when the spring organization meeting was held under direction of Mr. Dobson. The attendance of over 40 students seems to indicate a successful season for the racket-eers.

TECHNICAL

By James McBride

Second issue of the "Tech" 'Pinion has been very enthusiastically received by the Student body. Made up of reports of the various clubs and committees, room reporters were on their toes and the result is that several columns of the "I wonder why" type are contained in the paper.

Two rather unusual features of the paper are reports of boys' shop work by girls and reports of girls' work by boys. The result has been fairly interesting. The girls expressed their opinion of the boys' work and actions in class in no uncertain terms and the boys didn't fail "to rub it in" when a girl in the cooking class burned some toast.

The grade twelves have been having a good time this year. Aside from some parties and a surprise birthday party on Mr. McFarland (which incidentally took up a whole "Trig" period) they have been making plans for graduation. Their plans concern a barn dance and a graduation banquet and dance similar to that held last year in the Corona hotel.

The model aircraft club has also been enjoying itself. At one social evening a raffle was held and Bob Levitt won a kit for the building of a flying stick.

At another meeting the club was entertained by Mr. Robinson, a candid camera and movie camera fan,

YOUTH FAIR IS REVELATION TO GROWN-UPS

Competition Is Rich Experience For Boy and Girl

By JOHN CALDWELL
Publicity Department

"A proving ground for youth, and a revelation to adults of youth's ability" is, in short what the Boys' and Girls' Fair is.

When a lad enters something in the Boys' and Girls' Fair, he learns just where he stands in relation to his hobby, and in relation to other participants in the same hobby. His experiences are enriched in proportion to the amount of time, effort, and skill he exercised in preparing his entries. If he is successful in winning a banner, shield, cup, or other special award, his sacrifices are rewarded with that extra encouragement that means so much to a young person absorbed in his hobby.

The prizes this year are unusually attractive. even cash awards are being made by the Alberta Motor Association for the winning entries in the "Safety First" special essay contest. Special prizes have been promised also by: Gainer's, for the best pie submitted that is made from Gainer's Superior Lard; Jello, for the best dish evolved from Jello products, and Kraft Cheese for the best cheese biscuits or cheese shortbread, etc., made from the Kraft Cheese products. The Ogilvie Flower Mills Co. are offering four cash prizes for the winning entries in the Barnacle Bill Stamp Club exhibit.

A wide variety of silver cups, too, await the lucky top winners. A beautiful cup has been donated by the Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. for the finest piece of art exhibited in the Fair. The cup, which is for annual competition, will become the property of the winner if won three consecutive times. Dunn and Bradstreet offer a cup to the person with the best exhibition in penmanship. Other cups offered for competition are: Jack Williams trophy for the champion pony rider; Poole Construction Co. and the Thomas Craftsmanship cups for distinguished entries in the manual training division; Recreation Bowling Alley Trophy for annual competition amongst bowlers; a cup for annual competition, awarded the boy or girl with highest number of points in the swimming division.

Three Boys' and Girls' Fair "Aggregate Cups" are being presented to the individuals with the highest number of aggregate points.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce offers an "Interschool Trophy" to the school with the highest number of points. Apart from these prizes and cups the usual banners will be given to the winners of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd place in each section, and a shield to the contestant with the best exhibit in each division.

Complete information regarding entries is given in the Boys' and Girls' Fair booklet which may be secured from the Boys' and Girls' Fair Office, Y.M.C.A., or any school prino

C.G.I.T. Notes

Wesley: On April 13 the annual Mother and Daughter banquet was held in the basement of the church. The theme was "Banners Unfurled". It opened with a toast to the King and a welcome to the guests by Audrey Barber. Miss Ellen Tatham led the lively sing-song. Greetings were brought from the Tuxis boys and Boys' Parliament, Edmonton Girls' Council, Edmonton Leaders' Council, and the Edmonton Work Board by Don Hendra, Pat Fairley, Miss Roberta Keifer and Mrs. E. Johnston.

The toast to the Mothers was given by Doris Bartley and responded to by Mrs. Barber. Rev. Scragg spoke on the theme and Miss May Sutcliffe was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

The Jolly Juniors presented a play, "Health Court,". Miss Mary Jackson was the main speaker of the evening. The evening ended with a candle lighting ceremony and Taps.

Scona Baptist: The Zeider Zee group are making plans for their future meetings. Next Tuesday they are planning to go through Pavey's. Miss G. Thompson gave the devotional. The Excelsior group are also making plans.

Knox: They are planning to have their Mother and Daughter banquet on May 12. The committees are busily engaged in getting ready for it.

Norwood: The senior group had a theatre party returning to the church for refreshments.

Garneau: They are making an appliqued baby quilt to be sent to the Lamont hospital.

Erskine: Are continuing with their mission study and are making plans for a banquet to be held in the near future.

Highlands: The Merry Makers, under Miss June Smith are making stuffed animals. The Sparklers had a swimming party at the Y. They are also making bootees for a mission hospital. They are planning to have their banquet on May 9.

First Baptist: They held their banquet on April 14 in the basement of the church. The theme was "Harmony". Rev. C. G. Stone and Mrs. Stone were the special guests. The tables were decorated with black notes on the white table cloths. Marjory Ellis gave the toast to the Mothers which was replied to by Mrs. Mann. Helene Wilkins gave the toast to the church and Mr. Stone replied. Mrs. Stone gave a lovely devotional which was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Mrs. Wentworth gave two recitations. Mrs. F. Barber Smith was the main speaker of the evening. She illustrated her talk by distinguishing between melody and harmony. Part of the Junior choir were present and they sang a part song showing Melody and then a part song showing Harmony.

Norma Pyle the president welcomed the guests. Miss Turpey led a lively sing song. At the end a friendship circle was formed which sang "Follow the Gleam". The evening closed with Taps.

Uncovering Ancient City of Sardis

American scientists have renewed the work of excavating the ancient city of Sardis in Asia Minor. This work was commenced several years ago and was interrupted by the war. An advance party is now at work and Howard C. Butler, of Princeton, has just sailed to assume charge of the work. The temple of Artemis, which is claimed to be the third largest building of its kind built by the Greeks, has been uncovered. The city was at its zenith during the reign of King Croesus and was destroyed by an earthquake in 17 A.D.

ROVER MOOT IS HELD TUESDAY

First quarterly Rover Moot was held at St. Joachims Tuesday when the 27th Rover Crew acted as hosts to about fifty Rovers from various other Edmonton crews.

The Moot featured a visit by provincial assistant Rover commissioner F. Foulds who outlined plans for the coming provincial Scout jamboree and suggested that as many as possible travel to the site of the jamboree the preceding week-end and help with work connected with its preparation.

An inter-crew hike is slated to take place sometime in July while the next Moot will be held in June with the 25th crew taking their turn as hosts.

Evening's entertainment was supplied by members of the 27th and a humorous skit by Rover leaders Gerry Berill and J. Cote together with sing songs and a bean feed concluded the meeting.

Prominent Scouting officials who attended were District Commissioner Knobby Clark, Scout commissioner Tommy Jones, training commissioner Harry Holloway and old Wolf Council secretary Mr. H. P. White. P. D. Fowler, Rover commissioner and leader of the 6th crew acted as chairman.

PATROL LEADER COURSE FINISHES

A Patrol Leader course that has been conducted by District Commissioner for Training, Harry Holloway, concluded its weekly sessions early this week when Patrol Leaders who took advantage of this instruction will prepare for written examinations some time before May 10.

Object of the course was to provide Patrol Leaders with the proper fundamentals for leading their patrols and the usual topics of proficiency badge work, interpatrol games, court of honor proceedings.

District Commissioner Tommy Jones and city Scoutmasters T. Foster and R. Wier assisted the training commissioner. Those Patrol Leaders who attended and will be eligible for May 24th presentation of the bronze arrow-head badges, symbolical of their passing the written examinations are: A. Richardson, H. McLachlin, M. Little, D. Linney, P. MacLachlin, P. Madore, L. Roy, B. Campbell, N. Lindsay, R. Rookwood, R. Allan, D. McNicoll, L. Le Feure, M. McCullough, R. Colban, J. Colban and B. Lindsay.

Peter Nyegosh, 17-year-old boy of Novi Sad, Yugoslavia, ate a 138-page poem on a 20 cent bet. Each page was wrapped around a bit of bread and dunked in water.

Snapshots Corner

Entries for the Silhouette Contest must be in by April 30, so there is no time to lose. Three prizes of photographic supplies will be awarded the winners—why not send your entry tonight?

For real enjoyment of this hobby do your own processing. The making of prints is a convenient starting point. Buy a package of printing paper, a tube of developer and a small package of fixing powder and print the roll you got from the drug store recently, comparing your results with the photofinishers. Use several grades of paper. Learn to distinguish contrast and density and their relationship to the grade of paper used. Three points determine the success of the prints: (a) choice of contrast; (b) correct exposure of the paper, and (c) full development to real black. More about this next week.

PRO AND CON

Having discussed the pros and cons of box and simple folding cameras we face the difficulty of dealing with types not so widely known. Some description of the reflex types will precede their evaluation. The original model has a single lens, a shutter like a window-blind moving close to the film, and a mirror which reflects the image upward onto ground-glass enabling the user to see the picture exactly as it will appear on the film—right side up and as focussed. Each alteration in lens adjustment is instantly seen in the hood. When the shutter is released the mirror moves up out of the way, first allowing the image to fall on the film. The "twin-lens type" also has a mirror, but an extra lens makes possible the independent focussing of the ground glass image while the taking lens is set ready for use—aperture, shutter speed and filter if necessary. As there are advantages to both systems they will be treated in succeeding weeks in this section.

BEGINNERS DEPARTMENT

Last week's discussion of film types may best be summarized as:

White Light

when analyzed gives:

all the colors of the rainbow (spectrum)

........Ultra.V.I.B.G.Y.O.R.Infra......
...........bbbbbbbbb...............
............ccccccccccc............

where b, c, and p show the respective parts of the spectrum to which ordinary, "chrome type," and panchromatic films are sensitized.

Since panchromatic films are the only ones sensitive to red light, of which late afternoon and artificial light is chiefly composed, it is the best and fastest film to use. Exposure is perhaps the greatest problem in photography and takes considerable experience to master.

NEWTON VAN ALLEN

president Eastwood High School Camera Club "Phi Kappas," lives at 6326 Jasper avenue. His camera is a f:3.5 Wirgin Twin-lens Reflex, making 12 exposures on 620 film. He is building a flash-gun for use with it.

Aids may be found in the use of electric or wedge meters or booklets with tables for calculating exposure. Some such means should be thoroughly mastered to ensure economical use of film. For beginners and all but professional news-photographers the calculating devices are convenient and inexpensive. Examples of such tables will be provided later.

CENTENARY YEAR

Nineteen hundred and thirty-nine is the centenary of a banner year in the history of photography. In January, 1839, the French Scientist Arago described Daguerre's process for fixing the camera's image. The process has long since been given up. Fortunately in that same year William Henry Fox-Talbot announced his discovery that paper dipped first in table salt solution, then in lunar caustic, was able to fix the image also. This process was further improved, and through Talbot's work the use of pyro developer, paper for negatives and fixing solutions were all introduced. Some of this man's work is still in existence—the first genuine photographs.

Dancing Party Is Arranged By Alumnae

SPRINGTIME party season is always an attractive one, providing a happy interlude between the formality of the winter social season and the informality of the summer time, and one of the most delightful of spring parties was that at which the Alumnae Association of the Misericordia hospital entertained its members and their friends in the ballroom of the Tivoli on Friday evening.

Novelties and fun makers were given to the guests at the party adding to the gaiety and enjoyment of the evening.

PATRONS

Lending their patronage to the affair were Dr. and Mrs. J. J. McDonell and Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Conroy, Mrs. E. Steffen, president of the Alumnae Association, and Mr. Steffen, also received the guests.

Miss Helen Brown convened the party, assisted by Miss Ivy Morrell.

GUESTS PRESENT

Other guests present included Mr. and Mrs. D. McGarvey, Mr. and Mrs. Neilson Williams, Mr. and Mrs. C. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Falkenor, Mr. and Mrs. A. Nestor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dittrich, Mr. and Mrs. Dewynter, Mrs. R. W. Peel, Mrs. Louis Heard, Mrs. Edith Brennan, Mrs. P. Brown, Dr. Michael Sereda, Dr. Quehl.

The Misses Joyce Kinsman, Edna Fairweather, Donna Kelley, M. V. Jones, Anna Giese, A. Berry, Isabel Clark, E. Featherstone, Mae McCallum, J. A. Morick, Gertrude O'Neill.

The Misses Elva Robertson, E. Robinson, Ray Robertson, D. Davidson, Doris Boon, Elsie Gregory, Margaret Brown, Lillian Miller, Deane Bohenfohr, Elise Lamoureux.

The Misses Frances Peters, Edna Retallack, M. MacDonald, E. Groman, T. McGee, D. Folmer, V. Smith, A. Burey, Agnes Lee, Jessie Topley, Vernon Drake, Helen Carr.

The Misses Alice MacDonald, Bunny Scott, Trudy Shea, B. Edwards, K. Johnson, Kay MacGrath, Dell Davidson, E. Hopkins, M. Fester, J. MacKenzie, Helen Thebordeau.

Messrs. Kenneth Ellis, T. Retallack, Lorne Frizzell, Norman Lord, Lawrence Barry, Thomas Miles, David Brockie, Russ Bannock, Dick Porter, Lee Thach, Neil MacDonad.

Messrs. S. Skinner, B. Threakill, K. Crummy, Gavin Bright, J. Ligin, J. Hague, Douglas Young, Chester Blake, Jack Reichelt.

Messrs. Harry Coon, Rupert McPeak, Douglas Hill, Jack Bowen, J. Binder, Kenneth Gough, Jack Truscott, Clifford Douglas, and others.

Dr. L. B. Pett of the department of Biochemistry of the University of Alberta, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Edmonton Association of Graduate Nurses held in the Macdonald hotel one evening this week. He chose for his subject, Vitamin-A deficiency.

Sonnysayings

I' been doin' all my skooterin' in front ob Miss Cruller's house. Her alers does her bakin' on Saturday an' I gets just sasherated with good spicy smells.

Assisting

MISS GLADYS McLEAN

Numbered among the charming members of the White Circle Club which is sponsoring the supper dance in the Macdonald hotel ballroom on the evening of Saturday, April 29, is Miss Gladys McLean who is assisting with arrangements. The affair is the final supper dance of the season and will bring to a close the round of attractive weekly parties at the hotel, which have marked the social calendar during the winter and spring months. Committee members of the White Circle who are looking after party details are Miss Kathleen Weber, president, Miss Isabel MacDonald and Miss Eleanor Biglands.

Bridal Pair To Live In Daysland

Wide-spread interest of friends in circles in Edmonton and in many points throughout the province is centred in the pretty marriage ceremony solemnized one morning this week in the manse home of Rev. and Mrs. A. K. McMinn when Alive Josephine Barry, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barry of Wetaskiwin became the bride of Mr. C. Clair Johnston of Daysland, son of Mr. Joseph Johnston of Morden, Manitoba.

BARRISTER

The bridegroom is a barrister in Daysland and will take his bride to live there after returning from their honeymoon to the southern United States and British Columbia.

The ceremony was performed at ten o'clock on Wednesday morning. Mr. McMinn officiated.

For her marriage the bride chose a smart navy blue suit, with accessories to match. Her blouse was of soft white georgette and she wore at her lapel a corsage of pale pink roses and valley lilies. Miss Nellie Barry, of Melville, who attended the bride chose a suit of blue also.

Mr. C. G. Purvis of Edmonton was groomsmen.

WEDDING BREAKFAST

Later in the morning a wedding breakfast was served at the Wetaskiwin home of the bride's parents. Daffodils and tulips in attractively arranged bouquets were used throughout the house for the occasion, and the breakfast table was attractively set with flowers and centred by the tiered wedding cake.

Guests from Edmonton, Daysland, Melville, Saskatoon, Biggar, Whitla and Cardston were present for the reception. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will be at home in Daysland shortly, on return from their honeymoon.

Many Attend Exercises at Y.T. School

CLOSING exercises for Schedule D. of the Dominion-provincial youth training program held on Friday afternoon in the school at 9540 101 street served many purposes both to the visitors at the school and to the students in whose honor the exercises were held.

For the visitors, it gave them an opportunity to meet and chat with the girls and their instructors, to hear from the lips of Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education for the province, the aims and the success of the enterprises and to see the lovely things the girls had made. For the girls who are graduates of the school it gave an opportunity to entertain their parents and visitors at the school closing.

SPEECHES

Arranged during the afternoon, a number of short informal but interesting talks were given by Mrs. K. Lyons, supervisor of the school, Dr. McNally, and Mr. William Carnill, director of Schedule D. work for the boys. Mrs. Lyons voiced her pleasure at being associated with the girls during the term of the school and of the very real friendships she had made among them. She outlined, too the way the school worked. Girls come to the school stating what training they wish to receive and officials of the school try to place them in various city firms to learn the fundamentals of the chosen work. When an opening arises and they are accepted on the staff, they are graduates of the school. Refresher courses are given, then, at later times in commercial training, in art or any of the work the girls choose.

Dr. McNally spoke of the value the Dominion-provincial scheme of training had already had in the lives of the people and of the benefits to the country. Placements by the end of June, Dr. McNally stated would number 500 in Alberta since the scheme was initiated—the addition of a sizeable proportion of skilled workers to the industrial life of the province. He said that the country could well use the services of those ambitious enough to take advantage of such a plan of self betterment.

Chatting with a Bulletin reporter over tea, Mrs. K. Lyons outlined interestingly the aims of the school. Students are taught just what they wish, painting, craftsmanship of many types, work in brass, leather or wood, sewing, commercial training, photography, salesmanship and many other phases of industrial training. The courses are from six to eight weeks' duration, and already 165 had availed themselves of the opportunity for training. A high intellectual type is seen in the applications, many of whom have senior high school training, some of whom have their degrees in music and others with partial commercial training. The school serves to complete their courses and to try to secure full time employment for them.

During the social hour arranged after the exercises guests were escorted through the rooms of the school to see the results of the work of the class. Sewing, both plain and novelty, comprised many of the displays and an idea of how wide-spread and valuable the work of the school is, in one of woman's greatest roles, that of home making, was seen in the clever way ordinary things had been created into things of use and beauty. Individuality, charm and cleverness in craftsmanship was revealed in all the displays.

TEA HOUR

Tea was served from a table attractively festooned with bright patterns worked in novelty paper right on the table. Narcissi in silver holders centred the tea table where Mrs. William Carnill and Mrs. E. Shaver presided.

Teachers in the school include Mrs. Lyons, supervisor, Miss W. Watt, sewing instructor, Mrs. M. Hogan, commercial teacher, Miss M. Storrar, physical instructor, and Mrs. E. Rymer, first aid instructor. Mrs. C. Hutchings is examiner in first aid.

Colorful spring blossoms, including snapdragons, carnations and narcissi graced the effectively appointed tea table in the Jasper room of the Macdonald hotel on Friday afternoon when members of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Handicraft Guild acted as hostesses to a number of their friends at the tea hour. In the drawing room of the hotel guests had the privilege of viewing the many lovely pieces of handicraft which were on display at the annual exhibition of the association. Mrs. J. Boyd McBride, president of the guild, arranged the tea party and presiding over the tea cups were Mrs. W. A. R. Kerr and Mrs. F. Clifford Butterworth. Assisting in the passing of tea were Miss Alison McBride, Miss Betty Woods, Miss Ruth Stein, Miss Alice Hunt, Miss Lillian Hoar and Miss Frances Tayler.

Entertainer

clever little Edmonton artist who will entertain guests during the intermission at the dancing party planned by members of the Amicitia Club for Saturday evening in the Masonic Temple. The affair has taken the novel form of a Bachelor Party, and the ladies have invited the gentlemen. During her performance, Evelyn, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Howey of this city and a pupil of Doris Jordan Garside, will sing and dance a novelty dance routine.

Officers for the coming year will be elected when the Ladies' auxiliary to the Optimist Club hold a luncheon meeting in the Corona hotel on Tuesday. The affair will commence at one o'clock.

Patrons Give Singer Warm Reception

Josephine Check, coloratura soprano, appeared in recital at the Masonic Temple auditorium on Friday evening under the auspices of Prof. Alexander Nizoff and with Avenir Nizoff at the piano. To the best of this writer's knowledge, it was the recital debut of the evening's artist.

Despite a counter-attraction of highly popular athletic organization returning to the city, an enthusiastic audience greeted the soloist and at the end of the program tendered her a warm ovation. In the course of the program and at the conclusion of various groups, she was made the recipient of several bouquets.

The program was well varied and included some of the most florid arias and concert numbers, works which have stood the test of time and which have proved highly popular with both artists and audiences the world over.

In the program were Arne's Lass With the Delicate Air; Mozart's The Violet; Haydn's My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair; Schubert's Barcarolle; Tchaikovsky's By the Window; Alabieff's The Nightingale; Gounod's Jewel Song from Faust and Waltz Song from Romeo and Juliette; Florian's Song by Godard; Gretchaninoff's Lullaby; Nizoff's The Brook; Delibes Maids of Cadiz and Arditi's Il Bacio.

Mr. Nizoff, was called upon to share in the applause for The Brook, for which he wrote both words and music.—J. O.

Formal opening of the Edmonton Golf and Country Club has been arranged for Sunday afternoon and the Board of Governors will be present in the afternoon to officially welcome the guests. Between the hours of four and six o'clock members are invited to have tea in the spacious lounge room of the club. Mrs. Morton E. Hall, president of the ladies' committee, is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. A. F. Anderson entertained at the tea hour on Friday afternoon in compliment to the 43 graduating nurses of the Royal Alexandra hospital. Miss Margaret Fraser, superintendent of nurses, received with the hostess. Laid with a lace cloth, the tea table was graced with spring blossoms flanked by pastel toned tapers. Mrs. Sandford Haire, Miss Agnes Macleod and Mrs. Margaret K. Hamilton presided at the tea urns, while several staff nurses assisted in serving the guests.

• • •

Mrs. G. H. Finland and her small daughter Beverley, have gone down to Calgary to visit with the former's mother, Mrs. J. B. Kells, for a time.

• • •

Mrs. W. W. McBain will be the speaker at the vesper service arranged for four o'clock in the Y. W. C. A. on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. H. C. Pettet will be tea hostess and all interested girls and women are invited to be present.

Mr. Malcolm McIntyre, former pioneer resident of Strathcona, is visiting at present with Mr. and Mrs. George Thomson of South Edmonton. For many years recently Mr. McIntyre has resided in Halifax, Nova Scotia, and is at present en route to the Pacific coast, where he will make his home in the future.

St. David's Welsh Society entertained its members and their friends at an enjoyable social evening on Friday, when an informal party was arranged in All Saints' Parish hall as a conclusion to the winter season activities. Mr. E. E. Davies, president of the society, presided. Community singing was led by Mr. Jack Jones, and soloists were Mrs. John Davies and Miss Enid Griffith. Mrs. Gordon James, who has just returned from a three-months' sojourn in Hollywood, where she met several movie directors and took courses, gave an interesting talk of her trip. Mrs. Ernest Meaden was the accompanist for the evening. Refreshments were served.

Covers were laid for 40 guests at the farewell dinner party arranged on Thursday evening in compliment to Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Stone, who are leaving at the first of the week to make their home in Toronto. Lit by the flame from tapers, the dinner tables were graced with spring flowers, blue iris and narcissi. The party was held at the Springer hotel.

Claiming the interest of many friends in Edmonton is the announcement of the marriage in London, England, of Molly Hewitt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hewitt and Reinhold von Weilingen, younger son of the late Dr. and Mrs. A. von Weilingen of Bergen, Isle of Ruegen, Germany. Well known in German industrial circles and on the continent, Mr. von Weilingen studied at Jena University and is at present connected with a London firm. Mr. and Mrs. von Weilingen will make their home in Hampstead.

Why Not Count Yourself Among The Happy Women?

ARE you happy? That sounds like a silly and superficial question. And yet it really is a fundamental one, and the answer to it is very close to being a gauge of your intelligence, capacity, philosophy and general fitness for living.

Because everyone has a right to happiness. And what is more surprising, happiness is within everyone's reach. Yet most of the letters I receive are not from happy women.

Perhaps, like happy countries, happy women have no history. They don't need sympathy or advice. They go their peaceful ways apart from the restless thousands of their sisters who seem always to be seeking something they never find.

The seven words that give us the key to happiness are two thousand years old. Simply and unmistakeably they define it.

"The Kingdom of Heaven is within you."

But that doesn't tell us how to find it. That doesn't tell us how to reach that state of mind when our souls balance themselves within us like gyroscopes, adjusting us to every change of place and condition, keeping us steady when all the world goes crazy.

All the old religions, and the hundred new ones, repeat and repeat that turning to God is the answer. And the feverish unhappy woman who has made a silly marriage, obtained an impulsive divorce, lost home and husband, lost all but a stranger's knowledge of her child, angered her father and mother, disappointed her friends, come to the end of her money and who, in addition to all this, knows that youth and beauty are rapidly departing, answers passionately:

"What EARTHLY good will it do me to go down on my knees and babble a lot of prayers that don't mean anything to me, or to make myself head a lot of rubbish in a book about an all-good Father, and His protection of me, when He hasn't done one thing for me since I was born?"

And the answer is that if you were twisted with rheumatism, subject to migraine headaches, a victim of cataracts and chronic fever, and had just broken your leg, you would not ask for a doctor who could make you well in a day. You would not trust a doctor who said he could cure you in a week. You would only put yourself trustingly into some fine physician's charge, and be deeply grateful to him if one by one the dreadful symptoms began to disappear and the blessedness of health and physical peace were restored to you.

Nancy was not happy with her young husband, and they had almost no money. Nancy's mother detested Lionel, and the next step was divorce.

It is exactly the same way with the soul. For years and years we forget there is such a thing. We forget the obligations of charity, patience, peace-making, forgiving, serving. We forget that we have been charged to be humble, to be slow to take offence, to put others before ourselves, to wait God's time rather than depend upon our own vengeance or judgment.

Having ignored all these reminders for years and years, is it so surprising that we get ourselves into jams, when all the world seems against us, when, no matter which way we look, there is no happiness in sight?

Such a situation confronts Nancy, who is thirty-four, and who was getting over the 'flu when she wrote me. Well, getting over the 'flu is a suicidal matter; there are several days when one is getting over 'flu in which no life would seem worth living. But even without the 'flu Nancy would be in difficulties.

REGRETS EARLY MARRIAGE

She married at nineteen. To you girls who don't marry at nineteen and look on a little wonderingly and a little enviously at the flushed happy little bride, there ought to be some consolation in the thought that very few women are ready for wifehood at nineteen, and it takes rare character to make a success of it. But that's an aside.

Nancy was not happy with her young husband and they had almost no money. When their little boy was born they had to go live with Nancy's family. Nancy's mother detested Lionel, and the next inevitable step was divorce.

Wretched years intervened; Nancy worked in a tea-shop; little Peter was sick and unmanageable. Then Nancy married again, an uninteresting, but prosperous, man of forty with two small girls. But Nancy didn't get along very well with the little girls, and Peter's stepfather thought he was completely spoiled. By this time Lionel was making good money with radio, had married again, and was delighted to get Peter back. And the little girls' mother got a court injunction to get THEM. So now Nancy is left alone with a dull, unloved companion who blames her for the loss of his daughters. What with his attitude, her mother's unrelenting resentment of the loss of Peter, and what she calls "everything in my life gone completely wrong," Nancy was ill and her hopes of a new baby lost.

"It isn't only that everything is so horrible," she writes, "but that there is no way of straightening things out. I think and think, and there seems to be no escape!"

I can only tell Nancy what I have said in this column before. If she will kneel down tomorrow morning, when the house is quiet, and look deep into her soul, she will find what she has done that is wrong. Just how much selfishness, impatience, indifference to her own promises and to the rights of others she has shown in the last ten years. Then if she will say twenty times, "I was wrong. I am sorry. Help me," she will get up from her knees comforted.

THE TROUBLE IS WITHIN

Why? I don't know why. The greatest teachers and saints haven't known why. But they know that it is true.

Nancy can prove in a few days what thousands of other heart-broken men and women have proved; that when all the world seems to be going wrong, the real trouble is within. Find peace there, find repentance and a desire for change there, and all the rest will follow. When the daughters come home for the next visit they will find a very different stepmother; one who is ready to win their affections, to give them treats and take them to picnics and movies; to put their happiness and their father's before her own. When it is her own son's turn Nancy will have learned to leave him somewhat to his stepfather's handling, to develop sympathy between them, to make her husband feel that the boy is his, too.

That seed planted today will begin to sprout tomorrow, and before she knows it the green shoots will be above ground, and her hands full of flowers.

Raising A Family

"Love me, love my dog," is a sermon a mile long. In five words we have almost the half of all emotional psychology.

This is not to be a talk on dogs, but one about the way we can hurt children through the objects of their love.

O. R. Barton

Certain things, like certain people work themselves into the deep recesses of the heart. Mother may love a piece of ancestral silver with a real passion. Father may worship a certain fishing rod so much he would be unfit for work if he lost it.

Some heady association, a victory won, all have their way of attaching personality to inanimate things.

Children are like us. They get all tied up in certain possessions. It may be a pet, of course. That heart-tie is one easily understood. Parents KNOW that they can hurt a child through a pet. They may not realize that Dick or Betty May can be crushed also by throwing out a beloved toy.

Dick has a collection of dusty bettles. He worked hard to get them. He got a high mark and a lot of praise for his specimens. Now he has passed on to other things, but he keeps that collection as a thrilling reminder of long summer days in the country, the excitement of rare finds, the interest of his teacher, the envy of his class.

One day, assiduously cleaning house, mother comes across the flat box on the shelf. Out it goes. Dick misses it in short order. Where is it? Gone, of course. He is told that it was a dust catcher, that it had served its purpose, that he would never look at it again, anyway. But all the arguments in the world have no effect.

He says to himself, "That is all they understand about a fellow. What's the use of trying?" He becomes moody and disobliging for a while, and even disobedient. No one can make him out. He may never mention his bugs again. Who would guess that a lot of ugly grubs were the cause of his not studying for days?

BELOVED RAGGEDY ANNE

Betty May loves a bedraggled old doll, who went to her doom with the junk man. Mother kept the newer doll, Mirabelle, much handsomer and still in possession of both eyes and all her arms and legs. But Mirabelle never was much of a comfort. It took Raggedy Anne to understand her young mistress.

They tell us that such fixed attachments are bad for us, but everyone has them. Try and raise a family without such idols. Try to break up your own. We are, before all else, weakly human.

So do be careful not to outrage a boy or girl by discarding too soon. Consult them. See how things stand before you let your housekeeping

Long-Stemmed American Beauties

— By John Robert Powers —

Helen Dow is a newcomer to the ranks of models but she has already become a magazine cover girl. She is the daughter of Mrs. Howard Dow, socially prominent in Jamestown and Buffalo.

Helen was born in Jamestown 19 years ago. After completing her academic education plans were made by her socially prominent family for her debut and coming out party. However, Helen elected to forego the social game and came to New York to study dramatics.

Through one of her friends, another socialite model, Martha Stephenson, Helen came to our offices, and due to her own personal charm and appearance she was accepted immediately. I predict that you will see a lot of Helen in your favorite newspapers and magazines within a short time.

At home Helen has a 28-foot Class E sloop which she races at Lake Chatauqua. She is also an excellent golfer and has three cups for first place in tournaments.

Two years ago while visiting in Memphis with friends who owned an airplane she became interested in flying. Her greatest thrill was her first solo flight. She actually has enough hours solo flying time to her credit to get a license, but as yet she has never applied for it.

Courtney Hafela, the photographer who took Helen's first pictures and the one above, tells me that she has more natural posing ability than any new model he has ever seen. He says that it is less trouble to get her to hold a difficult sustained pose than it is most seasoned models.

I don't want to give anyone the impression that it is easy for a girl to be a successful model. Far from it. She may have the beauty of an angel and still to the cold eye of the camera not be photogenic. She may look excellent in a black and white photograph and for no explainable reason look terrible in a natural color picture. Out of the nearly 2,000,000 girls that have come to our offices slightly over 1,000 have been really successful.

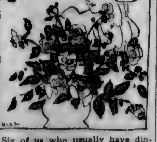
What To Do



Six of us who usually have dinner together will meet next in my home and I'm hoping you can give me some new ideas for the table. I'd really like to have my party smart and unusual. My table is a refectory type.

NEW HOUSEWIFE.

Answer—My suggestion to you is to seat your guests at each side of the table, instead of in the usual way. At one side you will take the center place with a man at each side; your husband will be seated [illegible] woman a either side. Arrange your flowers in two bowls and place them at each end of the table. The candles may be placed along the center of the table or grouped with the flowers. Place small silver or glass dishes of olives, salted nuts and relishes in the center of the table. If you are so fortunate as to have candelabra, place one at each end of the table with a flat bowl of floating tulips or other flowers in the center. Either lacy mats or a satin damask tablecloth would be a proper covering for the table.

Begin Sitdown Strike Against Bad Posture

By ALICIA HART

No matter how beautifully dressed or meticulously groomed she is, the woman who slumps in her chair or sits with knees apart just never is really attractive looking. It is a mistake indeed, ever to consider the way you look when seated any less important than your standing posture.

Always cross your legs above the knees. When legs are not crossed, never, never sit with knees slightly apart. Feet should be flat on the floor, with one slightly in front of the other. Do not curl them around the bottom of the chair. And don't make a practice of sitting on one foot.

The lower part of your spine and the center of it should be flat against the back of the chair. Don't worry about how to hold your shoulders. If the center of your back is against the chair, shoulders simply can't be far out of line.

Begin your campaign for better seated posture by realizing that you don't have to slump in order to be comfortable. As a matter of fact, you'll find sitting with backbone reasonably straight, with feet flat on the floor and knees together much more comfortable and a great deal less tiring than a sprawling slumping position.

Don't sit at a restaurant table with knees apart and legs outstretched. Your luncheon companion may not notice, but the people across the room will. Furthermore, don't lean on one arm while you are eating. Rest an elbow on the table now and then between courses if you want to, but not while eating.

It's an excellent idea to learn to keep your hands folded in your lap. Suitable gestures are one thing, but waving arms wildly about is quite another. And remember that a woman of poise doesn't continually play with her necklace or twist a handkerchief or tap fingernails against the arms of her chair.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Dorothy Dix—If a woman is in her late thirties, with no prospect of marriage in view, what should be her attitude? Should she succumb to a feeling of defeat and frustration, or should she cultivate the philosophy of waiting and seeing what will happen? I am a clerk earning a small salary and cannot afford to make trips and go to summer vacations where I might meet eligible men. In my business I make few social contacts.

A. B. C

Answer:

If a woman who is nearing 40 is set and determined on matrimony, as you are, her attitude should be that of a go-getter. For her chances of catching a husband diminish with each succeeding birthday. So bestir yourself. Quit casting your line in a dry creek, where not even a sucker swims. Go where the fishing is good. Get into some business office where men are plentiful. Go live in a boarding house where men not only abound, but where they are gentle and tame and easy to handle after they have been well fed. And heaven send you luck!

One of the most curious things in the world is that it apparently never enters the minds of women that they could possibly get bad husbands, or have a moment's unhappiness after they are married. They see other women who are married to drunkards; who are married to brutes who beat them, who are married to ne'er-do-wells whom they have to work to support; who are married to men who drag them down into poverty; who are married to men who insult them with their infidelities. All about them they see worn, tired, bedraggled women, with sick and undernourished children clinging to their skirts, who are the very picture of misery, but it never occurs to them that marriage might bring them just such a horrible fate.

No. They are certain that they would marry fine, tender, loving husbands who would be good providers and that they would have beautiful golden-haired children born with naturally curly hair and in embroidered white frocks.

Personally, I think that a woman's attitude toward marriage should be the "I can take it or leave it" one. If Mr. Right comes along, well and good. Ring out the wedding bells. But if he doesn't come along, also well and good.

Perk Up For Spring With Novelty Menu

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Pour a can of cherries over a beef tongue and your kitchen stove will speak a brighter language when spring doldrums make getting dinner seem like a gigantic bore. Refuse to cook familiar foods. Try daring new combinations—everyone, yourself included, will perk up.

BEEF TONGUE WITH SOUR CHERRIES

(Serves 4 to 6)

One fresh beef tongue, 2 cups clear vegetable stock or water, ½ stick cinnamon, 1 bay leaf, 2 stalks celery (with leaves), 2 sprigs parsley, 8 whole cloves, 1 large onion, 2 carrots, juice of 1 lemon.

Scrub tongue, then simmer with the other ingredients 3 to 4 hours until tender. Cool, trim and skin.

CHERRY MIXTURE

One can sour cherries, 1-3 pound blanched almonds, juice 2 lemons and grated rind of lemon.

Mix all ingredients. In a casserole arrange sliced tongue and cherry mixture in alternate layers. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) for 25 minutes.

ROUND STEAK WITH SAUERKRAUT

(Serves 4 to 6)

Two pounds round steak cut in slices 1 inch thick, 1 No. 2 can sauerkraut, 2 small onions, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 No. 2 tomatoes.

Trim steak. Drain sauerkraut and dice onions. Combine diced onions and drained sauerkraut. Season steak, then spread with mixture. Roll and fasten with clean white string. Brown meat on all sides in fat.

Place in thrift cooker kettle of electric range or in heavy pot with cover. Add tomatoes. Cover. Simmer for 1½ hours.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Rhubarb and applesauce, oatmeal muffins, crisp bacon, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Mushroom omelet, hard rolls, fresh fruit salad, tea, milk.

DINNER: Beef tongue with sour cherries, mashed potatoes, buttered cauliflower with parsley, escarole and celery root salad, caramel custard, coffee, milk.

Minute Make-Ups

On an evening when you simply must appear at your most alluring best, try this trick: Rub just a speck of cream rouge (or indelible lipstick) over the palms of your hands. Use very little and work it in, so it won't mark your frock. It's a bit extreme, perhaps, but oh, so exotic!

GENUINE COINS DO NOT ALWAYS HAVE A "RING"
4 22

If a coin does not give a good "ring" when thrown down on a glass counter, it does not prove the coin is counterfeit, as usually believed. There are many genuine coins which sound "dead" as counterfeits, due to imperfect mintage.

Let Wise Thinkers Inspire You

The trials of life—dull domestic routine, illness, troubles on the job! They come to everyone. How do you meet them? Do you let yourself be overwhelmed or do you triumph over them?

Your attitude, your philosophy make all the difference in the world. For "men" are disturbed not by things, but by the views they take of things"—said the great Roman philosopher, Epictetus.

And through the ages philosophers have directed their rich insight to the task of helping you. Seek activities that take you out of yourself—advises the English thinker, Bertrand Russell—and your new interests will offset disappointments.

Happiness doesn't just descend upon you. The Greek philosopher, Aristotle, said it's the "crown of an activity."

And when problems come your way, remember the words of a modern writer, Owen Wister, "We place at the top of our esteem those people . . . . who are not brave merely, but gallant."

Read the essence of the great philosophical teachings in our 32-page booklet. It gives the wisdom of sages of the past like Plato and Socrates, of such famous contemporaries as Santayana. A guide to happiness.

Stories Here and There From His Books, Lectures and Conversations

"WE HAVE WITH US TONIGHT"

PUBLIC speaking is more or less of an ordeal even for those who have to undertake it constantly. Worse than all, is speaking at a dinner, because you have to wait your turn and feel it coming for hours. Next time you are at a public dinner notice the men at the head table who sit and eat celery by the bunch and never stop. Those are the men who are going to speak.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

I don't say that trained speakers are nervous. No: they wish the chairman would announce that the rest of the meeting is cancelled because of smallpox, or that the hotel would catch fire, or that there would be an earthquake. But they're not nervous.

But if speaking is an ordeal to them, what is it to those who have never spoken? Some men go through life and never have to speak; they rise to wealth and standing with the fear of it in the background; fear, with an element of temptation.

Such a one was my senior acquaintance of long ago, Mr. Gritterly—no harm to name him—general manager of one of the banks. He had just retired, without ever speaking in public, when a Bankers' Three-Day Convention came to town, and they invited Mr. Gritterly to speak at the dinner.

He accepted, hung in the wind, flew round the flame, and finally on the opening day, sent a note that he was called out of town for the evening.

I saw him round the hotel next morning. He was telling me how sorry he was to have missed the opportunity. He told me a lot of things he could have said about branch banking. He said, too, that he would like to have had a sly joke, very good-natured of course, about the American Treasury system. It was too bad, he said, he'd been called out of town. He had even intended, just in an offhand way, to get off one or two quotations from Shakespeare (he had them in his pocket). One read: "I know a bank whereon a wild thyme grows.—" Gritterly thought that would get a laugh, eh? Too bad, he said, that he couldn't get that off.

"But, Mr. Gritterly," I said. "You are making a mistake. They didn't have the dinner last night. The trains were so late, they only had the inaugural address. The dinner's tonight. You'll probably get an invitation——"

And as I spoke a boy brought it to him on a tray.

"So you see you'll be able to tell them about branch banking.'

"Yes," said Mr. Gritterly, 'yes."

"And the jokes about the U.S Treasury."

"Yes," said Mr. Gritterly, "quite so."

All day Gritterly was round the hotel pulling the little bits of Shakespeare out of his pocket.

But the thing beat him.

In due course at the dinner the chairman announced:

"I regret very much that Mr. Gritterly will not be able to speak. His speech, of which he gave me an outline, would have been a great treat. Unfortunately he had to leave tonight,"— the chairman consulted his notes — "for Japan. With your permission I will take on myself to cable our representatives and I am sure they'll be glad to get up a dinner for Mr. Gritterly at Tokio."

Gritterly got the invitation on board ship and went right on to Hong Kong. The bankers there received a cable and organized a lunch. Gritterly had gone on to Singapore but the bankers followed him up and he left for Calcutta. They lost him somewhere in Thibet. He may have entered the monastery there. For many people that would be preferable to speaking.

He moved and received second reading of a bill to permit appointment of a member of the assembly as chairman or member of the Liquor Control Board.

New $12,000,000 Picture Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 22—Paramount Pictures, Inc., announced Friday selection of a 150-acre site in West Los Angeles for its new $12,000,000 "studio of tomorrow". The new plant, to be known as Paramount City, will have 26 sound stages.

Thanks For the Book, Dear Lady

"NOW and not hereafter while the breath is in our nostrils
Now, and not hereafter ere the meaner years go by
Let us now remember many honorable women
Such as gave their lives for us when we were like to die."

In these words Rudyard Kipling introduces his tribute to those brave women, the nurses, who served in the war. I want to make use of them now to pay my respects to certain women in whose debt I find myself. Beholden I am to many, but I am thinking particularly of the women who put books of poems in their spare-rooms for the delight and comfort of the pilgrim and the stranger.

LAND OF DREAMS

There is a period of doubt and loneliness that lies between the world of reality and the land of dreams. The day is over, for good or evil. Mistakes have been made, and you cannot do a thing about it. Tomorrow is another day. The dawn will come on like thunder, the inexorable demands of life are waiting for you and if you cannot get to sleep, how will you meet them? Thinking about tomorrow is disastrous! You remember what the Ancient Mariner said about sleep "being a blessed thing beloved from pole to pole." Shakespeare too has a lovely line about sleep "which knits up the ragged sleeve of care."

But there's no magic in these to bring forgetfulness. Your mind is like a watch that has been tightly wound, and has so many hours to run down. Two o'clock strikes. And the street below is empty of sounds, and swept clean of traffic. You look out and see that the houses are all dark. There is not even a stray cat abroad. It can never be more still than this. But the sound of yesterday's voices are loud in your ears and self pity begins to tear you like an evil spirit. You know you will look like a rag tomorrow! Then you turn on the light and find the book of poems, and in it release!

BOOK OF POETRY

The Golden Book of English Poetry it is called, and you open at the page which holds Rose Macaulay's New Years Poem. Rose says there's nothing new in the world. So there's no use looking for it. We would not know what to do with it, if we did find something new. "We would grope like lost children without a clue," she says. "We would drift all amazed through such a queer, and unimagined year—a derelict crew, whistling in vain for the old winds that blew. We would seek far and near for some port by which to steer. Black nightmare and blind fear shall seize and hold him, who in some year suddenly finds something new."

Now there's a thought for you to mull over in your mind, and you begin to argue with Miss Macaulay. She's wrong. There are new things in life, new situations. It may be an old spring but the water is new! You heard that day—the day previous rather—about a teacher who was having a bad time with one class. They, would not listen. She had worked hard on her lessons, and really could teach. She knew she could. But one day she said this to her class:

"We are not getting on well and I believe the fault must be mine. I want you to write down what you think is the cause. Don't be afraid of hurting my feelings. My feelings are not important. Your progress is. Let us get to the bottom of the trouble."

SOMETHING NEW

Now that is something new—a teacher admitting that she might be to blame! Teachers may have suspected their own short comings, but in the School of Pedagogy, in which I was trained, it would not be considered good for discipline to admit it.

In this case, it worked. The teacher's honesty brought an honest response from the students. One boy confessed he did not know the previous work. Another one wrote he did not like the subject, because it had, to him, no practical value. Another one said he always got sleepy at about this time in the afternoon. Maybe he should get to bed earlier.

There is a little town in Saskatchewan that has tried something new. In putting in their estimates for relief the council did not ask for a cent more than they needed. One member of the council had challenged them to try honesty as a definite policy. The inspector came down to see them and asked them what it was all about. They explained to him rather shame-facedly that they had decided to be honest. The member of parliament told the story in the provincial parliament at Regina, and declared that if everyone would follow this example the cost of relief would be reduced by one quarter. There were striking results from this too. Some of the recipients of relief, of their own free-will returned their allowance saying they had not given the correct information regarding their circumstances. That is new in the history of state relief.

OLD TRIANGLE

If Rose Macaulay needs further proof she could take a look at the Broadway plays of 1938 and '39. A new theme has driven out the old triangle and the "battle, murder and sudden death" which have intrigued theatre goers for many years. The new theme is the soul's quest for God.

I quote from the American Mercury which no one will accuse of being a religious magazine.

"In 1938 Broadway confronted God without apology. . . . The world is sick. Quacks of all sorts are clamoring. Totalitarian medicine-men present surcease from uncertainity on the point of bayonets. But the feeling that economic and political medicine is not enough, that the malady is not alone of the body, but of the soul, asserts itself above the clamor. The theatre offers impressive proof of this fact."

There now Miss Macaulay!

MISTS OF OBSCURITY

In thinking of this larger theme, the cares and irritations of the day sink back to where they belong, in the shadowy mists of obscurity.

That is the infinite charm in poetry. Indeed in all literature.

There is a universal element in it, as there is in music, which washes out the petty things of life. No one can listen to the piercing sadness of the "Song of India," and not be ashamed of ever having complained of his own lot.

So thanks again, dear Lady, for the Golden Book of English Poetry. It "drew the blessed sleep from heaven which slid into my soul!"

Alberta Seeking 49 Iron Lungs

OTTAWA, April 22—Applications have been received by the department of national health from various Canadian institutions for 173 of the iron lungs which Lord Nuffield, British philanthropist, has offered to provide free to every hospital in the British Empire, the department announced Friday.

Largest number of lungs, 49, is sought by institutions in Alberta.

The Outrage On Albania

By DR. H. L. STEWART

Professor of Philosophy, Dalhousie University, and Editor of Dalhousie Review.

WHY did Italy do it? Was it for any definite, assignable gain? Or was it just to keep from getting out of practice with the strategy of bad faith? To military and air concentrations must have been practically complete at the very time when Lord Perth was being assured at Rome that it was mere groundless rumor! Germany, of course, announces approval, the method being so like her own. In that respect the Axis holds.

It is not worth while to recount the reasons alleged in the Fascist press. They are such as show even the ingenuity of pretence to be worn by this time very thin. The same old, transparent falsehoods, and evasions too obvious to impose on anybody, have to serve again and again. It is plain that for some reason Italy wanted Albania enough to risk intensifying the discredit she already bore. She decided to take it, even at the cost of increasing her already huge moral deficit before the world. What was the motive, or what the compelling necessity?

Not, I think, the prospect of spoils from that small mountainous, agricultural country, although it has attractions by no means neglible, for example in its unworked deposit of oil. As in the German desire for restored colonies, it is less the resources than the strategic position which must be taken into account.

Holding Albania, Italy now threatens Yugoslavia from the south at the very moment when Germany has become able, through "liquidation" of Czechoslovakia, to support the insurgence of Croats and Slovenes against Serbs. But why should Italy want thus to co-operate with Germany? It is altogether natural that Berlin should be thrilled by the chance to smash "the Versailles Dictate" in yet another place; to bring the new structure called "Yugoslavia"—like the new structure called "Czechoslovakia"—crashing to the ground. But why should Italy desire to help in this. Does she want to see German control on the opposite side of the Adriatic?

One thinks immediately of a possible drive through the Balkans and the Aegean Sea. As these lines are being written, news comes that in return for guarantees for her territorial integrity, Greece will offer facilities of her harbors to the British fleet. Also that Turkey will open the Dardenelles for passage of military supplies to Rumania in case of war, and that Poland has now nearly a million men under arms. This kind of thing cannot go on much longer without a break somewhere. There is a limit to the international tension which it is possible to maintain.

The case of Albania, though the latest, must be obscure in an observer's mind the fact that Poland still presents the most suggestive point of attack. A despatch to the New York Times shows how "the case against the Poles" continues to be developed by the Publicity Department of the Reich. Someone will ask, perhaps: "What about the 1934-1944 Germano-Polish amity pact?" The answer, offered is characteristically German. While that pact, it seems, is not thought abrogated in the letter, its intactness (presumably in spirit) is gravely questioned because of Josef Beck's commitments to Neville Chamberlain, and Poland's refusal to settle with the Reich (1) about Danzig, (2) about a highway across the Corridor.

Now, when did I hear such reasons for invalidation of a treaty before? I remember now. It was when the Locarno Pact was declared "automatically" null and void by reason of the Franco-Russian pledge for mutual defence. There followed, before long, the remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Something may follow before long now.

Slight Damage From Fires In National Parks

OTTAWA, April 22—Forest fires in Canada's national parks during the 1938 season totalled about 50 but the damage was slight, the department of mines and resources reported today. The total was below the 10-year average of 77 fires.

Majority of the fires which occurred in the national parks in the 1938 season were caused by careless smokers and campers, with one fire from these sources for approximately every 72,000 visitors. Incendiarism, second largest cause of fire, accounted for nine and lightning for two.

STUDENT WRITES INSPIRING SONG

The following poem has been written by Garry Hudson, a student at Cherrydale school, Grade Nine. The young poet is 16 years old and is an interested worker at Jasper Mission and Central United Church.

The poem is as follows:

Childrens Song

Around about Him children trod,
To their earthly Father God,
Sitting on our Saviour's lap.
Little Indian, white boy, Jap

Telling stories, oh so new,
Lovely parables, bright and true,
Victory o'er the Devil now
In prayer our Father does bow.

Oh so Heavenly Father above,
To these children show Thy love,
I thy Shepherd, they your sheep,
In your fold, them safely keep.

Disciples old, their Saviour talk,
Saying, "Children, take thy walk,
But our Father now does smile;
Go not children but tarry awile.

These my children do not scold,
Such is the kingdom—a heavenly fold
For young children big and small;
I do love them—one and all
—Garry R. Hudson

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Probation After Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at all Christian Science Churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is Psalms 23:4. One of the Scriptural citations is "For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace" (Romans 8:6). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, is "Life is the origin and ultimate of man, never attainable through death, but gained by walking in the pathway of Truth both before and after that which is called death" (p. 487).

A kiss is a sniff in Samoa. Sniffing is said to have created the practice of rubbing noses among the Eskimos, Malays and Polynesians.

According To Culbertson

One of the most remarkable things about the general run of bridge players is the way certain ideas stick in their heads and simply cannot be dislodged. Twenty years ago, in the game of auction bridge, theorists considered it good strategy to make a defensive overcall with a five card suit and one and one-half honor tricks. Perhaps that was really a good idea in auction bridge, although personally I think that only the auction player's inexplicable reluctance to double for penalties enabled the weak overcall to survive. Whatever its merits in auction, there can be no doubt that the weak overcall has no place in contract bridge. Strategically it is a "dud" since it seldom prevents the opponents from arriving at a sound contract. Most of the time it merely gives the opponents a choice between carrying on with their own bidding and "taking out time for lunch." In the hand below East and West enjoyed a good "meal" at South's expense

East, dealer.
Neither side vunerable.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	2 diamonds	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's overcall was ridiculously unsound. There was no chance for game unless North had a hand so powerful that he could take independent action even if South passed. If North had a fair hand South might avoid broken bones; if North had a weak hand, or one which didn't fit, South would find himself up to the ears in hot water.

As it happened, North had a fair hand, but it didn't fit. West, with no fit for spades, decided that game was problematic (as it actually was) and doubled for penalties. North might have tried two no trump, which would have fared a little better, but his pass cannot be criticized. East looked long and lovingly at his ten major suit cards, but finally decided that his heart strength and singleton club "gave him defence" against the diamond contract.

West opened the ace of clubs and noted his partner's jack with delight. The club queen followed and declarer tremblingly put up dummy's king. East ruffed and unhesitatingly laid down the ace of spades. He was sure his partner would be void, since otherwise he hardly would have chosen to lead from a major tenace in clubs. West discarded the deuce of hearts and East continued with the jack of spades.

West ruffed and returned a heart, realizing that his partner's choice of the spade jack called for a return in the higher of the side suits. (The return was marked, but the signal could do no harm). Dummy's heart king was played in a desperate attempt to stop the slaughter, but East took the heart ace and returned another spade, giving his partner a second ruff.

West then cashed the ten of clubs and led another heart to East's queen. East returned a fourth round of spades and declarer, down to his five trumps, put on the diamond king. West wisely discarded instead of over-ruffing, and could not be prevented from making both the ace and pack of diamonds later on. South won only three tricks and paid 900 points for the privilege of getting into the bidding.

As you might imagine, North then took a few minutes out to demonstrate that East and West had no game to begin with; that if they did manage to make a game by double-dummy play or poor defense their profit would be rather less than 900 points, and from there on North's little speech took on a markedly personal tone. And who can blame him?

CITY KINSMEN GET BOUQUETS FROM OFFICER

Sheldon Buckles, District Governor, Is Here On Tour

Edmonton Kinsmen Club has won an enviable place for itself as one of the leading clubs in the organization, Sheldon Buckles, of Medicine Hat, district governor, said here Saturday.

Accompanied by Mac Millard, Red Deer, deputy governor, Mr. Buckles is here to address a dinner meeting of local Kinsmen at the Macdonald hotel Saturday night. They visited the Vegreville branch on Friday.

At present there are nine branches of the organization in Alberta with a total membership of about 300, Mr. Buckles said.

Each branch, he explained, sets before itself its own special sphere of activity. The Edmonton group has won acclaim for its anti-tubercular work carried on by the sale of Christmas seals. The Medicine Hat group runs a gymnasium for under-privileged boys. Other clubs have other branches of service, he said.

CONVENTION

Elected district governor in the spring of 1938 at the Calgary convention, Mr. Buckles has been active in carrying out his provincial-wide duties and in arranging for the next Kinsmen convention in Medicine Hat on May 12, 13 and 14.

Kinsmen clubs, he said, are formed only in response to a call for them. The organization does not believe, he explained, in "promoting" the club, but only in having branches set up where the need for them exists and the nucleus of a good organization can be obtained.

Both Kinsmen officials are guests at the Macdonald hotel.

E. F. WATSON TO TAKE POST HERE WITH AGENCIES

Assistant circulation manager of the Calgary Albertan for the past 18 months, Edwin F. Watson has resigned from that post to assume an executive position with the Western Canada Subscription Agencies, with head office in Edmonton. He will assume his new position here on Monday.

Mr. Watson, prior to joining the Albertan staff as city circulation manager six years ago, was connected with the advertising departments of The Edmonton Bulletin and the Regina Daily Star. He was born and educated in Edmonton and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Watson, of 10359 95 street. Mr. Watson's brother, Howard L., is circulation manager for The Bulletin.

Friday afternoon members of the Albertan staff presented Mr. Watson with a golf bag and clubs as a token of their esteem.

The Inquiring Reporter

When summer pavements are hot, the parcels get heavier and bulkier, and tired feet threaten to split shoe seams, the carrier of the parcels and owner of the tired feet longs to interrupt the shopping and take time out. "How would you like the city to instal park benches and plant shade trees at various spots near the downtown section?" asked the Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter. The response to the question follows:

FRED BAASKE, clerk: Oh, boy, that's the best idea you have ever had. I can see myself relaxing on a bench in the shade, with no tickets for overtime parking. M-m-m. I'm all for it.

MRS. MARGARET CREIGHTON, housewife: I don't do much shopping myself, but I am in favor of the idea for those who do spend considerable time in the downtown area. It would be nice for shoppers to be able to relax for a few minutes in a quiet spot.

• • •

MRS. A. E. SMITH, housewife: Some provision should be made in the downtown district to give tired women shoppers a respite from the hard pavements. A small shady park with benches would be like an oasis in the desert.

HUGH PORTER, mechanic: Nearly every city of any size with a busy downtown area has small park-like spots among the big buildings, equipped with benches and a drinking fountain, where tired citizens can rest and escape the heat and bustle for a while. We could certainly do with some in Edmonton.

In supreme court, civil division, three decrees absolute and five decrees nisi of divorce, two defended divorce actions, and three civil actions are listed for hearing at sittings which open on Monday with Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie presiding.

Meeting of the property committee of the Edmonton Public School Board will be held Monday at 5 p.m. in the Civic block.

Regular meeting of the Edmonton Public School Board will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Civic block.

General meeting of the Married Ex-Servicemen's Association will be held in the Memorial hall on Wednesday, April 26, at 2:30 p.m. All married ex-servicemen are invited to attend.

Three lines of hose were used to quell a blaze in the workshop of Phillips Machine Shop at 106 street and 102 avenue, at 9:40 a.m. Saturday. Damage was estimated at $300.

Blooms on a forsythia or golden bells bush at the home of Mrs. J. W. Wright, 7746 Jasper avenue, are the first flowers reported in the city this season. It is the first time in five years that the bush has bloomed. Mrs. Wright had been told by several persons that the bush would never bloom in Alberta because the weather was too cold.

Word has been received here of the death of Rev. A. Stark of Penticton, B.C., minister of the Holiness Movement church and a former pastor of the Edmonton congregation. He left Edmonton about eight years ago. A memorial service will be held in the Holiness church here Sunday evening.

Another Jersey cow from Edmonton has been singled out for honors by the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club. The Jersey cow, Ardkeen White Spot, owned and tested by Martin Bros., South Edmonton, has been awarded a gold medal certificate by the club. The six-year-old Jersey recently completed a splendid record of 15,322 pounds of milk, 751 pounds of fat, with an average test of 4.9 per cent. in 365 days.

Members of the Canadian Legion will be guests at a 'theatre party" when they come to Edmonton for the annual provincial convention from May 31 to June 3, according to an announcement made following a meeting of committee chairmen at the Memorial hall Friday night. "Chinese Gentleman"

This portrait of Mah Shee, 77-year-old Edmonton Chinese, is one of six photographic studies made by Helmuth Goertz, city photographer, which were recently accepted and hung at the 50th annual open exhibition of the Hackney Photographic Society held at Hackney, Eng. Proof of the high standard of Mr. Goertz' work is the fact that all six of the studies were accepted by the Society. Of thousands entered from all parts of the world, only 552 pictures were accepted. One other Canadian, L. F. Sheraton, of Calgary, had his portraits hung. Other pictures by Goertz accepted were "Just Me," a study of a little colored girl, "Typical Englishman," "Purity," "Mista Jim" and "Nature's Charm." Another portrait, "Chinese Patriot," and "Mista Jim" were also accepted recently by the Shropshire Photographic Society, England. They were the only successful entries from Canada.

57 Years in Canada Is Record of City Chinese

Still hale and spry despite his 77 years is Mah Shee, Edmonton Chinese and a naturalized Canadian whom Helmuth Goertz, young Edmonton photographer, chose for his model for a picture of a typical Chinese gentleman.

Boran in Kwang Tang province, Mah came to Canada in 1882 and has been a resident of Edmonton and district for the past 40 years. He lived at Victoria and Nelson, B.C., for a short time prior to coming to Edmonton.

Mah Shee takes great delight in watching the development of Edmonton. He has a clear memory of many of the old landmarks in Edmonton, and says that the Queen's and Alberta hotels are two buildings which have survived the passage of time.

KNEW OLIVER

He knew the late Hon. Frank Oliver, founder of the Edmonton Bulletin and remembers some of the early editions of the paper. Mah is a member of the Chinese Benevolent Association and an executive of the Mah family club. He has made four trips back to his homeland since first coming to Canada, returning in 1891, 1895, 1905 and 1916. He hopes to make another trip back to China, but would prefer to live in Canada.

He would particularly like to return to China very soon for his youngest son is fighting for the Chinese army as a mechanic with the Chinese air force and when last heard of was stationed at Nanchang, important Chinese air base that was recently captured by the Japanese. Mah Shee has not heard from his son for almost seven months, as war conditions in China have made communication systems very unreliable.

He has another son living in Vancouver and two married daughters residing in China. His wife is still living.

Commenting on the present war in China, Mah said: "I am confident that China will eventually triumph in the war against Japan. So far the Japanese have not been able to solidify their position in the territories they have occupied and still retain sufficient man power to increase their holdings." He stated that he wished that he was a few years younger in order that he might join his son and with him help his country against the invaders.

SANITATION FOR ROYAL VISIT DAY IS BIG PROBLEM

Edmonton faces gigantic problems in sanitation for the multitudes who will be in the city on June 2 for the royal visit, the city board of health was told Friday by Dr. G M. Little, city medical health officer.

A survey was being made, Dr Little said, with a view to locating toilet facilities and taps to supply running water. The health officer is a member of the royal visit subcommittee on parking and auto camps.

Dispensing of food from temporary stands also must be supervised on the day of the royal visit, he said. He believed that the Hudson's Bay reserve provided good facilities for auto campers but there were still problems to be faced in the downtown areas.

School safety patrol operated by the Alberta Motor Association has been extended to the Jasper Place school, said Secretary-Manager J. A. McNeil on Saturday. The patrol will be in effect at noon and at 4 p.m. "Steps are being taken," said Mr. McNeil, "to include safety education on the regular school curriculum. The A.M.A. is prepared to supply the necessary posters and courses of instruction free to all schools which will have allotted time for this work sometime during the day."

SWINE POLICY NOW ADOPTED BY PROVINCE

Mullen Announces Plan For Replacement of Undesirable Sires

Inauguration of an "aggressive swine improvement policy" for the province of Alberta, including a plan for the removal of all undesirable sires at present being used and their replacement with desirable bacon type, pure bred animals, was announced Saturday by Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture.

The policy announced by Mr. Mullen, "provides for assistance from the provincial department of agriculture, for all classes of Alberta swine men who may be interested in securing an improved type of pure bred boar, and includes, also, provision for assistance in transporting the improved sires from the breeder to purchaser."

IMPROVED BOARS

One section of the policy provides for the removal of undesirable sires in exchange for improved boars to be selected and sent out by the provincial department. The old animal is to be disposed of for slaughter purposes and the proceeds therefrom, plus an allowance for transportation of such animals to market, is applied on the purchase price of the young sire.

These improved boars are to be placed with applicants under the policy at a price of not more than $17 for three months old boars and not more than $25 for more mature boars.

A second section of the policy provides similar assistance for those breeders desiring improved sires, but having no boar to exchange at the present time. Under these circumstances, applicants are allowed to dispose of an off-type gilt or sow, if such is to be found in their piggeries.

OUTLYING AREAS

The third section provides for assistance to farmers or groups of farmers, at present not owning a boar, but who are in need of an improved animal to get away from their present use of less desirable ones. This section of the policy is aimed to assist a number of outlying areas of the province, where the matter of improved, registered boars has developed into quite an acute problem.

Transportation, said the minister, is to be paid by the department, from either the breeder, or the point of assembly of the boars being sent out under the policy, to the nearest shipping point of the applicant. Transportation charges up to a maximum of $2 will be paid on the inferior off-type animals taken in for disposal under the policy.

"The problem of improving the quality of Alberta hogs will be greatly accelerated, we hope, by the inauguration of this policy," said the minister. "It is becoming increasingly apparent that the problem facing the small hog producer of the province is that of securing the proper type of sire and there is no doubt in our minds, that if this problem can be met noticeable improvement in the quality of our hogs will be brought about immediately.

"These are the reasons behind the efforts of the department to bring about some improvement in the sire end of the hog industry in Alberta at the present time. The interest already displayed in the proposed policy by pure bred men and by commercial breeders in the province, has been most encouraging and augurs well, we feel, for the results which will be obtained from its operation."

Between 9 a.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday, Edmonton fire department was called to 13 bush and grass fires in the city.

MANY HOUSES HEALTH PERIL BOARD HEARS

Officer Can't Condemn Homes As Other Lodging Not Available

City health department has noted more than 100 houses in Edmonton which are not fit for human habitation but it cannot condemn them because there are no other lodgings available at a price which the occupants can afford, it was stated Friday by Dr. G. M. Little, city medical health officer.

The health board, who heard Dr. Little's report, decided to communicate this information to city council.

Neighbors in some instances had complained of the dilapidated condition of houses, the health officer said, but the health board's hands were tied as they could locate no other place to send the people occupying these homes.

"Unless spring work in the country reduces this portion of our population, or new building provides the type of accommodation these people can afford, it is impossible to enforce our housing regulations in all cases," Dr. Little said.

Trans-Canada Air Schedules To Be Changed

Revision in Trans-Canada Airlines schedules was announced by D'Arcy McLeod, Edmonton traffic representative, Saturday.

Effective May 1 planes leaving Edmonton will be dispatched at 6:30 a.m. instead of 7 a.m., as at present, and at 7:15 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. as at present.

The changes will enable the services from Edmonton to make more efficient and satisfactory connections with main line services, which will also be slightly changed, Mr. McLeod said.

Terry Pin's Tips On

WISDOM

The thoughts of wise men live after them. But if it wasn't for us stupid guys who need them, they would soon be forgotten.

Many wise men speak in parables. If you're wrong, no one knows the difference.

When listening to the words of the old and the wise, remember that they're only repeating what someone told them years ago.

Very wise men speak very little. Probably most of the words they know are too hard to pronounce, anyway.

Murder In Hollywood

A Bulletin Short Story Complete on This Page Every Saturday

By Jim Tully

SEVERAL men were in the living room of Jack Jarnegan's house, from the windows of which a quarter of a mile vista led to the sea. It rolled, an immense gray and green blanket, to the far horizon.

Jarnegan turned from the telephone. "It's a wrong clue," he said. "They'll never get the right one."

The news of the brilliant director's murder still rumbled over Hollywood. Edward James Trelawney had been found dead in his exclusive home in Santa Monica. His arms were above his head, his face on the floor. The door behind him was open. Some person evidently had stepped in that door, with the command, "Hands up!" He had perhaps not seen his murderer—or murderess. The flesh had closed over the steel-jacketed bullet. It was at first thought that he had died of heart failure.

Jarnegan stood for a moment, his eyes peering straight down the vista that lead to the sea.

He had come a far way in twenty years. From a cell of iron bars to a vast estate, and a name to conjure with in the world of films. Richard Benson, a character actor beyond sixty, Barney Sloan, the interviewer, and Harry Kent, a second lead and sometimes sophisticated heavy, were with him. The sun slanted across a swimming pool and threw dancing shadows of waves into the oak paneled room.

"Another wrong clue, eh?" said Harry Kent, as though Trelawney's death were an incident in a film. "He had a thick skin. I don't know how the hell a bullet got through it."

"You're wrong again, Harry," said Barney Sloan. "He was a sensitive man—a little cracked, I think—but quite a fellow—I liked him a lot."

"And so did women," put in Jarnegan. "He was born for love—the poor devil—and died for it."

"For it," Harry Kent took up the words. "He only loved himself. His ego was an altar, and he knelt before it all the time. I've never seen such self worship."

"Well—he was sure of himself," put in Jack Jarnegan. "You have to be in Hollywood."

"He'd have been the same anywhere," responded Harry Kent.

"Let's not be his judges," Richard Benson's word were tinged with kindness. He's got his sentence from a bigger Judge than us by this time."

"That's so," returned Barney Sloan, "but it's hell to be sent to Him through a hole a bullet made."

Trelawney's Soul Passed Night Of the Big Wind

A silence came over the room. The sea could be heard moaning. Richard Benson said dolefully:

"What's that that whimpers over
'ead?' said
Files on parade,
'It's Danny's soul that's passin' now,' the color-sergeant said."

"Okey, Dick — you know your Kipling — but he doesn't fit in here. It was the night of the big wind when Trelawney's soul passed. It wouldn't whimper," Jarnegan was positive. "He was an eel with a lion's strength."

Barney Sloan cut in, "And a whale's heart for women."

A faraway eucalyptus swayed gracefully in the wind.

"I knew him well," said Jarnegan. "We went over the hurdles together here — bucking the extra list. I'll never forget the first time I saw him," the volcanic director mused. "It was twenty years ago. There were five of us in the extra line that day — and all of us became known—Lon Raney was there—may the winds of eternity blow easy over his grave——"

He signed, "We were all younger then—and Time, the old witch, was never on our minds." He stopped a brief second. "I've got an idea—it may be phony—that the successful fellow has a mark on him—and if you don't see it—it's not because it isn't there, but your eyes are not sharp enough.

"Trelawney's blue serge suit was so shiny then you could see yourself in it in a fog. I could tell he was an Irishman right away and he pegged me the same way. He was what you'd call handsome in a man and beautiful in a woman, high cheek bones, vivid blue eyes, ascetic face and curly blue-black hair. He was rather solemn until something touched his fancy, and then his smile lit up the day. His teeth were even as flat pearls in a row—one of those fellows a woman never forgot, and it wasn't hard to tell why.

"I only had a thin doughnut and a weak cup of coffee that morning, but his smile did the rest. He seemed to like me right away.

"'Been here long, brother?' he asked.

"And the way he said 'brother' was soft and sincere as a June morning.

"'Nope—just came in——'

"'Carnival?'

"'Nope,' I answered, 'medicine show.'

"'My name's Trelawney,' he said. "I just left a carnival in Pasadena—thought I'd try pictures — there's nothing to lose.'

"'That's right,' laughed Lon Raney. 'There's nothing to lose'."

Jarnegan mused again. "Nothing to lose," he said. "A fellow loses everything when he loses that spirit. It's all there is in life. I'm going in a palace and Trelawney's in his grave—and we both had dreams in that extra line—and we didn't know then that we had all there was and a little bit more. It's all a devil of a striving and an ending in nothing. Trelawney knows. We spent a lot of time together the first year, and I got to know him mighty well.

"He'd been an actor here and there — and he'd spent a year in Alaska. He had a kind of humor then—he got the local preacher to beg the citizens for a new church—he gave a hundred. The poor fellow went all about Nome — and when he'd got five thousand together somebody robbed him — of course, nobody had anything on Trelawrey.

"Well, I lost track of him after a while in Hollywood—and the first thing I knew he was writing stories. He'd surely got around a lot—and he had more nerve than a band of robbers. That smile would help him get away with murder. And he knew when to laugh at himself.

Story Of Trelawney's Rise In Film Industry

"I'll never forget one incident.

"Spending his last nickel for coffee one morning, he walked five miles to a studio. He had met a few weeks before a young fellow who'd read a book by Samuel Butler. He was the head of the scenario department and he was in a hurry when Trelawney cornered him in the hallway.

"'I can't listen to you now,' he said. 'I'm on my way to a conference.'

"'The hell you can't listen,' said Trelawney. 'I'm going with you.'

"There sat around the table in the conference room as illiterate a group of men as ever voted for a California Governor.

"Trelawney began to talk, and it was like an eagle flying . . . the first dynamic note that had come into the conference room in years. The aristocrat with the heavy jowl explained that he wanted to make them rich. Though three of the group were parlor Communists, they listened attentively to an original and dramatic idea dealing with the Civil War. It was hours before he got away. But when he did, it was with a check for a thousand dollars and a contract at five hundred a week for six months.

"He walked back to Hollywood and arrived at the bank just as the doors were being closed. The man was walking away when Trelawney pounded on the glass. He returned and allowed him to enter, and politely took his money.

"The bank didn't open in the morning—and all Trelawney said to me later was, 'Why in the devil was I in such a hurry?'

"He began to go places ahead of me—but he didn't go Hollywood. He liked the fellows he'd known hunger with. Four of us out of those days met once a year come low or high water, Lon Raney, Verin Von Arnheim, Trelawney and myself. It's one of the sweetest pages in the bitter book of Hollywood. But anyhow—I'll stick to Trelawney.

"He somehow combined a charming grandiloquence with a deep and bitter pride. His eyes were always wide open, and had a startled mocking expression. He'd come out of Ireland from a town called Inniskillen. Oscar Wilde had gone to college in the same town. During the years of Trelawney's childhood, he'd heard a great deal of him.

"He once quoted the flabby Irishman's definition of Meredith—'Chaos illumined by flashes of lightning,' and said, 'God—that's a line, Jack—I'd steal it for a sub-title if the boobs could understand it'—well anyhow—take it from me—Trelawney could scorch you like a fire.

"Picking up an underworld education as a crow picks up food, he became a feature writer on a Chicago newspaper. I always thought he might go far as a writer. Ideas rattled in his brain like hail.

"When his first story was released, he became the sensation of his little day. His salary jumped above two thousand a week. He bought two automobiles and engaged four servants. He stocked his apartment with rare liquors, and drank gin.

"He installed a filing system in his home. Synopses, notations, plots, situations—everything pertaining to all that had ever been written were put in his files. His grandiloquent quality, his synthetic emotionalism became more highly developed. His salary reached three thousand a week.

"Then he fell in love with Hope Devine.

"She wasn't divine, and there was no hope if you took her seriously.

"I tried to interfere but it was hopeless.

He knew the type of gal Devine was. He had eyes sharp as diamonds. But he tried to kid himself for a long time. I don't know why he was so vain—but when the truth dawned on him that she was a two-timer, he was like an oak board silvered with lightning.

"He disappeared for weeks and I couldn't find him. One night I had a date with Devine—she knew Trelawney liked me—and she always felt he might shadow her—so she felt safe with me.

"When I drove up to her house, there sitting out front on the curb was Edward James Trelawney. He looked like a man who'd stolen a shroud. His beard was an inch long, and his eyes were redder than blood and restless as the sea out there.

"'Hello, Trelawney—old pal,' I said.

"He began to cry.

"'You see, Jack—I'm bringin' her this.' He handed me a revolver.

"'Well, well, Trelawney.' I saw the gun was loaded, and took the bullets out while I asked him how it worked.

"I had to think quickly—it was the only way out—I didn't want to turn a pal over to the cops—but that would be better than letting him kill Hope, then he would be in a spot—

"Oh, I'd give you the world and die at your feet."

"Let's take a little ride, Trelawney,' I said.

"'No, I want to see Hope.' And the brilliant drunken devil began again to cry. That was too much for me. 'All right, Trelawney, I don't know who has a better right to see her—and by God, I'll see that you do!' I held his arm and rang the bell.

"When the Chink servant answered, I said. 'Tell Miss Hope to come down.'

"I began to laugh and went over Trelawney's pockets. 'You didn't bring Hope any more presents—did you, Trelawney?'

"'No, only that one,' was the answer. The poor devil was trembling all over. 'You see, Jack—I love her.'

"When Hope came in the room you should have seen her eyes. They had every kind of disdain. She pushed him from her.

"'My God, Hope—have a little mercy in that wren's heart of yours.'

"Trelawney jumped up. 'Don't talk to my darling that way,' he said.

"'All right, Trelawney—I apologize.'

"'Then Hope got on her high horse. 'How dare you address me like that?' she shouted. 'I'll give you to understand I have no wren's heart.'

"That got me. 'None of your mock heroics now — this isn't a set. Another word out of you and I'll paddle you hard.'

"That ended that. She knew I would. I kept an eye on Trelawney, thinking that being drunk he might get to feeling chivalrous. But he didn't. Instead, he made a lunge for Hope and caught her throat.

"There was nothing else to do—I cracked him on the jaw. He crumpled like a sack and fell at Hope's feet.

"He got up, rubbing his jaw and glaring at me. Then that magnificent smile broke over his face like the sun on a dark day.

"He held out his hand. "Thanks, Jack,' he said, 'for knocking this trollop out of my head.'

"He never looked at the girl, but walked ahead of me out of the house.

"I've been directing a long time now and I don't know a thing about drama. The little waves of hurt that went over Hope's face would have been big as the ocean on a film. Trelawney had whipped her. And I saw that she really loved him.

"I'm crude as a buzz saw in watching human emotions. But I'm smart enough to know that it would take Freud a lifetime to trace all the little rivulets of feeling in the simplest peasant.

Hope Devine Changed After Love Crack-Up

"We never again alluded to Hope Devine. After the crack-up she changed—her life went straight and clean as a rule in a school girl's hand from then on—I can't explain. I can only tell—Trelawney did something to women—then followed a mist and a sweeping rain and life was never the same again—for them.

"If he ever looked sideways at Devine from that night I never knew it—he was like most big Irish—anything that made his heart bleed he never talked about. When Devine began to slip he put her on his payroll and his business manager was never allowed to tell.

"And neither did Trelawney ever attempt to write again. He became a director, one of the few I ever respected. He came near topping he at my own game. It was a funny thing about him. He was better directing men than women. But he seemed to know more about women. Away from films he was what you'd call a woman's man. He liked men and was thoroughly masculine—but the touch of a soft flesh, a rare perfume, walking with a girl while the poppies blew in the wind were things nearest his heart.

"He'd evidently always been the same. He was the dude of Nome—had the only dress suit in the town. He was snowed in for two months in a shack with a couple of other men and he never whimpered. Anything big never fazed him.

"He became a kind of an entertainer in Nome, and there was a girl there who played in skits with him. She was lovely to look at and only seventeen. There's nothing fair in life but a gal like that up against Thelawney was a little too much. A lot of men were in love with her. Even Kaminsky, the owner of the place, wanted to marry her. But that didn't bother Trelawney. She loved him and he knew it. A lot of things happened and he breezed out of Nome, hit a carnival at Seattle and drifted to Pasadena. Kaminsky gave free drinks to everyone in his place that day.

"With Trelawney out of her life she got stung with the movie bug, landed in Hollywood and was beginning to go places by the time he got started.

"I was with Trelawney the night he met her again. They told me of a new girl who was a comer—had everything—and some goof in the publicity department had called her Zaza Zarue, with the idea that it had euphoney. They said she could act till the cows came home. And they were right. She could act till they went away again. She didn't have talent—it was genius. Anyhow—I didn't know that then—but I told them very frankly I'd take no chance on an unknown girl—that I'd have to give her a test.

"'That's okeh,'" they told me.

"'You'll see an actress this time,' Zimmerman, the producer, said.

"I'd been hearing that guff for a long time. I asked for a special test, leading man and all. They brought her to the set and I went to work. Trelawney was with me, and met the gal casually as you'd ask for a cigarette. I never like to have another director on the set when I work, but Trelawney was different.

"When everything was ready and I'd had the violin fill the place with sound, I called the leading man and the girl together and said, 'Both concentrate now—get yourselves in the mood—nothing on earth exists but this—you're a man and a woman parting in this world forever. You begin the scene with a sob, Miss Zarue—just remain silent with your eyes on me. I'll not speak to you again. The music will play—when I raise my hand it will stop and you begin—and make the sob come out of your heart."

"I had the violin start again. It began high as a wail, then went lower and lower till it filled the set with weird and beautiful sound. It went on for some time. I could see Trelawney standing, his eyes half closed. Then I raised my hand and the music stopped.

"The girl began to sob. It startled even me with its sincerity. You should have seen her then. The long hair fell like waves of gold. Beauty on the wrack, she was all women crying over the hurts of men. The tears came slowly from her large eyes, then fell quickly. Her arms reached outward. It was a full half minute before her words came, tremulous, vibrant, and musical.

"'I love you, love you, love you. Oh, I'd give you the world and die at your feet. I'd cut the sun in twenty dollar gold pieces for you. We could go some place together, far, far away.'

"Her pleading went on. The cameras clicked slowly. Every eye on the set was focused on her.

"There was Trelawney — his body immovable as granite, his right hand opened and closed. Deep lines from the eyes downward had suddenly come into his face.

"Then the leading man cut in, 'Get away from me — scum.' He pushed the girl backward. She shook her head, and her hair went every which way in curls of scorched gold. It was a great moment for me. The tempest was on. Words tinged with fire sputtered from the girl. A pause followed. I could hear Trelawney sighing. A calmness fell over the set. Zaza set herself for the last speech. With taut body, blazing eyes, and hands clenched, she stood before the man for whom but a few moments before she was ready to die.

"Resonant, with clear enunciation, she began. 'So you'd throw away what no other man could buy. You'd use my soul and my word of honor, and everything that a woman holds dear, as you would an umbrella on a rainy day. The rain over, you'd fold it up and put it in a corner and forget it. But it can't be—it won't be. The light of my life goes out when you go. There'll be no more sunshine for me any more. No more children laughing, no birds singing, nor never again a silver cloud in the far away beautiful sky. It all goes when you go.'

"The singing words stopped. One sob followed another. She threw her mane of golden hair back, then said tensely, and slowly, 'But we're going to be together, dear — just you and I — we're never, never going to part again — for years and years we'll be together.'

"Her tears fell. Her mouth trembled in uncontrolled agony. Then her words came, soft as the petal of a dew-drenched rose.

"'Just you and me, lover, just you and me—arms ever around and around.'

"When the echo of the words died away, the star sneered, 'Well, I'm on my way. It's all over.'

"I even forgot it wasn't real, so splendid was the girl's acting.

"'All right,' she said. 'Take these with you.'

"She stepped backward slowly and pumped the bullets into his body. He fell, groaning. Zaza, wide-eyed, her hair streaming down her bosom, stood as one petrified in pain.

"My hand went up. The cameras stopped grinding. A minute passed before all had recovered from the effect of the scene.

"I crossed to Zaza and said, "You're a great actress'."

"Still under the spell of emotion, she said, 'Thank you.'

Zaza Found Holding Body Of Trelawney

"My heart pounding, I rode away with Trelawney. I knew I had a great actress for my next film, and I'd get the credit for her discovery.

"'You're a lucky lad, Jack. She'll burn your picture into big money.' Trelawney watched the palms flit by before he said, 'And it never dawned on me. I knew her in Alaska.'

"'You what?'

"'Yes.'

"'Well, I'll be damned. Why didn't you let on?'

"'I didn't know the set-up — besides, I didn't say good-bye to her when I left.'

"So that was it, I thought, and didn't say any more. For after all, when you've directed pictures a long time you take things easy. So I let Trelawney alone with any memory he had. I'm not what you'd call exactly unobservant though. I saw for a second that his eyes were sad.

"It wasn't long before the papers were full of Zaza Zarue.

"In the meantime, Kaminsky, the cafe owner, had struck gold, and had more millions than Caesar had brains. A lot of tales had come out of Alaska about him. Trelawney told me a few. I guess he was a very crooked fellow — and even cheated a drunken miner called Jack Shields out of his claim. In buying gold dust he'd wear his finger nails long so that when he scooped it up with his hands a lot of it would lodge behind.

"He'd offer her everything sent her money and gold. But she wouldn't go back. Kaminsky wasn't dumb. He knew Trelawney was in Hollywood.

"She was really one of those whither thou goest girls, though able to do anything on the screen. Light as a feather and heavy as the world, she was the greatest actress in Hollywood.

"When Hope Devine was 'way down and she was tops, she'd get Hope a lot of good parts with her for Hope could talk to her about Trelawney."

"One night we were in front of the Chinese Theatre, and Hope Devine stepped up to him. Cardinal Richelieu greeting the King could not have been more polite. He might desert a woman, but he'd never be impolite to her. He'd have put her at ease if he were a hangman taking her to the gallows.

"'So glad, Miss Devine, so glad to see you—I have been so rushed — so sorry not to be able to see more of you.'

"More palaver like that, and the first thing I knew he was pushing her in my lap, and I had to take her home.

"That night it happened. It seems like years ago. Here's the strange thing. I could sense that Hope had a great yearning for Trelawney. She kept saying, 'I'm going to see him if it's the last thing I do.'

"I put her in the apartment and made up my mind to watch. Sure enough I saw her come out in a little while and get in a taxi. I followed with my driver, Confucius. We parked a little way from Trelawney's home. I walked up. Pretty soon I heard footsteps so loud they would rouse a dead scenario writer. I looked around. There was no one in sight.

"I hurried into the house. Holding Trelawney and sobbing like her heart would break and saying, 'Dear, dear, I have you now,' was Zaza Zarue.

"'Come, Zaza,' I said. 'We'll get out of this.' Another girl stood nearby in a sports suit. By her side was Hope Devine.

"'I thought I left you at home,' I said to her.

"'You did—but I felt something was happening to him.' Her eyes were red and swollen.

"'Who did this?' I asked the girl in the sports outfit.

"'I don't know—I just heard his body fall.'

"I looked outside the door. Many cigarette butts were scattered about. They were the brand Trelawney smoked. Again I figured quick. I knew mighty well I'd implicate none of the three women. I might have been wrong as hell, but I just couldn't see them go through what I had before a judge. Anyhow, half mechanically I said to Zaza, 'Did you do this?'

"She looked down at him. 'Do you think I'd hurt all I ever had?' she asked.

"'Well, all of you go,' I said. 'We can't bring him back.'

Perhaps Suffering Had Ennobled Zaza

"A maid, coming to work discovered Trelawney next day. The police were up in the air.

"I didn't say a word. All sorts of people had theories. Then Confucius gave me a tip. Someone parked right behind him and was in a hurry.

"I called at Zaza's house the next day.

"'Well, they got the murderer,' I said.

"'Did they?' she asked. 'Who?'

"'Kaminsky.'

"Just then the bell rang.

"She introduced me to Kaminsky. We talked casually about Alaska, and I said slowly, 'Too bad about Trelawney.'

"'Yes, wasn't it?" he said.

"'I know why you killed him.'

"He jumped up.

"I covered him. 'Give me that gun. I'm not the law,' I said, 'and I'm not turning you in.' He could not believe I wasn't a cop.

"Then Zaza came out of her daze.

"He began to plead to her, 'I lose you twice,' he said, 'both times to him.'

"The sheer contradictory horror of the whole thing could be seen in her eyes.

"An etching of Trelawney was nearby. Her eyes went from the dead to the living, and back to the dead again.

"'And you——' she stepped back from him.

"'I love you so much. I lose you twice—and he do not care. I give you everything—he nothing.'

"I don't know what justice is—a wind through a broken reed perhaps—or a blind man sleeping on the grave of a dream. I knew that I wasn't going to ruin Zaza's career for something she couldn't help—and yet—murder was murder—and Trelawney was my friend.

"A second thought came——

"He'd killed Zaza again and again. But had he? The suffering he had caused might have ennobled her made her the great actress I knew she was.

"It was gorgeous to see her then—and I wondered if Trelawney was watching from his grave—the mistress of the realms of tragedy—the sweetheart of despair—the ship of her life rocked so fiercely it would never be calm again. Yet there she was—serene as heather when the wind is gone.

"Her head went down for a brief second, and she said as though we were not near, 'I loved him so.'

'I took her arm and threw my head backward at Kaminsky. He took the hint and hurried from the room.

Gentlemen Never Tell

"So that's who killed Trelawney," said Barney Sloan.

Harry Kent watched a pelican flying down the vista to the sea.

Dick Benson whistled.

Into each life some rain must fall—some days must be dark and dreary.

Kent's eyes left the pelican. "Will you shut your bazoo?" he said.

"Okey," responded Benson, and becoming serious, said, "Suppose someone gave it away now."

"It'd be too late," said Jarnegan. "Kaminsky was shot in Alaska a year ago by a miner called Jack Shields."

"Revenge," suggested Kent.

"Nope," returned Jarnegan. "He was buying some gold dust, and the miner caught him cheating."

"Huh!" Kent's eyes went down the vista. "The district attorney might like to hear your story."

"I'm not so sure, Harry," returned Jarnegan. "It might close the Trelawney case."

"And get you in trouble for shielding a murderer," said Dick Benson.

"I wouldn't say that," responded Jarnegan, with slight sarcasm. "You are all gentlemen here—guests in my home."

"That's right, we're all gentlemen here." Barney Sloan's words were slightly sarcastic. "We've got to be that or we wouldn't be here."

"You said a mouthful, Queen," Jarnegan laughed.

"Suppose," said Harry Kent, "that someone did tell the district attorney."

"He wouldn't believe it—for that would end the Trelawney case."

Jarnegan's eyes again went down the vista that lead to the sea.

GREAT BOOKS IN BRIEF

By ELIZABETH COATESWORTH JAMES

"THE BIBLE"

AN attempt to scan the Bible may be courageous, it may be effrontery, or it may be that the writer just does not know any better. My hope is to recall a few of the interesting facts about the Bible by this aerial view.

As you probably learned in Sunday School, recently or years ago, the Bible contains sixty-six books; thirty-nine in the Old Testament and twenty-seven in the New Testament. To connect the two Testaments with one sentence, we might say that the New fulfills the prophecies of the Old.

Not that the Old Testament is entirely prophecy. The first books are the history of the Hebrew race and their law; one group relate the work of the Judges and Kings of Israel; another gives the words of the many prophets; and there is the pure literature including the Psalms and stories of Esther and Ruth. To study the literary gems of the Bible is to become familiar with some of the most beautiful literature in the world's history; these gems are studied in public schools as literature.

Read again the first chapter of Genesis for the story of creation. God looked upon His universe and found it good. God's creation of man in his own image is told through the story of Adam and Eve. Man's choice to know evil is told by the eating of the apple and the loss of Paradise.

Then came murder when Cain killed his brother and hid from God. When men grew further away from God, He sought a righteous man and found Noah who followed God's command and had the ark ready when the flood destroyed the earth. God then made a covenant and signed it with the rainbow that he would not again destroy mankind with a flood.

CALLING HEBREWS

Then comes the calling of the Hebrew race, with Abram hearing the voice of Jehovah telling him to go forth into a new land. When a son was born to the elderly couple, Abraham and Sarah knew the power of God to change the laws of nature. God then taught that human sacrifice is not pleasing to Him, for he caught the arm of Abraham and prevented his killing Isaac.

Isaac's two sons, Esau and Jacob, brought suffering to their father, for Jacob tricked his brother out of his birthright. Jacob had many children of whom Joseph was the favorite. But his brothers hated Joseph and threw him into a pit; then they dipped his coat of many colors into blood and told Jacob that Joseph was dead.

But the will of God was at work, for Joseph was saved by traders who took him to Egypt and sold him into the household of Potiphar. Joseph had ups and downs in Egypt but he rose to control the food stowed against famine and drought. When the famine dove Jacob's family to Egypt for grain, they found Joseph in control. He forced Jacob and all the sons to come, thus bringing the Hebrew race into Egypt where they finally became slaves to the powerful Egyptian race.

RELEASED BY MIRACLE

Numbering three million souls that were a valuable property to their masters, the Hebrews suffered until God released them by the miracles wrought by the hand of Moses, the last being the death of the oldest son in every Egyptian household. The Hebrew fathers marked their doors the night before with the blood of a sacrificial lamb; they had their families prepared for flight when Pharaoh gave the word.

When the Egyptians saw the work of the angel of death, they cried to the Hebrews to leave. But at the Red Sea, the Egyptian army descended. The waters parted to allow the escaping families safe passage, then rolled together to destroy the pursuing army.

Dissension came with the years of wandering in the desert. Moses sought God for law and received the Ten Commandments. Finally Moses was taken to God without the knowledge of any man. Joshua then took the city of Jericho, and the Jewish people entered the Promised land. With generations they grew, making Jerusalem their capitol with the worship of God centered in the temple built by King Solomon.

DISSATISFACTION

Dissatisfaction caused the tribes to ask their priests for human rulers to settle disputes; God gave them the line of Judges, the first being Othniel, the last Samuel. A line of Kings followed, David and Solomon being the most notable.

During all these generations prophets of God emphasized spiritual growth, moral living, and God's plan for the atonement through the Messiah. Solomon collected the moral truths into the book of Proverbs, Daniel, Isaiah, Ezekial, Elijah, Jeremiah and others pointed to the time of Christ.

Then begins the New Testament with the birth of Christ. Wisemen saw a new star and sought to learn its meaning; shepherds on the hills saw the Glory of God and heard the Voice speaking from Heaven. The Child of Bethlehem came into the world in a stable and slept in a manger.

Joseph fled into Egypt with the baby and Mary; when the order to kill all boy babies among the Jews was passed. Joseph returned to Nazareth where the boy studied carpentry with Joseph. When the Young Man was thirty years old, he performed His first miracle, turning the water into wine at the marriage feast in Cana.

Not one word did Christ write. His teachings are recorded by four of his followers, Mathew, Mark, Luke and John. The Acts of his disciples after His death are related by Luke.

HEALING OF SICK

After three years of teaching and healing the sick, of raising the dead, of declaring forgiveness of since to penitent sinners, the time came for the fulfillment of prophecy. In Gethsemane Christ prayed to God for strength; then He went down from the mountain. Judas met Him with a kiss; the soldiers arrested Him. The rulers tried Him and found Him innocent, the the mobs shouted for His crucifixion. Between two thieves He hung on a cross until He cried, "Father, it is finished."

His body was anointed and placed in a tomb which was sealed by the Roman soldiers. Three days later the tomb was found empty. Several times Christ appeared to his disciples, three of whom saw the Ascension when He rose from their sight toward the heavens.

Slowly His followers began to spread the Word which He taught. As teachers they went to other lands; Paul went to Rome and Athens, Peter and John traveled widely. Legend tells of the martyr's deaths that met some of them; Peter is said to have been crucified and that he asked to hang head down. John's vision of the future is given in the Revelations, the last book of the Bible.

First Book on Farming

"A Boke of Husbandrye"—believed to be the first book on farming printed in England—was bought recently for a sum equal to about $1,500 on behalf of the British Museum at Sotheby's salerooms. This book, so small that it could easily be slipped in the pocket, was printed in 1523 by one Richarde Pynson. It was written by Sir Anthony Fitzherbert, of Norbury, Derbyshire, and is in excellent condition, though colored with age. It is bound in morocco.

Grads on Spot

Fund Mounting

Baseball Yen

PERHAPS never before in the long history of the Grads will the team enter an important series in as weakened a condition as will the present team next Tuesday night. Riddled by accidents and illnesses, the Grads will be compelled to play through the series with only three of the regulars in action, according to word given out by the Grad management last night.

Taking them in order, here's the official "lowdown" on each player: Capt. Noel MacDonald—suffering from a bad cold, but expects to play throughout the series; Helen Northup—seriously injured in the final practice game against the Boy Grads on Wednesday night; almost certain to be on the sidelines; Sophie Brown—suffering from a sprained ankle, but will probably be on the job; Etta Dann—the only member of the regulars who hasn't taken the count during the past few weeks; Mabel Munton—slowly recovering from an injured ankle; not likely to see much service in the coming series; Jean Williamson—suffering from a touch of the flu, but hopes to be "in there" next Tuesday; Betty Ross—okeh, and ready to go; Kay MacRitchie—17-year-old newcomer, full of fight and will get her big chance by reason of the above chapter of woe.

It's just about the toughest proposition the Grads have had to face in many a long year. The team is definitely on the spot and that Underwood trophy may at last leave Edmonton. It's a time when basketball fans should rally to the support of the team, especially those who are always hoping that the games will be plenty tough. One thing sure, the fans can depend upon it that the girls who are able to carry on will give all they have in an effort to retain the trophy.

Last night the girls held a short shooting practice, and on Monday night both the St. Louis girls and the Grads will work out together for about an hour. The visiting girls will arrive on Monday afternoon, and will register at the Corona. There will be ten in the St. Louis party—eight players, a manager and a coach. Only three of the girls have ever visited Edmonton before, and their work will be remembered as outstanding.

The opening game will be preceded by the usual formalities, while an additional feature will be the presentation of mementoes to the members of the E.A.C. hockey team who will be guests of the Grads for the occasion. The officials in charge will be Bill Douglas, referee, and Ed. Tomick, umpire. All games will start at 8:30 p.m.

Fund Mounting Slowly

WITH the welcome-home parade successfully disposed of last night, the Citizens' Committee, organized to see that the E.A.C. Juniors are properly honored on their return from the hockey wars, will turn its full attention today to boosting the presentation fund up to the objective of $550. Last night the figure stood at $327.

For many members of the E.A.C. team the campaign just finished will be their last in junior hockey—the final chapter that will always be remembered as a grand climax to "kid" hockey. The entire club contributed a western championship to Edmonton's sport records and the proposed gift of an engraved wrist watch to each player is a fitting mark of appreciation.

Phil Seaby and John Michaels, two of leaders of the Citizens' Committee, stress the fact it is dimes, quarters and half dollars that are needed today to reach the objective set and insure that each member of the team has a worthwhile souvenir of the year he did his durndest for Edmonton. You can toss your contribution into the collection at a score of popular downtown spots such as Mike's News Stand, Shasta Cafe, Johnson's Cafe, Corner Drug Stores and the establishment of Harris McLeod in the lobby of the McLeod Building.

Baseball Still Supreme

TO BE perfectly frank I have often wondered in recent years if baseball were doomed to give way to softball, but my fears on this score were completely routed last night. Baseball is still the supreme summer game with kids—if they are given a chance to play it.

Cecil Goldstick called the first practice for his Arrow Bus juvenile and junior baseball teams yesterday afternoon at the Municipal golf course and no less than 150 kids turned out to seek places on the two squads. That is an actual count and a list of names is available to back it up. Soldier Thomas, who has agreed to coach two teams, thought he was back in the U.S. army as he struggled to break the mob up into units for the first workout. The next practices for these teams will be held at Boyle Street diamond today at 2:00 p.m. and Sunday at the same hour.

Every youngster is welcome. Other teams will be formed shortly in both divisions and every kid will get a chance to play. With this sort of interest, organization of junior and juvenile leagues should be rushed through at once.

SOCCER GAME HERE TONIGHT OPENS SEASON

A new era of soccer popularity in Edmonton is expected to be ushered in tonight when the opening game of the 1939 season is staged at Clarke Stadium, with Civics and Scona United as the competing teams in a fixture of the Vets-Martin competition.

After some years of decline in this city, soccer this year is springing back into a major sport rating, with a new and enthusiastic interest being taken in it by players, fans and officials.

ARRANGE PARADE

Officers of the Edmonton soccer council have arranged for a great parade to mark the opening with all due ceremony and representatives of a number of other branches of sport will take part in this, as well as every team competing in all the branches of the association this year.

In addition, there will be a ceremonial kick-off, with Captain Noel MacDonald, of the Commercial Grads, putting the ball into play, attended by Acting-Mayor Doug. Grout and the president of the council, Col. T. C. Sims.

LINEUP OF MARCH

Including 17 soccer teams, there will be a total of no less than 22 units taking part in the march past the Stadium grandstand. Following is the order of march behind the C.N.R. Pipe band, which will be in the lead: Edmonton Grads, the Edmonton Civics team, the Legion of Frontiersmen, Edmonton Cricket League officials, Scona United team, St. John Ambulance, Scottish United team, Eastwood Junior Rangers, Bonnie Doon Junior Royals, Clover Leaf Juniors, Eastwood Juvenile Rangers, Crusader Juveniles, Ritchie Midgets, King Edward Midgets, Eastwood Midget Rangers, Crusader Midgets, Crusader Bantams, Cloverdale Royals, Cloverdale Giants and two Cloverdale Bantam teams.

EXPECT FINE GAME

Following the various ceremonies, the game itself will get started at 6:30 o'clock and a real battle is expected. Civics enter the game as favorites because of past performances but soccer critics are expecting Scona United to give them plenty of opposition and possibly come out with a win as the Southsiders have rounded up some fine material and have been showing up well in workputs.

Following are the lineups of the two teams:

Civics: Ness, Laurie, Davidson, Grimble, Olander, Lewis, Francis, R. Graham, Johnson, Anderson, Skidmore, Dalzeil, Ross and Hislop.

Scona United: W. Kerr, T. Geldart, H. Pither, K. Mansfield, W. Lunde, J. Hubbert, J. Kelly, P. James, R. Shaw, J. Smith, R. Topping, G. Ross, L. Smitten, A. Scott.

All players of the Civics are asked to be at the Stadium at 6:00 o'clock, while Scona United players are asked to be at the Commercial hotel at 5:00 o'clock sharp.

E.R.R. CLUB

There will be a practice of the Edmonton Radial Railway Club at the Stadium grounds on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock and another on Tuesday night at 6:30 o'clock.

From the Big Parade

Montreal Football Club Will Be Re-Organized

MONTREAL, April 22.—Complete reorganization of Montreal entry in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union is underway and its franchise will be under control of a new slate of officers, the Montreal Herald says Friday.

The newspaper says Ernie Hamilton, former president of the Montreal Football Club, will head a directorate which will comprise the same men backing Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

ARGOS MAY SUFFER LOSS OF PLAYERS

TORONTO, April 22.—Rumors flew around the city's football haunts Friday that Toronto Argonauts, Canadian football champions for two seasons, would be wrecked by retirements and player removals.

The hottest rumor was that Bob Isbister, star punting half of the champions, would be moved to Hamilton by his employers and play his football for that city's Tigers in the Interprovincial Football Union. Other gossip had Art Evans, Argo captain and middlewing, following Isbister and Jim Palmer, appointed Hamilton, coach several weeks ago.

BOB ISBISTER GOES TO HAMILTON CLUB

HAMILTON, Ont., April 22.—Bob Isbister, kicking ace of Toronto Argonauts, Dominion football champions, soon will be transferred to this city by his employers and will be available to play with Hamilton Tigers in the Big Four next season, it was learned Friday.

Tennis

The Canadian National Tennis Club held its first meeting of the season Thursday in the club house.

Work is starting immediately to put the courts in good shape and ready for play after the first of May. The official opening day is set for Sunday, May 7, and a good turnout is expected.

Seven B.C. Entries Dominion Ring Meet

MONTREAL, April 22. — Seven British Columbia battlers have thrown in their lots with the steadily-growing list of amateurs seeking titles in the Dominion boxing championships here April 26 and 27, it was announced Friday.

Headed by Gordie McConnachie, a bantamweight, the group consists of Nick Serada, welterweight; Kenny Lindsay and Joe Turner, flyweights; Dick Walsh, featherweight; Gordie Woodhouse, welterweight, and Joe Ashenbrenner, a middleweight.

Arnold Bertram, boxing instructor, is expected to come East with the team.

THAT YANKEE FUSE BURNING FAST ALREADY

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

It's time somebody warned the American Baseball league that the New York Yankee fuse already is burning.

Ordinarily the winning—or losing—of a couple of games in a row at the start of the season isn't indicative of anything in particular. But the Yankees are in a class by themselves, and they aren't being bashful about showing it.

JUST PICK UP AGAIN

After being rained out three days in a row, the world champions picked up right where they left off last year by blanking Boston Red Sox 2-0 Thursday and out-filibustering Washington Senators yesterday 6-3.

Their bearing in these two appearances must have been saddening to those observers who predicted the race in the junior circuit would be closer this year than last.

The champs made a sluggish beginning a year ago, lost their first game and half of all the games they played in April, except for one solitary day in mid-May, they never were in first place until June.

PERFECT START

In contrast the club is away to a perfect start this time. Red Ruffing gave a superb seven-hit pitching performance in the opener and Bill Dickey helped with a home run and Jake Powell with a timely triple. Yesterday Lefty Gomez did almost as well except for one wobbly inning which Joe DeMaggio and Joe Gallagher offset with two home runs, scoring five runs in the third inning.

This is a case where a word to the wise won't be sufficient. It will take a lot of pitching and power to prevent the Yanks from making a walkaway of their event right from the gun. Some hopeful specimens of both were produced yesterday.

Technocrats Take Playoff Opener

SASKATOON, April 22.—Saskatoon Technocrats downed Regina Juniors, last year's titlists, 53-32 here last night in the first game of the Saskatchewan junior basketball championship round. The second game of the two-game total point series will be played tonight. In the first half Techs piled up a 27-9 lead.

Abbott Cup Holders Get Royal Greeting

WINNERS of the historic Abbott Cup, emblem of western junior hockey supremacy, and gallant losers in the Memorial Cup finals, Edmonton Athletic Club juniors were welcomed home last night by a cheering throng of more than 25,000 citizens.

As the train bearing the team pulled into the Canadian National station, the band of the 49th Battalion struck up the first note of welcome to the warriors returning from a three-weeks' campaign of title-hunting and cheers echoed and re-echoed from thousands of throats down the platform, in the station itself, and along the streets.

When the players set foot on the platform, they were given a warm welcome by Lieut. Governor J. C. Bowen and Mrs. Bowen, Acting Mayor Doug Grout, Assistant Commissioner Hancock of the R.C.M.P., Chief Constable A. G. Shute, Acting Fire Chief McGregor, President Nick MacPhee of the Sports Boosters Club and Phil Seaby, vice-president of Edmonton Athletic Club.

ROARING CHEERS

Roaring cheers sounded as the players made their way through the station and into the cars waiting to carry them into one of the greatest parades witnessed in Edmonton for many years.

Parade Marshall John Michaels, who, incidentally came through with flying colors, got the happy caravan underway through the streets that were literally jammed with citizens who have followed the exploits of the club closely these many weeks past.

The 75-piece Schoolboys Band under the direction of Mr. Newlove, and the 49th Battalion band under direction of Frank G. Aldridge added a stirring note to the general gaiety as the parade coursed down 100 street to Jasper avenue. From there, the route was west to 104 street and return to the Macdonald hotel, where it disbanded.

TENDERED BANQUET

All along the route the sidewalks were completely filled with well-wishers and in many places the crowds swarmed into the streets, with many traffic jams occurring but these were always quickly straightened out by the traffic squad of the city police working under Sergeant Major Alex Riddell.

When the parade finally broke up, and with cheers still ringing in their ears, the players were tendered a banquet in the Macdonald by the committee in charge.

In addition to the juniors, there were the Edmonton pro hockey players, E.A.C. juvenile midget and juvenile teams, Gainer's Capitals, western intermediate champions, and other clubs.

All members of the committee who arranged the reception are deserving of great credit for the fine manner in which it was carried out, as there was not a single hitch in the plans at any time.

The committee was made up of the following: Marshall, John Michaels; transportation, Lloyd McIntyre; hockey teams, Hally Hepburn; platform reception, Phil Seaby, Ken Duggan and Eric Duggan; baggage, Ambrose Allard, Eddie Malloy and Keith Huckvale.

BIRDS OF TRAVEL WITH GOOD YEARS

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 22.—Sixty-eight identification bands taken from the legs of Canada geese by Eskimos and Indians on the east shores of Hudson Bay have been returned to Jack Miner by a representative of the Department of the Interior who visited the area last summer.

The bands bore the tags of Mr. Miner from his sanctuary here. Their dates and inscriptions give an informative sidelight on the habits and length of life of this species of migratory fowl. The number of bands and the years follow: 1926, eight; 1927, 16; 1928, eight; 1929, two; 1930, eight; 1931, 15; 1932, five; 1933, two; and one each in 1934-5-6-7.

Cricket Notes

STRATHCONA CLUB

In preparation for the opening game of the season, Strathcona C.C. will practice Saturday afternoon at the Southside Athletic grounds at 3:00 p.m. A full attendance of members is requested and others desirous of joining the team should be on hand or phone the captain, Petley Jones, at 21820, or the secretary, E. C. Ebdon, at 32969. Regular practices will be held throughout the season on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

El Chico in Second Try at First 1939 Win Today

NEW YORK, April 22.—El Chico makes his second try to chalk up a 1939 victory today in the Stuyvesant Handicap six furlongs at Jamaica, and the question before the house is: Can Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons give the little redhead the business twice in a row?

Last Saturday the 1938 two-year-old champion went to the post a 1-7 shot, and Fitzsimmons sent Mrs H C Phipps' Gilded Knight out to beat him by a nose in a six-furlong overnight allowance.

In today's $3,500 event, Sunny Jim is sending another entry against Chico and his William Ziegler, Jr., stablemate Our Mat. This time it's Sea Captain, which ran third a week ago and William Woodward's lightly-weighted sprinter, Thellusson.

The latter colt has been the talk of the Woodward stable over the winter. He'll be carrying only 106 pounds to Chico's 126 then.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

LEWISTON, Me.—Jack Dubois, 153, Sherbrooke, Que., knocked out Don Swazey, 158, Portland, Me. (2).

NEW YORK — Frankie Blair, 157½, Camden, N.J., stopped Glen Lee, 155¼, Edison, Neb. (3).

CHICAGO — Chester Rutecki, 166½, Chicago, stopped Billy Martin, 164, San Francisco (4).

LOS ANGELES—Ceferino Garcia, 155, Los Angeles, stopped Al Romero, 157, Los Angeles (10).

Softball

Annual meeting of the "Y" Softball Association has been set on one day to Wednesday, April 26, according to President Ev Shaver. This will avoid conflict with the Grads game. Eight o'clock is the starting time. From the number of enquiries pouring in at the "Y" office a big season is coming over the horizon.

Serious shortage of rule books is reported by sporting goods dealers. None of the 1938 edition are obtainable and the new books are not due until the middle of May.

Skull Still Supreme But Has Close Call

THE SKULL is still supreme! But that sinister, mysterious warrior came close to meeting his master in "Soldier" Thomas at the Memorial Hall last night as another near-capacity crowd cheered wildly at the wind-up of the weekly wrestling card.

"Lady Luck" was perched very firmly in the Skull's corner and it was her wiles more than her favorite's rough and tough wrestling ability that cheated the popular Soldier out of a well-earned victory.

Thomas had the first and only fall of the bout in the rack after 13 minutes of rugged action through the medium of three well-executed flying tackles and a body press.

COMES THE BLOW-UP

Then came the blow-up. The second stanza was just 11 minutes old when both men were incapacitated and unable to continue as a Thomas flying tackle resulted in a head-on collision which knocked the two gladiators very horizontal indeed.

Owing to the fact that the time limit was not reached, the official verdict was "no contest."

The Soldier went berserk after the accident and it took Promoter Mike Cutcher and six stalwart assistants to subdue him and get him to his dressing room. The attending physician, Dr. F. W. Crang, diagnosed Thomas' condition as a slight concussion, while the Skull came out of it with a severe "crick" in his neck but with his mask still firmly in place.

O'DOWDY BEATS DANDY

Rowdy Patrick O'Dowdy and Dandy Davis met in the semi wind-up, with the Irish bad man winning two of the three falls. O'Dowdy took the first after 24 minutes with a punishing arm-breaker.

Davis came back to even the count with a quick fall, as it took him just three minutes to flatten O'Dowdy with his favorite and highly-effective pile-driver. However, the payoff was Patrick's when he tossed Davis into the aisles and "slammed" him over a couple of hastily-vacated chairs. On returning to the ring O'Dowdy completed his chore with another slam and body press.

The preliminary was an interesting joust between Maurice "The Bouncer" DeBleick and the barefooted Gil Pearson, of Calgary. DeBleick got the nod from Referee Goldstick in 14 minutes after barely escaping disqualification when he aroused the ire of the "Tiger" by some rough work in the clinches.

Leo Magirl was the third man in the ring, most of the time, for the main events.

ONTARIO FARMER MAKES OFFER OF EYE TO PARSONS

TORONTO, April 22.—Because he figures it doesn't take more than one eye to do a job of farming, Arthur Smith, 28-year-old Manilla, Ont., farm hand, has offered to give one of his eyes to George Parsons, Toronto Maple Leaf hockey player whose left eye was injured in a late-season game.

The offer was made in a letter to Parsons, addressed in care of Andy Lytle, Toronto Daily Star sports writer. Smith, who never has seen Parsons play professional hockey, intimated George was his favorite player in the National Hockey league.

"He must be a swell guy," Parsons said Friday when given the letter. "Even if such an operation was possible I would not let him do it. And I never even met him.

"I'll write him and thank him right away. We go to Fenelon Falls for the summer and when I'm up that way I'll drop in and see him. And the next time I play a game of hockey I'll see that he is in the front row."

"FAREWELL to SPORT" by PAUL GALLICO

BRIEFLY, the publicized tenets of the universities are that (a) their football-players are all bona-fide students in good standing, and (b) they are all amateurs who do not receive any fee, emoluments, or honorariums for their services on the football field. In nine cases out of ten, one or the other or neither of these will stand up. Somewhere along the line there has been an evasion, a half-truth, or just a plain downright falsehood.

The evasions are almost too many to enumerate or remember. The scholarship racket is the best known, with a few colleges turning sufficiently square to list frankly a certain sum to be set aside for athletic scholarships — in other words, to pay a young man's tuition through college in return for his services on the team, an exchange of education for football, which is a pretty good bargain for the university. Then of course there is the phony job swindle worked by nearly every school that needs good football-players.

Gallico

It appears to be strangely axiomatic that only the sons of the poor seem to have real talent for football. This dodge is handled by the athletic office or the prominent alumnus. And the prominent alumnus is himself an important cog in the machinery of supplying football-players. Frequently he buys one or two and presents them to his grateful Alma Mammy, or constitutes himself a Scout to look for promising material and import it to his college much as a baseball scout combs the bush leagues for fresh ivory.

COACH HELPS TOO

The new football coach generally brings a few transfers with him, boys who can play his system and who will be useful in breaking in the machine. Many up-to-date colleges maintain prep-school farms (in exactly the same manner that the major-league baseball teams own minor-league franchises and use the teams to train and season promising material), and a couple of the southern colleges even went so far as to stage pre-season football try-outs. Boys who made the grade in the opinion of the examining coach were given scholarships. Those who didn't had to postpone their thirst for knowledge and a college degree. In their search for first-class, winning football material the colleges have had to use every method found useful and practical by the organizers of professional sport in other branches.

The thing that is so inexplicable is that there is nothing actually wrong with what the colleges are doing to promote good football teams for themselves except their stubborn and dishonest insistence that they are still playing the game under the old standards. They haven't done that for the last ten or fifteen years. The old standards no longer exist and, for that matter, are probably no longer useful or valid. But by refusing to admit this the colleges have managed to get themselves involved in a dirty and subversive business.

In the first place, there is a bad economic balance, or rather unbalance. In the old days participation in a college sport conferred a favor on the boy. He received, free of charge, the benefit of expert teaching and coaching in a sport, the pleasure of winning a place on a team and earning a distinguishing mark in the form of insignia or a letter, occasional trips away from the school, and the joys of competing against his equals as a member of a team representing his college.

THE NEW SLANT

Today it is just reversed. It is the boy who confers the favor upon the college. The casual and frequently pleasurable practice periods of a couple of hours an afternoon have been supplanted by long, hard, daily grinds that are continued under floodlights long after darkness has set in, tedious spring practice, and perhaps a three-week training session at a football camp before the beginning of the fall school term. The long hours on the field are further supplemented by night blackboard lectures and early-morning skull practice. He is directly responsible, if he becomes a star, for earning thousands upon thousands of dollars for his college. Yale recently sold the broadcasting rights for Yale football games to an oil-refining company for twenty thousand dollars. And because of the attendant publicity, the boy comes under a terrific nervous strain as he acquires responsibility for victory or defeat.

Whether or not he reaps any benefit from the glare of publicity to which he is subjected is debatable, but that he is definitely injured by harsh public criticism to which he is subjected is not. He is in physical danger if he is a good player, since it is considered a part of good strategy on the part of opposing teams to put him out of action if they can. This may not be aimed for deliberately, but often deliberation is not necessary. If a player is known as a dangerous ball-carrier, kicker, or passer, he is a marked man on the field and his opponents concentrate on stopping him.

An injured star is liable to be baked, boiled, taped, and strapped and sent into the game in no condition adequately to protect himself, with the result that what might have been a minor injury is aggravated into a permanent disability which handicaps him all through late life. There is very little joy left in modern intercollegiate football. It has become hard, specialized work.

To All Sport Lovers

At a recent banquet in Toronto, Dr. James Naismith, of Kansas University, inventor of basketball, made this statement:

('In my opinion, the Edmonton Grads have the greatest team, male or female, that ever stepped out on to a basketball court."

If you believe that a team like this merits your support, may we look for you on Tuesday night?

YATES SAILS FOR DEFENCE GOLF CROWN

NEW YORK, April 22.—Charley Yates, the British amateur golf champion, packed a miscellaneous assortment of baggage, grinned a cheery farewell and sailed Friday for England where from May 22 to 27 he'll "do the best I can" to defend his title against some 250 ambitious sharpshooters.

Yates, a tow-headed young Southerner, fairly bubbled with health and high spirits.

TO SEE THE SIGHTS

"They set up our sailing date a day," he explained as he bustled about. "Francis Ouimet, Bill Holt of Syracuse, and Bill Danford, of Boston are with me. It's Francis' eighth trip, and he wants to see some of the country over there. He's not even taking his clubs this time. We're going to London first, then take a little trip over to Paris and maybe Italy and Germany, before the tournament.

"My game?" he wrinkled his forehead thoughtfully. "Well, I guess it's about the same as it was last year at this time. One day you're good, the next not so good."

The British amateur this year will be played at Hoylake, and Yates doesn't know what to expect, although he says he has been told it's a great course. "I've been practising with the small ball they use over there. I like it, but it doesn't hold a green as well as ours."

May Lift Horse Ban

VICTORIA, April 12.—Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture, said Friday he will consider soon the possibility of allowing Alberta race horses into British Columbia on grounds that race tracks may be considered quarantine areas under supervision of veterinary surgeons.

With The Railroaders

C.P.R. Rail News

The passing of Duncan Hill, at the age of 78 years, retired Canadian Pacific Railway car cleaner is noted with regret. Mr. Hill, who resided at 8816 101st street, Edmonton, retired from the company's service account age on June 1st, 1932, following sixteen years employment. He entered the service August 16, 1916 as laborer at South Edmonton; was made a car cleaner April 1, 1917 and worked in this capacity at Red Deer, Coronation and South Edmonton, being stationed at the latter point since 1918. Mr. Hill leaves his wife, son and two daughters besides other relatives in Canada and Scotland. Funeral services were held on Wednesday, April 19 at Edmonton.

• • •

W. L. Fox, formerly electrician in the C.P.R. mechanical department, Edmonton and Mrs. Fox, who are now residing in Saskatoon, were visitors in Edmonton recently.

At the meeting of the C.P.R. Lawn Bowling Club held on April 4, Mr. K. Emms was elected president for the 1939 season, and the apparent enthusiasm forecasts a successful season. Official opening is scheduled for May 24 but the greens will be ready for play by the first of May. All officers and employees are invited to join up this year.

WRITES TWO SONGS

"Rocky Mountain Paradise" and "Cabin In The Blue" are two beautiful songs which have been written by Mrs. Peter Maney, wife of the assistant baggagemaster, C.P.R. station, Edmonton. Given a good orchestral setting, and a good orchestra to play, there is no doubt but that these songs would become hits, and Mrs. Maney is to be congratulated on her artistic work. Typically western in theme and melodic construction, Mrs. Maney's songs would find a ready response in this part of Canada. It only remains for some enterprising orchestra leader to see the light.

J. R. Levell, pensioned C.P.R. train baggageman of Calgary, and Mrs. Levell were in Edmonton recently owing to the death of Mrs. K. Gillis and Mr. S. Gillis of this city, relatives of Mrs. Levell. While in Edmonton Mr. and Mrs. Levell were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Harry Kinloch.

On the National System

A meeting of all railway employees interested in forming a Medical and Hospitalization Association will be held in the large sample room in the basement of the Corona hotel on Sunday afternoon, April 23, at 1 p.m. The committee appointed at the last meeting will make their report for consideration of the meeting. As it is hoped to make a decision on the policy to be adopted, as many employees as possible are urged to attend.

Death of retired locomotive engineer Daniel Powers, who passed away last Sunday after a short illness, was received with general regret. Mr. Powers started his railroad career with the old Canadian Atlantic line in 1895 and came to Edmonton as an engineer in 1918. He served with the company until his retirement in 1933. He was well known and liked in railroad circles and his many friends extend their sympathy to his widow and family.

CHAPTER VII-A

JACOB WALZ, "the old Dutchman," acquired ownership of an extremely rich mine in Superstition Mountain some time in the 1880's, the Arizona legends say. He was an eccentric man with a long white beard, fierce of countenance, massive of frame; a drifter whose background only he knew. He himself admitted killing three Mexicans in order to steal their bonanza, Mexicans who were descendants of the original Spanish discoverers of the mine. But he worked the property alone.

Walz would come periodically into the village of Phoenix, plunk down a bag of amazing nuggets and forthwith drink all the liquor he could hold. Then he'd come out on Washington street and yell like a rebel.

"Waugh!" he'd shout. "I'm a two-legged hellion outen the hills, and I'll kill any damned fool who says I ain't!" He was not exaggerating.

People tried to pump him about his rich mine, but he wouldn't talk even when drunk. Some tried to follow him to the mountain and he slipped back at night and killed them. Others kept bedeviling him trying to get a share of his wealth, and he was afraid they might murder him for it.

One day, therefore, he concealed his mine opening. He covered the hole with ironwood logs as large as his burros could drag, then piled rocks and dirt over them. He obliterated all traces of his camp and came back to Phoenix to wait until interest in his gold store should subside. He told these things himself, but he died unexpectedly without definitely revealing the mine's location. It was, he did say, somewhere near Weaver's Needle, the highest peak in Superstition, and not far from a palo verde tree with a pointing arm.

Stuart Blake knew that bit of history. When he rode out from Superstition Lodge that morning he decided to go up near the base of Weaver's Needle and scout around from there. The shortest route was six miles in, with much climbing, but his horse was a hardy one. He recognized the Needle about midday, not more than a mile from him.

He had never seen a more beautiful region, never imagined one as rugged and wild. He wondered where the ironwood logs might lie concealed. It intrigued him to think of the fun and excitement if he should happen to find the Dutchman's gold; he pictured himself telling Carolee Colter all about it first. And telling Nina. And his friends back in Chicago. Stuart Blake was young and romantic enough to enjoy day dreaming.

His attention was caught suddenly by hieroglyphics etched on big rocks near him. They were strange picture writings, evidently of Indian origin, animal and human forms and odd circular designs. They were interesting but he could not decipher them. He wondered if they were important to the mine.

It was well past noon but he hadn't thought to eat the lunch he brought, nor even to take a drink from his saddle canteen. The surroundings were too impressive, and he was thinking of the palo verde tree with the pointing arm. His horse was puffing, so he dismounted to let the animal rest, dropping the reins as cowboys do. He walked a few hundred feet, climbed up over a series of boulders which gave him a view in every direction for many miles. Only the Needle was higher. The breeze whipped him, snapping his silk bandana. The sun shone intensely. He studied the landscape for a quarter hour or so, grew thirsty and climbed back down. When he reached the picture rocks again, his horse was gone.

At first he was astonished, then alarmed.

He remembered the experience with Carolee. Here, though, the brushy growth was negligible. He remembered to look for tracks. Sure enough, they led off, and were easily followed.

The hoof marks went 200 yards or so then suddenly disappeared at a cliff edge. Stuart peered over.

"Good Lord!" he breathed.

The horse was dead — literally smashed — on the rocks several hundred feet below.

Two Men Make Ready For 6,000-Mile Bike Trip—Alaska to Gotham

United Press
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

SEATTLE, April 22—Two men, an Alaskan sourdough and a youthful adventurer, made final preparations for a 6,000-mile motorcycle trip from Fairbanks, Alaska, to the New York world's fair, over the route of the proposed international highway to the far north.

The men, C. C. "Slim" Williams, 58-year-old Fairbanks musher and trapper, and 25-year-old J. T. Logan, Portland, Ore., hardware man, will leave Seattle Saturday by boat for Fairbanks. They will make a survey of the proposed highway.

The pair expect to leave Fairbanks the first week in May and plan to arrive in New York some time in July. The trip will be made on specially-built lightweight English motorcycles, expected in Seattle within a day or so.

Leaving Fairbanks, the adventurers will stop at Chicken, 40-Mile, Dawson, White Horse, Atlin, Telegraph Creek and then enter the States. The journey to the States will be made approximately 200 miles inland.

They will carry motion picture and still cameras and are equipped to take pictures in color.

The men are financing the trip themselves and estimate the cost at approximately $2,500.

It is suggested by expert pilots that if an inexperienced pilot becomes involved in "dirty" weather, he decrease his speed and, if the plane has retractable landing gear, to lower the wheels to further decrease the speed.

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

A WELCOME BOOK

As an instance of the dog's ability to reason things out, and as proof that it does not always act upon instinct alone, I cite the following story. A Dobermann Pinscher had been taught by its owners never to get into a car unless they ordered it to do so, which they never did except when absolutely necessary. In consequence the dog developed a distaste for riding in cars, and had to be urged to get into one on the two or three times necessary for him to go to the veterinarian for treatment.

HE REMEMBERED

There came a day when, in a difference of opinion with another dog, the Dobermann's ears were rather badly torn, and it had to be taken in the car to the veterinarian for several stitches in the injured member. After a while infection set in and the dog suffered much pain one night. Early the next morning when let out he rushed to the garage and scratched at the door. When it was opened he ran to the car and placing his forepaws on the running board, whined to be let in. As the door was opened he immediately got onto the rear seat, and when he and his owner arrived at the vet's he ran through the outer office into the surgery and of his own accord jumped up on the operating table to wait for the treatment which he had figured would ease his suffering.

MAN'S LOVE FOR DOGS

The following was a recent occurrence and took place in West Virginia. A Beagle, chasing a rabbit, fell into an abandoned mine shaft. His pal, a one-year-old Shepherd dog, gave the alarm, leading rescuers to the spot and keeping constant watch while they toiled for 18 days and nights to release the unfortunate hound. During that time he refused all food. After blasting through almost solid rock some unemployed miners at length reached Spot, the Beagle, and he was tenderly lifted out—dead. Scores had watched the rescue work. The woman and her daughter who had owned Spot had carried food to the men as they worked. When people will make such efforts to save the life of a dog can anyone doubt the place our canine friends hold in the hearts of most of us?

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to answer letters about dogs, exclusive of those dealing with sicknesses, if you will write him at Tenacre, White Plains, New York. Enclose a self-addressed (3-cent) envelope.

LIVESTOCK REPORT

By Senior Markets Supervisor

Report from the Edmonton stockyards for week ending April 14:

Receipts:	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Week	1744	477	891	202
Saturday	127	46	84	9

The market the forepart of the week was fairly active at steady prices but increased receipts with a weaker undertone on outside markets depressed prices fully 25c per cwt. on all butcher cattle. Packer buyers were close in their grading and indifferent about purchasing. Order buyers purchasing the bulk of the receipts. Salesmen expect to make a good clean up at the close of the week's trading. The following are the quotations:

Good to choice fed calves $6 to $7, good to choice steers $6½ to $6¾, fair to medium $5 to $6, common steers $6½ to $5¾, fair to medium $5 to $6, common to fair $4 to $5, good to choice heifers $5½ to $6, fair to medium $5 to $5½, common to fair $4 to $5, good cows $4 to $4¼, extreme tops $4½, common to medium $3 to $3¾, canners and cutters $2¾ down, bulls $3 to $4.

Stockers and feeders steady and in demand at steady prices. The bulk of the better kinds selling from $4 to $5, with a few choice kinds bringing $5.25.

Calf market continued steady with choice vealers bringing $7 per cwt., others $6½ down.

The hog market closed 15c per cwt. lower for the week. Off truck bacons $7.85, with selects bringing a premium of 50c and butchers discounted $1 per cwt. Canadian bacon quoted 76 to 83 shillings on the British market.

Sheep and lamb market firmer and a few choice lightweight lambs selling $7½ to $8, others $7 down, yearlings $4½ and ewes $3½ down.

A Worth-While Cause

Health Camp Council Is Campaigning for Funds: $5 Gives Child Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow of Edmonton, here's a chance to bring a glow to your hearts and at the same time bring a glow of health to the cheeks of some underprivileged youngster in Edmonton. For $5 you can give some undernourished youngster a week at a health camp at Lac Ste Anne, where under proper supervision, with experts in charge of his health, his diet, and his exercise, he can revel in fresh air and sunshine, good food and proper care, giving him the much needed stamina to carry him through the rest of the year.

The Better Health Camp Council of Edmonton, a non-political, non-sectarian group, working in close co-operation with the Public School Nurses and under the direction of Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer of health, will this year again give a month's holiday to as many under-nourished, under-privileged Edmonton school children as their funds will allow.

Last year they were able to take care of 28 boys, and careful measurements, statistics and photographs, showed the remarkable results they achieved. In all cases pounds were added to the youngsters' weights, many of them grew from half an inch to 1½ inches in the period. All of them benefitted greatly from the good food, the open air, the regular hours and regular exercise. Results were phenomenal. Every youngster was given individual study and individual attention.

SPECIAL CASES

Picked by the school nurses and Dr. Little they were youngsters who would otherwise have to forego this healthful vacation under ideal conditions. Every one was a special case.

This year the Council will again operate their camp, and the campaign to raise the necessary funds is now under way. That's where you come in Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow. Members of the Council will approach you for your assistance and support. Would you care to be responsible for one child receiving a holiday at Lac Ste. Anne under these conditions? Any donation you care to give will be thankfully received and appreciated, and you can know in advance that it will be wisely expended where it will do the most good.

Broomhall

Although England bought a cargo of No. 1 Man. wheat for shipment from Montreal by the middle of May at 77¾ and a parcel of Rosafe 64 pd. wheat afloat at 59½c, the demand is generally much quieter. Spring weather prevails in Canada and the ice is fast disappearing. Navigation is fast approaching after a long winter and wheat will soon be moving to the seaboard. On March 31 Canada had a total of 302,662,000 bushels of wheat in all positions, of which 61,220,000 were still on farms, but this was thought to be of inferior grade in most cases. This is more wheat than Canada has had on hand for two years, but in 1936 total stocks were as large as 247,000,000. If the European demand should improve, with some crop scarce this summer, it would not be difficult to dispose of a very large proportion of this surplus, which is held in Canada, as it is a class of wheat which is usually in very good demand.

PRAIRIE FARM ESSAY CONTEST IS ANNOUNCED

WINNIPEG, April 22.—The Searle Grain Company, Ltd., anounced today that the chairman of their board of Directors, A. L. Searle, has contributed $1,000 for a prairie farmers' essay competition. The first prize is $250.00; the second prize, $150.00; and the third $100.00, with the balance of $500.00 to be divided between the remaining essays that are considered worthy of a prize. Any farmer over 21 years of age, farming in any part of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta is eligible.

The prizes will be awarded for the best essays describing methods or practices concerning the production or management of crops or land or farm machinery, and which methods the contestants are actually using, and which they have found to be useful and profitable.

The competition does not refer to livestock production or management, and preference will be given to practices and methods that are not at present in general use, but which could be used by a large number of farmers. Essays should be forwarded to the Searle Grain Company, Ltd., not later than June 15.

The judging will be done by the Universities of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, for their respective provinces, and the Dominion Experimental Farms, at Ottawa, will be the final judges for placing the higher prizes.

Arrangements will be made to publish those essays containing information that may be of value to all farmers.

Blaze Destroys Rochester Cafe

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

ROCHESTER, April 22.—The Rochester cafe and restaurant owned and operated here by Alexander Czuj was burned to the ground Friday night. Fire started in the upstairs rooms about 11 p.m., and in a short time was burning beyond control. Origin was unknown. Most of the downstairs household goods was saved. Building was frame and some insurance was carried. A light southeast wind was blowing at the time, endangering an adjoining blacksmith shop which, however, was saved by a citizens' bucket brigade.

UNIVERSITY MUST RETAIN FREEDOM BALDWIN STATES

TORONTO, April 22.—The university is "an epitome of true democracy," where merit alone is the hall-mark and ordered freedom its birthright, Earl Baldwin said last night in a lecture in Convocation Hall of the University of Toronto.

"Never must that freedom be bartered away," he said. "Universities need money. Much of modern scientific research and teachings work through expensive tools. Money has come to them generously from wealthy men or from the state.

"But let us never forget that the wealthy man and the state are honored by being allowed to take part in the sacred work of education and, while their contributions are received with sincere gratitude, nothing gives a right either to the wealthy man or the state to interfere in any way with the freedom of the university itself. It must always be its own master, responsible to its conscience and sound tradition for what it teaches and how it teaches."

Franco-Rumanian Accord Is Sealed

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 22—A contract calling for delivery of 560,000 tons of Rumanian petroleum products to France within the year ending March 31, 1940, was signed last night. The contract seals the Franco-Rumanian commercial accord signed at Paris last March 31.

. . . Modernize Interiors NOW!

There are several reasons why modernizing and repairing should be undertaken now.

With the new loan agreement with the Dominion government and the co-operation of the banks there is bound to be a rush of business this Spring.

Expert men will be hard to get. It's good advice to call one of the firms listed below and learn how you can improve your home without a large outlay of cash.

U.S. Army Will Reinforce Its Intelligence Arm

WASHINGTON, April 22—The United States army is planning quietly to reinforce its military intelligence division to keep in touch with fast-moving developments abroad and safeguard defence secrets at home.

Officials said today that a request by War Secretary Harry Woodring to congress for authority to enlarge the general staff from 88 to 102 officers meant that a general instead of a colonel would be put in charge of the army's reporting and counter-espionage service.

TANKER PLANES FOR REFUELLING FLYING BOATS

Converted Bombers Leave England—Will Be Assembled Here

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 22.—Lashed to the deck of the freighter S.S. Beaverford, two converted bombing planes are en route to Montreal for assembling as refuelling tankers for Imperial Airways Atlantic flying boats this summer.

The planes, twin-engined Harrow monoplanes, will be reassembled at Fairchild Airport, Montreal, then flown to the Newfoundland airport at Botwood, intermediate fueling base on the proposed route between Southampton and New York.

ENGLISH-TRAINED CREW

The English-trained crew which will man the tankers will serve under two former Royal Air Force officers, Flight-Lieutenant H. C. Johnson, now in Canada and Flight-Lieutenant R. Atkinson, who will join the party later.

Trans-Atlantic operations will be launched shortly after Botwood harbor is free of ice, with prospects of the first flying boat taking off early in June from the Shannon base in Ireland. According to present plans the service will operate at first on a regular weekly schedule, carrying mails only. Passenger service will not be inaugurated until a satisfactory flying schedule has been worked out.

AIR-LINERS READY

Four air-liners of the Cabot class are now waiting on the river Medway, 50 miles from London, for the signal which will send them into the air on their trans-Atlantic venture. Bearing the names "Imperial Cabot," "Clyde," "Connemara" and "Caribou," they are regarded as the last word in flying-boat efficiency. Four-engined and weighing 24 tons, they are capable of carrying 14,000 pounds on a flight of 1,000 miles from a ground takeoff.

Through mid-air refuelling, however, their range is materially increased without reduction in payload.

Air refuelling is accomplished by means of a 200-foot rubber hose through which petrol flows from the tanker to the flying-boat at the rate of 120 gallons a minute. The operation is carried out while the aircraft are travelling at approximately 125 miles an hour.

Premier Confers On Schedule For Meeting Series

Premier William Aberhart and Social Credit officials headed by John Guild, president of the Edmonton Constituency Social Credit Association, conferred at the Macdonald hotel Friday regarding the series of meetings to be addressed in various parts of this city next week by the Premier and members of his cabinet.

Details of arrangements and outlines of the meetings were discussed.

Meetings will be addressed as follows, with the Premier speaking at all: Monday, Westmount Community Hall and Advance Hall, Calder; Tuesday, Strathcona High School assembly hall and St. Luke's Hall; Wednesday, Edelweiss and Polish Halls; Thursday, Alberta Avenue Community Hall and Beverly.

LICENSES FOR CATS ASKED TO PROTECT BIRDS

City Council has received a request from the Northern Alberta Fish and Game Protective League asking that a license be placed on cats.

A letter written by G. J. Keltie, president, points out that cats are a menace to song birds and that his organization would like to see Edmonton become a song-bird sanctuary.

A well-fed cat will kill up to 50 birds a year, Mr. Keltie says, and a half-starved cat 75 to 100 birds.

The league feels that a license for cats would be the most effective means of control.

GROUT PROPOSES BLEACHERS FOR CHILD PATIENTS

Acting Mayor Douglas A. Grout will ask the city to provide special bleachers for children patients in the special infantile paralysis ward at the University hospital so that they may view the Royal procession.

"I want special stands for all the children that the doctors will allow to be moved," Acting Mayor Grout said Saturday. "They can be built on the hospital grounds on 112 street, which is on the route of royal progress. Some children may have to be kept lying down, but still they can be permitted to see Their Majesties.

"The first thing I intend to do is to find out how many children the doctors will allow to be moved onto the grounds to see the procession."

DOTTY LAMOUR, HUBBY HERBIE, CALL IT QUITS

CHICAGO, April 22.—The harmony of Band Leader Herbie Kay and songstress Dorothy Lamour ended on a blue note Friday when he filed a suit to divorce her on grounds of desertion.

The couple, who teamed on the dance orchestra circuit in the days before she became a movie star, issued a joint statement through his attorney William B. Gemmill. It said:

"It is with deep regret on behalf of both of us that we find it impossible to continue our marriage. Dorothy has her career in Hollywood—one that makes it impossible for her to leave there to establish a home elsewhere. Herbie has his career—one which makes it impossible for him to remain in one place.

(Signed) Dorothy and Herbie."

Miss Lamour, an elevator operator in a Chicago department store at one time, stepped into the limelight when she joined Kay's band in a singing role.

LINER BURNING IS CRIMINAL ACT, FINDING OF PROBE

LE HAVRE, France, April 22.—Investigating magistrate Andre Curbelier said Friday preliminary inquiries into the burning of the liner Paris established definitely a "criminal act" which police believed was committed by "foreigners in France."

Curbelier said investigators were seeking several foreign residents of Le Havre believed responsible for the sabotage.

He intimated several who are under suspicion would be detained for questioning. Investigation was underway into their activities Tuesday night, when fire broke out on the luxury liner, valued at more than $10,000,000.

Police Required Give Their Seats In Street Cars

Absolute courtesy is required of city policemen at all times, Acting Mayor D. A. Grout said Saturday, after reading an editorial in a Calgary paper.

"The writer of that editorial says that he has seen in Edmonton a policeman using profane language to a man from the country and also has seen one sitting in a street car while several women were forced to stand," the acting mayor said.

"This is the first city commissioners have heard of such a case but, if it occurs, citizens are asked to take the policeman's number and report it to commissioners. The public has first claim on seats in a street car and a policeman in uniform must stand if there are not enough seats."

Death Reported Here

Word was received in Edmonton of the death Saturday morning in San Francisco of W. T. Creighton, formerly manager of the Edmonton branch, Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation. He was manager of the city branch from 1906 to 1925, and was then appointed supervisor.

Contra-Movies At 85

CANADA MUST BACK EMPIRE IF WAR COMES

Land-Grabbing Exploits of Dictators Attacked By Dr. Manion

OTTAWA, April 22—Attacking the land-grabbing exploits of Hitler and Mussolini as "international gangsterism," Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, told a gathering of war veterans here last night Canadians could no more ignore them than they could sit quietly by while a friend was beaten and murdered.

"It is our duty to condemn such crimes, crimes that are not permitted in law abiding countries," he said. "Would you watch a friend beaten on Ottawa's Sparks street and thrown into the Rideau canal to drown?

MUST CO-OPERATE

"If war comes Canada must not only co-operate with the empire but with other democratic countries. No one, no matter how fine his intentions, could declare Canada neutral if a war involving democracies broke out."

Dr. Manion declared he took seriously the recent reports of possible sabotage in central Ontario. "Wars are not declared these days," the Conservative leader said. "I wouldn't be surprised that, if war starts, the first act of an aggressor would be bomb London, England, killing thousands of women and children."

SUPPORT DEFENCE

He pleaded with the veterans, First Canadian contingent men attending their 20th annual Red Chevron reunion dinner, to support Canadian defence plans, pointing to the danger of attack by air from aircraft carriers which might make their way into James Bay.

Only a United Canada would be fit for war and to obtain this unity there must be some toleration for the views of all. Veterans were in a better position than most to bring about the harmony necessary in both peace and war.

NON-PARTISAN SPIRIT

Speaking of Dr. Manion as "My friend Bob," Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of defence, lauded the non-partisan spirit in which all parties in the House of Commons had considered measures affecting veterans.

Nothing more inspiring had ever been experienced in the history of Canada than the spontaneous offers of service from both young men and war veterans which had come to the government during the past few months of international tension.

"I'm sure if the call came again you would respond to fight for democracy and freedom," the minister said.

IAN MACKENZIE CITES NEED FOR CANADA DEFENCE

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C., April 22—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, in a letter to the North Vancouver board of trade has cited the need for adequate defences and solicited co-operation of employers in allowing employees to attend military training camps.

The minister's letter said the need for sufficient defence forces in Canada in view of world conditions is no less acute than it was a year ago when he sought the same co-operation. He said the response to his appeal of last year was "most encouraging."

The board has endorsed the minister's request.

R. Bower May Show Wares At New York Fair

Robert Bower, Edmonton long-distance runner, who failed in an attempt to beat a race horse in a six day race recently when he developed blood-poisoning in his toe may show his wares before visitors to the New York World's Fair if present plans work out.

Bower received a letter from a Sam Richman, of the Bronx, who is also a long-distance runner, challenging Bower to a race for six days and six nights—"go as you please." Bower accepted the challenge and now Richman is attempting to make arrangements to have the contest sponsored by the World's Fair officials.

Probable Showers Forecast In City: Weather Is Mild

Citizens, comlaining bitterly of dust being scooped into their eyes by wayward winds during the current dry spell, rejoiced Saturday morning when the weatherman issued a forecast of probable showers. Mild weather will continue.

Light sprinkles occurred during the early hours of Saturday, but not enough to register, but dull clouds threatened at any moment to loose their moisture.

Temperatures Friday climbed to a maximum of 58 above, then sank to an overnight low of 44 above at 4 a.m. Saturday to hold that reading up to last readings at 9 a.m.

Weather in the near north was varied, rain, snow and sleet falling at various points. Temperatures ranged from 30 to 50 above.

Far north readings varied from 24 to 36 above Saturday morning.

YOUNG GRITS OF WEST LEAD IN DISCUSSION

Alberta and British Columbia Delegates Spark Convention

By THOMAS WAYLING

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, April 22. — Young Twentieth Century Liberals of Alberta and British Columbia took the lead in the national convention here Friday.

E. R. Horton, of Vegreville, arrived by train to report his five companions who started by car from the Alberta capital were somewhere in North Dakota. They had run into a blizzard in North Dakota and were held up, so chipped in to provide funds for Horton to get to Ottawa and represent them at the convention.

Milton Owen, Vancouver; George Bullock, Victoria; Mrs. Kenneth Montgomery and Miss Laurette Carrigan, Edmonton, and Mr. Horton, took an active part in the discussion.

The minister of labor, Hon. Norman Rogers, gave British Columbia the leading part in carrying out the youth training schemes. He told what was being done, particularly in Vancouver, where the people of the city had made community enterprises of the projects. He cited the co-operation of Ford Motors, General Electric, General Motors and other Vancouver firms had contributed equipment to help along the good work.

The minister forecast plans to aid unemployed youth get into Canada's great new industry, aeronautics. There was a great need for air mechanics, and this offered a field for youth training.'

"In the development of youth training program," stated Mr. Rogers, "we are building now on a solid foundation. This program, which in the beginning was experimental and new from year to year, is now to be placed on a more permanent basis. We are going to enact legislation which will continue this program for at least three years. The first year we spent approximately $1,000,000. The second year, last year, we spent approximately $1,500,000. Next year we will spend $3,000,000 and shall continue on this basis for three years to come.

"I have been greatly encouraged in meeting young Liberals who were ready to give their advice and ready to assure me of their support with this test of the Liberal government."

RESPONSE DEFINITE

The response from the provinces was from the beginning definite and enthusiastic in all respects and in every case, added the minister.

"From one end of the country to the other I have been in cities and seen the wonderful training these young people have been receiving. In British Columbia, I saw carpentry, road repairs, aeronautical engineering for the boys, the young women in home service schools and home economic classes and physical training. In Alberta I have seen lads being instructed in fur farming."

Both federal and provincial governments are most anxious that these training programs should lead to employment. In this respect, Mr. Rogers stated that thousands of young Canadians have been benefited by permanent employment through their schools. The percentage of placements from Canadian training schools is actually higher than that in the civilian service plans in the United States. This is an encouraging record considering the short life of the schools, states Mr. Rogers.

"It can be made a very effective course in this country to national unity," states Mr. Rogers.

In the first year there were 56,000 young people in Canada in these schools. In the second year there were 45,000.

2,000 IN FORESTRY

In forestry there are almost 2,000 young men engaged both in conservation and in training. In mining, in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia and British Columbia there were 628 receiving a course. Almost all of these young men have since been placed. In home economics there were 1,605 young women. Agricultural enrollment in rural training schools amounted to 17,800 pupils. In physical training classes in British Columbia and Alberta alone there are 21,536 students.

"In forest conservation camps we have spent one million dollars aside from the original sum allotted to youth training," said Mr. Rogers.

"In view of the need of expanding our military aircraft in present time the supply does not meet the demand for air field mechanics. I believe we will secure the full co-operation of the provinces in this respect." Mr. Rogers said that every branch of the youth training scheme there was a great consciousness of unity where these schools are held. The scheme was working up to every expectation and will definitely be slated for another three year term at least.

80-CENT WHEAT

A guaranteed price to western farmers of 80 cents a bushel for wheat, basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William, instead of the proposed guaranteed initial payment of 60 cents a bushel was urged upon Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, Friday by the national convention of the 20th Century Liberal Association of Canada.

The 60-cent price would not be enough, western delegates maintained. When news of the proposed initial payment was received in the west, retail sales fell sharply and many orders for agricultural implements were cancelled, the westerners said. Freight traffic would suffer if the lower price were adopted and the economic life of the prairie provinces would be adversely affected. If the western farmers were expected to pay their debts they must have the guaranteed price of 80 cents.

EAST OPPOSES

The resolution proposed by the Manitoba junior section, met some opposition from eastern Canada delegates on grounds it asked subsidies and protection for the western farmers while eastern farmers and manufacturers received [illegible] subsidies. However the meeting finally adopted the resolution after prolonged discussion.

The convention was unanimous in support of a resolution for creation of an under-secretary for each post in the Dominion cabinet. It was suggested the under-secretary should be a member of parliament and by answering questions in the house would free the minister for duties of his department.

Other resolutions adopted approved the principle of the Dominion youth training plan, extension of trade agreements, highways construction, and collective security. The convention urged abolition of privy council appeals and favored the principle of the national crusade for good reading.

TABLE RESOLUTION

Delegates tabled a resolution suggesting a Dominion government embargo on "all raw materials for armament manufactures and all war munitions going to the aggressor nations." It was felt it would be difficult for the government to define raw materials for war use and that in any event it would be even harder to determine destination of such shipments.

Economic, diplomatic and military co-operation with United States was approved because the "manifest destiny of Canada is an integral part of the North American continent."

Of party significance was a resolution advanced by Sudbury, Ont., delegates to the effect that "where in any province no affiliation exists between the provincial association and the National Liberal Federation, the 20th Century Liberal Association of that province is urged by this convention to offer its services to the National Liberal Federation in furthering the interests of national unity."

Two Women Die In Edmonton District: Both Aged 73 Years

WETASKIWIN, April 22.—Mrs. Mary Saffrin of Ferintosh passed away at her residence Friday at the age of 73 years. She had resided in Ferintosh district for 39 years. Mrs. Saffrin was born at Blue Earth, Minn. Surviving are three sons and one daughter. Her husband predeceased her one month ago. Funeral services are not yet arranged.

Mrs. Annie Amy Rogers of Millet passed away in the Wetaskiwin hospital Thursday at the age of 73. She was born at Okehampton, North Devon, England, on Dec. 25, 1865, coming to Alberta in 1921 to reside in the Millet district. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. J. H. McAuley and a son William of Millet; also nine grandchildren and one brother in England.

Her husband and one son predeceased her. Funeral services will be held in the United church, Millet, Sunday afternoon. Interment will take place in the Wetaskiwin cemetery.

POLICE POSSE IS SEARCHING FOR MURDERER

DAWSON CREEK, April 22—Police under Corp. Smith and Constable Clay of the British Columbia police, and a citizens' posse widened its search of the bushlands near here for Otto Swartz, wanted for questioning in connection with the murder of Al Hoover, district oldtimer and manager of the Austin ranch at Tupper Creek, B.C.

Hoover's bullet-drilled body was found Monday last near a gate in the Austin farmyard, while nearby the farm buildings blazed to destruction. Loss from fire was placed at $2,000 by Mrs. Austin, owner of the ranch. A horse, the Austin children's saddle pony, that escaped from the barn during the fire was so badly burned that it had to be destroyed.

The murdered man had been shot several times through the chest with a 38.55 calibre rifle, and death was instantaneous. He had been engaged as manager of the ranch to supercede Swartz and was to have assumed his new duties May 1. Swartz had been manager of the ranch for several years.

ESTIMATES FOR DEFENCE DEPT. DOWN MONDAY

Parliament Will Hear Full Details Of Canada's Expanding Armaments

OTTAWA, April 22—Parliament will hear full details about Canada's expanding armaments and defence forces next week when Hon. Ian Mackenzie proceeds with estimates for his department. Last night Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the minister of defence would make his statement on defence policy Monday, thus inaugurating what will probably prove one of the major debates of the session.

Earlier, in the debate of external affairs some aspects of defence policy were touched upon and a number of members put [illegible] on record but others will have something to say before the government's $63,000,000 defence program for the present fiscal year is approved.

BILL PROGRESSES

After a seven-day barrage of criticism and suggestion on the unemployment problem, Hon. Norman Rogers obtained passage of his unemployment relief bill for 1939-40 through committee stage last night and approval of most of his special estimates for unemployment.

The minister of labor took kindly to a suggestion from Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South) that honorary advisory committees of citizens should be set up to assist the Dominion and provincial governments in formulating plans for reducing the bad effects of unemployment. He said such committees had been of assistance in connection with the youth training plan and might be of value in connection with rehabilitation plans for older unemployed.

HARD-PRESSED

"This government relies too much on suggestions from provincial governments," said Mr. Green. "They are hard-pressed and have not much time to think up new schemes and I submit that no government can get the human slant on a problem as well as a group of individuals can."

Mr. Green also suggested establishment of a training farm in British Columbia for unemployed transients of whom some 4,000 were about to be discharged from the winter forestry camps. Such a farm might later be used as a home for older men who were unemployable. Mr. Rogers said every precaution was being taken to see the men leaving the camps assisted towards employment.

RELIEF LOANS

Mr. Rogers revealed the relief loans to four western provinces now totalled $143,000,000. These are advances made to enable provinces to pay their share of relief costs when they have not money available for the purposes.

Statements to the effect Canada had nothing to show for the $300,000,000 spent on relief since 1930 were only partly correct, Mr. Rogers indicated. Of that amount $300,000,000 had been spent on public works of various kinds, chiefly highway construction.

The minister told Rene Pelletier (S.C., Peace River) an item would appear in the estimates for the proposed highway outlet from the Peace River district to the Pacific coast. The project would be speeded up if the Alberta and British Columbia governments took the initiative.

Through The Mill

Transients from outside points are not allowed to linger long in the fair city of Edmonton.

Three men charged with vagrancy appeared in city police court Saturday after being picked up in the city and each of them was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail. Warrants for the trio were ordered held for 24 hours, however, during which time the men are to pick out an exit from Edmonton.

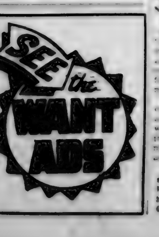
Two adjournments shortened the already diminutive docket to a matter of about 10 minutes time.

Drinks Will Be Prohibited On Progress Route

The city has been asked by the Royal Visit committee to prohibit drinking of bottled drinks along thoroughfares and in bleachers on the day of the royal visit. City Solicitor will see if this is covered by any present regulation and if not will prepare a by-law.

The Royal Visit committee feels that this is a needed safety measure due to the danger of accidents from broken bottles lying about the ground. Persons wishing to buy soft drinks must drink them at the stands where they are sold and may not take them away to the street.



Bravery of Canadians In First Gas Attack Is Recalled Saturday

By JOHN OLIVER

Members of the Red Chevron Club will commemorate the 24th anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres when they hold their 21st annual dinner and get-together at the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall Saturday evening. The banquet will be preceded by a march from the Memorial Hall to the Cenotaph and return.

Club members will fall in at the Memorial Hall at 6:30 p.m. and will march to the Cenotaph. The banquet will commence at 7 p.m. It is expected that His Honor Lieut. Gov. J. C. Bowen and Mayor John W. Fry will be among the guests of honor.

Lieut. Col. Louis Scott, D.C.M., an original member of the famous Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and a past-commanding officer of the perpetuating unit of the 49th Battalion, the Edmonton regiment, will be the main speaker of the evening. Henry Laing, president of the club, will preside, and Mr. Laing and Pipe Major Robertson will pipe the club members into their seats.

BAPTISM OF FIRE

It was at the second battle of Ypres that Canadian troops underwent their first serious baptism of fire in the Great War. They had been "in the line" for training at Armentieres, Fleurbaix and other points after a hard winter of training at Salisbury Plains and other English camps. Then came the time when they "took over" the line on their own account.

Almost before they were settled in their position, on the extreme left of the British army, they were called upon to perform feats of arms and of valor in the face of an overpowering weapon that had never before been used in battle.

In the second Battle of Ypres the Canadians wrote the first page in an immortal tale of valor that is Canada in Flanders.

Ypres and its salient were admittedly the worst part of the entire front line on the western front. Almost surrounded by the Germans, a soldier could stand in his own front line facing the enemy, and yet be shot in the back by the same enemy. A paradox, but true.

CHANNEL PORTS

Ypres was part of the small part of Belgium left in allied hands after the great German advance in 1914. Not in itself valuable territory, this small piece of Belgium was held tenaciously by the British partly for morale and partly because it blocked the way to the broad highways leading to the channel ports of Calais and Boulogne.

From this city to Olds is a distance of 140 miles and from London, the capital and heart of the Empire to Ypres is approximately the same. Only this short distance separated Von Kluck's powerful German legions from a victory that would have given Germany world domination. And in the second Battle of Ypres, as in subsequent engagements, the Canadian troops barred the way.

In 1914, Sir Julian Byng—later to command the Canadian Corps—laid out the Ypres salient of which the city was the centre and which curved out and about it in semicircular form.

OLD CONTEMPTIBLES

In the first Battle of Ypres on October and November 1914 the first British Expeditionary Force, the Old Contemptibles, had made their great stand and thousands had yielded their lives in the defence of the precious highways leading to Calais and Boulogne—the jumping off place to England.

By the spring of 1915 the German high command decided to make its second great bid to win the channel ports. By this time the city of Ypres had been subjected to almost unceasing shell-fire and most of the buildings had been pulverized. The Germans held all the high ground and with their lines all but surrounding the city, they could pump fire into the city from three sides.

The Canadians—only one division then—were on the British left, linking up with French Turcos.

YELLOW-GREEN CLOUD

In the afternoon of Thursday April 12, 1915, sentries saw a yellowish-greenish cloud rising from the German trenches and floating slowly over toward the Canadian lines. Covering a front of three miles and coming at the Canadian and French lines, which proved to be chlorine gas, rose to a height of perhaps 100 feet. For the first time in warfare this weapon was used and as it had never been used, there was no defence for it.

In the face of this terrible onslaught and with the gas choking them, the Turcos, horrified at this unbelievable form of warfare, wilted quickly and broke. Through the gap on the Canadian left, thus created, the field-gray hordes of the Kaiser poured in massed formation.

Pivoting on Gravenstafel, to which point the Canadians came back in the Battle of Paschendale in 1917, the Canadian division threw back its flank on the left.

NO PROTECTION

And then the Canadians went up and at 'em. With their rifle, their bayonets and anything else in the way of a weapon, the Canadians went at the oncoming enemy. They had no protection from the gas but they improvised masks in a hurry.

In spite of being numerically overwhelmed the Canadians actually carried out counter attacks which probably gave the Germans the impression the defenders were more numerous than they had figured.

After a seemingly interminable struggle against apparently hopeless odds, the Canadian division beat back the unending stream of Germans and the second Battle of Ypres stood as an undying tribute to its bravery and arms. Fully 6,000 casualties were suffered, but the division won the admiration of friends and respect of foes and started in motion that remarkable string of Canadian achievements in France and Flanders that ceased only when the armistice came into effect November 11, 1918.

Field Marshal Sir John French, then commander-in-chief of the British armies in the field, was unbounded in his praise of the Canadians and declared that they had "saved the situation."

DISASTER AVERTED

In his official despatch he wrote that "In spite of the danger to which they were exposed the Canadians held their ground with a magnificent display of tenacity and courage and it is not too much to say that the bearing and conduct of these splendid troops averted a disaster which might have been attended with the most serious consequences."

Speaker

COL. LOUIS SCOTT, D.C.M. who will be the main speaker at the 21st annual dinner of the Red Chevron Club here Saturday night.

Completing the last flight from Yellowknife Rudy Heuss, Canadian Airways, arrived at the city Friday afternoon, with his plane loaded with mail, and last minute passengers. Ice conditions are still good, and he encountered no difficulty at any time, he said. They changed to wheels at Goldfields, and came in to Edmonton via Clear Lake where Canadian Airways have a radio station.

Passengers on the plane included Mert Wales and North Sawle, who flew two Stinsons up to Yellowknife to be ready for work this summer. Ken Razzell, C.A.L. agent at Yellowknife who will be married here next week to Ethel M. Edmondson, of Winnipeg, Chuck Green, J. A. Mathieson and Bob Coots.

Mickey F[illegible] of M.A.S. made a flight to Port Radium from Yellowknife Saturday, it was reported by company officials here.

Jack Crosby, C.A.L. will make a charter flight to Calgary and return Saturday afternoon.

20 Trains Need Carry Crowds To View Majesties

It is expected that it will require at least 20 special trains to handle the crowds of people expected to travel to Edmonton to view Their Majesties when they visit this city on June 2.

Railway companies are preparing special schedules so that the arrival and departure of the trains may be handled with a maximum of convenience and a minimum of congestion. Because of the increase in train traffic it is brought to the notice of motorists that a city by-law required them to come to a full stop before proceeding across any level railroad crossing.

To Dance Here

LIBERALS MEET AT STONY PLAIN TO MAKE PLANS

Attended by E. L. Gray, Alberta Liberal leader, J. H. Tremblay, Liberal M.L.A. for Grouard and 18 members of the executive, the Stony Plain Provincial Liberal Association met at Stony Plain on Friday to discuss party participation in the coming by-election to fill the legislative seat left vacant by the death of W. E. Hayes, Social Credit member for Stony Plain.

A committee was appointed to watch the situation and to take such action as was necessary.

In view of the varying circumstances, no date was set for a convention, but the committee in charge was instructed to watch and then decide on action.

George J. Bryan, Stony Plain barrister, who contested the seat for the Liberals in 1935, is in charge of the committee.

MONKMAN PASS HIGHWAY WORK OFFERED HELP

Alberta stands ready to co-operate with British Columbia and the Dominion government in construction of the Monkman Pass highway, it was learned from a government spokesman Saturday. The question came up in parliament on Friday when Rene Pelletier, M.P. for Peace River, asked Hon. Norman Rogers minister of labor, if the Dominion was prepared to give assistance in the matter.

Mr. Rogers, in reply, said that it was a matter of policy but that there was reason to expect that the provinces would assist.

It is pointed out here that B.C. has declined to assist in any construction work to date. The Alberta spokesman pointed out that only a small portion of the highway is in Alberta and most of it is in British Columbia. Little advantage would be gained, it is said, by Alberta helping unless British Columbia aided, in view of the fact that most of the highway is in British Columbia.

Journalist Urges Fast Program For Canadian Defence

While war is not to be thought imminent said Count R. W. Keyserlingk, Montreal, general manager of British United Press, Canada should not delay her defence preparations.

Here on a periodic visit to the city, Count Keyserlingk said that discussion on foreign policy in Canada showed, by the very diversity of views expressed, the keen interest now being taken by the public in this subject.

An authority on Eastern Europe where he served for years as a newspaper correspondent, Count Keyserlingk advised that events in Europe would continue to impinge on Canada demanding a clarification of national policy.

Farmer Winner Court Appeal On Road Case

Appeal by Eli Manduck, Mundare district farmer, against conviction imposed on him by Magistrate L. R. Jackson on a charge under the Alberta Public Works Act, was allowed by Mr. Justice W. R. Howson in a judgment handed down Saturday morning.

Manduck was convicted of unlawfully interfering with a road allowance by putting a culvert therein. He was fined $25 and ordered to pay $36.30 costs.

Appeal, taken by way of certiorari, was argued by Neil D. Maclean, K.C., who submitted that the conviction should be quashed on the ground that the prosecution had failed to prove the road was a provincial highway as required by the act.

The court allowed the appeal, ordered the conviction quashed and the fine and costs refunded.

A. M. A. Camp Opens For Big Tourist Season

Alberta Motor Association auto camp has been officially opened for the tourist season, J. A. McNeil, secretary, announced Saturday.

"The thirty cabins have been newly decorated for the accommodation of what promises to be the biggest tourist season up to date," he said.

Previous to horseshoeing, horses' hooves were covered with socks or sandals.

HMF! TRADING A 50-CENT KNIFE FOR A 10-CENT TOP! I FEAR YOU DID NOT INHERIT THE SHREWDNESS THAT HAS MADE THE NAME OF HOOPLE FAMOUS IN ALL THE TRADING MARTS OF THE GLOBE!
T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
STARTING OUT AS A LAD WITH NOTHING BUT A DILAPIDATED ALARM CLOCK, MY CLEVER BARTERING NETTED ME A SAIL BOAT, TEN HORSES AND A MERRY-GO-ROUND WITHIN THREE WEEKS!
EGAD! SO KEEN WAS MY SENSE OF VALUES, I COULD FAIRLY SMELL MONEY IN WHAT THE OTHER FELLOW HAD TO TRADE!
HAW! I COULD TAKE THIS OLD PICTURE AND START OUT TODAY AND TRADE MY WAY INTO A FORTUNE!
GEE, UNCLE AMOS, I'LL TRADE YOU THREE SHAKES OF MY PIGGY BANK FOR THAT PICTURE!
HMM—EXPERIENCE IS A BRUTAL TEACHER! THE PICTURE IS OF NO VALUE—WHAT I SHAKE OUT OF THE BANK WILL BE CLEAR PROFIT!
IT'S A BARGAIN, LAD, BUT NO WELSHING ON THE DEAL!
AH—A DIME AND TWO NICKELS!
I'LL SAVE TH' PRICE OF A FRAME—THIS ONE JUST FITS TH' PICTURE OF OUR BASEBALL TEAM—I'LL SHOW YOU!
HEY, LOOK, UNCLE AMOS! SEE WHAT I FOUND IN BACK OF THIS OLD PICTURE! A FIVE-DOLLAR BILL!
F-FIVE DOLLARS? AWK!
EGAD, I MUST THINK FAST TO RECOVER IT!
KAFF! KAFF! OF COURSE, ALVIN, THE PICTURE WAS AN OLD HIDE-AWAY FOR MY PIN MONEY—A WALL SAFE, SO TO SPEAK—NATURALLY, THE MONEY IS NOT INCLUDED IN THE TRADE—BUR-RUP-P!
MARTHA HAS BEEN TAKING IT ALL IN!
HMF! JUST A MINUTE, TRADER HORN—I THOUGHT THERE WAS TO BE NO WELSHING IN THIS BARGAIN!
SPUTT! SPUTT! AWK!

THIS CURIOUS WORLD
by William Ferguson
The EQUATOR, GEOGRAPHICALLY SPEAKING, IS ONLY AN IMAGINARY GREAT CIRCLE, MARKED ON THE EARTH'S SURFACE EVERYWHERE EQUALLY DISTANT FROM THE POLES!
MEN HAVE FROZEN TO DEATH ON HIGH MOUNTAINS DIRECTLY ON THE EQUATOR.
THE EARTH'S EQUATORIAL DIAMETER IS TWENTY-SIX MILES GREATER THAN ITS POLAR DIAMETER.
ON ALL OTHER PARTS OF THE GLOBE, THE DAYS AND NIGHTS ARE OF EQUAL LENGTH FOR ONLY A FEW DAYS IN THE YEAR...
BUT AT THE EQUATOR, THEY ARE ALWAYS EQUAL.
THE WORLD'S HOTTEST WEATHER DOES NOT OCCUR ANYWHERE CLOSE TO THE EQUATOR, BUT NEAR THE TROPICS OF CAPRICORN AND CANCER.

COPR. 1939 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
AS THE EARTH SPINS ON ITS AXIS, A PERSON STANDING AT THE EQUATOR IS CARRIED ALONG AT A SPEED OF 1,000 MILES PER HOUR.
TO AN OBSERVER AT THE EQUATOR, ALL OF THE STAR CONSTELLATIONS ARE VISIBLE SOMETIME DURING EACH YEAR.

NOW REMEMBER, TAG, WE'RE HAVING MEMBERS OF SHADYSIDE'S SELECT SOCIAL SET FOR DINNER!
I WANT YOU ON YOUR GOOD BEHAVIOR....WE WANT TO MAKE A GOOD IMPRESSION!
IT'S IMPORTANT TO YOUR MOTHER AND ME!
WHY?
IF WE GET ACCEPTED INTO THE UPPER SOCIAL BRACKETS IT WILL HELP ME IN BUSINESS... NOW REMEMBER! NO BONERS!
THESE PEOPLE ARE VERY WEALTHY.... JEWELS, YACHTS, LIMOUSINES!
HECK, WE OUGHTA LET THEM KNOW WE HAVE A FEW NICE THINGS, TOO!!
SO GLAD TO SEE YOU, MRS. VAN CLINDALE!
I CAN BRING UP A FEW THINGS ABOUT WHAT WE'VE GOT, TOO!!
ER... AHEM!
MOM, YOU KNOW I WAS JUST THINKING ABOUT THAT BLACK RING YOU LEAVE IN THE BASIN, AND....
TAG, I THINK IT WOULD BE WISE IF YOU WENT TO YOUR ROOM!
BUT I....
THIS INSTANT, TAG!
LATER
I JUST WANTED TO SHOW 'EM WE HAD THINGS, TOO!
WHAT EVER GOT INTO YOU TO SAY WHAT YOU DID?
I NEVER GOT A CHANCE TO TELL 'EM IT WAS SET WITH PEARLS!!

"This old world of ours is full of strange people; strange animals; strange facts and strange fancies. Old Mother Nature works wisely and well, but sometimes her ways are too deep, too Curious for us to fathom. But there's a way to keep in touch with the vagaries of nature and learn the whys and wherefores of her strange ways. Daily in The Bulletin, "This Curious World"

DICK TRACY
By Chester Gould
YEAH, MICKEY, NEVER TRY TO HANG YOURSELF WITH A CHILD'S BELT... IT'LL BREAK EVERY TIME.
SO I FOUND OUT.
I GUESS I'VE BEEN A BIG BABY ABOUT THIS WHOLE THING—BUT I SEE NOW THERE'S ALMOST A TOUCH OF HUMOR IN IT.
YES, WHEN I DASHED INTO YOUR CELL JUST AS THE BELT BROKE AND SAW YOU FALL TO THE FLOOR, KNOCKING YOURSELF OUT—I'LL ADMIT I WASN'T VERY WORRIED.
YOU DO YOUR TIME UP THE RIVER, SON—LIKE A GOOD BOY... AND WHEN YOU COME BACK, MITZI, SONNY AND I WILL BE WAITING FOR YOU.
TWENTY MINUTES LATER
BEFORE WE THREE LEAVE FOR THE FARM, TRACY, I'D LIKE TO BUY US ALL A GOOD DINNER! WHERE CAN WE GO?
HOTEL
THERE'S A NICE QUIET PLACE DOWN IN THE NEXT BLOCK, JUST—LOOK OUT! WHAT'S THAT?
A—A PAIR OF OPERA GLASSES—WHAT IN...
—A MAN! ON THAT ELECTRIC SIGN.
HOTEL
WELL, I'LL BE DARNED! A PEEPING TOM SIGN WORKER WITH OPERA GLASSES..SAY!
HE'S HANGING ACROSS ONE OF THE GIRDERS HOLDING THE SIGN
LOOK! SOMETHING'S DROPPING.
IT'S...IT'S—BLOOD!
